NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business was decidedly flat last week, and prices on nearly all staples have shown declines. Climatically we had a decidedly mixed week; temperature 75 degrees in the shade March 27, the following day snowfall for ten hours, and this effectually squelched Saturday trade, which usually is strong. Roses are becoming quite druggy, and clearances are made only at low prices. American Beauties again are abundant and have taken a decided drop in price. At present figures they are having a good call. All varieties are of good quality, with a strong call for Killarney Queen, Sunburst, Ward, Russell and Taft. Some nice Cardinal are arriving. Lady Hillingdon is coming much better and there is a larger demand for it than during the winter. Carnations are about the only flowers which are not yet overabundant, but even on these prices are down.

Violets, especially singles, are low. Thousands of flowers went to sleep with the heat of March 27. Spencer sweet peas sell well, but there are a lot of the grandifloras which are hard to move. Bulbous flowers, for the first time this season, are druggy. Antirrhinum is more abundant and proportionately lower in price. English primroses are abundant and sell well, as do double cornflowers. Mignonette is becoming poorer. A good many cut lilies are seen, but they will sell better a week hence. The same holds true of callas and valley. Cattleya Schrodæ is in good supply, but a few Trianae and Mossiae are seen. Gardenias are coming in much larger numbers; short-stemmed stock sells quite low.

All the plantmen are particularly busy. Indications are that quite a few lilies will not be on time. Rambler, baby rambler and hybrid perpetual roses, azaleas, genistas, spiræas, rhododendrons, ericas, acacias, cyclamens and bulbous plants seem to be most in evidence, and trade is good.

Club Field Day.

It was unfortunate that weather conditions were so disagreeable for the club field day at Waverley, with the W. W. Edgar Co., March 28, snow and sleet falling practically all day. Nevertheless, there was an attendance of fifty, a few ladies being included. Visitors from a distance included L. W. C. Tuthill, of New York, and V. T. Sherwood, of Charleston, N. H. All the greenhouses were found filled to overflowing with first-class stock in the pink of condition for Easter. Lilies, which are all giganteums, were here in thousands, and in perfect condition. Azaleas were seen in all sizes. White, pink and scarlet rambles, baby rambles and hybrid perpetuals were just right. The hybrids, such as Brunner, Magna Charta, etc., were excellent. Genistas were in all sizes, from big specimens in tubs to those in 4-inch pots. There was a large lot of hydrangeas, including hundreds of the new French type. Plants in 7-inch pots carried an average of eighteen heads of flowers each. Dutch bulbous flowers, acacias, Lilium candidum and other varieties all were good. A splendid lot of cyclamens for next Thanksgiving and Christmas are already in 4-inch pots. Large batches of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias also are coming along in 3-inch and 4-inch pots.

After the greenhouse inspection, the visitors gathered in the packing room, where an excellent lunch was served. President Kennedy acted as toastmaster and introduced Duncan Finlayson, W. N. Craig, F. J. Elder, J. N. Keeler, P. M. Miller and J. F. Briry, all of whom warmly praised the splendid houses of plants. Something of a discussion of big, wide houses versus those of more moderate size, took place among the speakers. Mrs. W. W. Edgar gave a neat speech, and lastly, Herman H. Bartsch, the genial and popular manager, made a fine address. He incidentally stated that March 20 he had been with the W. W. Edgar Co. twenty years. Hearty cheers were given the hosts before the homeward journey was made.

New Wholesale Firm.

Another firm of wholesale florists opened for business April 1. The firm's name is McAlpine & McDonald. W. A. McAlpine has for some time been selling the high grade roses raised by McAlpine Bros., Exeter, N. H., of which firm he is a member, and Frank J. McDonald has had experience as salesman for F. J. Dolansky and other noted growers. The new firm has secured commodious and up-to-date quarters at 256 Devonshire street, below the new Boston Cooperative Flower Market. They have a splendid ice chest, office, and every facility for transacting business. They will receive all the roses from McAlpine Bros. A new house, 80x600, is now over half glazed, in addition to the two 400-foot houses. They will also receive large shipments of roses, carnations and other flowers and greens from other growers, and will conduct a general wholesale florists' business. Both members of the new firm are young, popular, well experienced in the handling of flowers, and energetic, and are sure to make good.

Various Notes.

Penn is busy preparing for an immense Easter trade. He is doing a heavy business now in American Beauty roses. March 26 and 27 he had seventeen pieces, mostly of American Beauties, for the opening of the new Merchants National bank. Henry Penn visited the New York show and bought large numbers of Easter plants.

E. H. Borowski, of Roslindale, has a superb lot of specimen bougainvilleas and rambler roses for Easter. He is one of the finest pot plant growers in New England.

Frank P. Putnam, of Lowell, is sending in splendid Beacon, Gloriosa, Pink Delight, Rosette, White Wonder and White Enchantress carnations, also snapdragons in several colors, anemones and Spanish iris. Of the latter he had the first in this vicinity. All Mr. Putnam's flowers will be handled by the new firm of McAlpine & McDonald.

The landscape gardening classes of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day at F. E. Palmer's Newton establishment, April 4. The Boston and Worcester electric cars pass near the place. All going should get off at Parker street, Newton Highlands.

J. T. Butterworth, of South Framingham, among other specimen orchids has one of Cattleya Thayeriana carrying fifty-five flowers; also a fine Cymbidium Lowianum with six spikes. He is cutting Cattleya Mossiae and Schrodæra in quantity. For Easter he will have 1,000 pots of high grade lily of the valley.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, have 3,000 giganteum lilies in good shape for Easter. Among roses their Killarney, White Killarney and Mme. Cecile Brunner are particularly good. A house of yellow marguerites and one of pink snapdragon are splendid.

At Thomas Roland's Nahant establishment, the bougainvilleas, ericas, acacias, rambler roses, metrosideros and genistas are of grand quality, and the largest proportion are already sold.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. has hired additional space for the accommodation of the Easter plants. Orders have been placed for 3,000 lilies and many other plants. For delivery, several Autocars have been hired, in addition to the new one owned by the company.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, continues to send in a splendid lot of his salmon sport from Carnation Winsor; also Fenn, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Beacon, of first-class quality.

Everett Cummings, of Woburn, states that some thousands of his single violets went to sleep with the heat March 27. He has two large houses each of cucumbers and tomatoes, and will follow his violets with these just as fast as the houses are cleared. In tomatoes he grows chiefly Lister's Prolific and Comet, but is also trying Bonnie Best.

Norris F. Comley has sold six acres of land, a residence and all his greenhouses at Lexington, to George Rice, of Framingham. There are six houses, 20x100, and one house 40x365. Mr. Rice will grow carnations chiefly. Mr. Comley has twenty-three large houses at his new Burlington establishment; eleven are planted with sweet peas, with lettuce between them. Prices on lettuce are good. He reserved a residence and five acres of land at Lexington.

William T. Walke, of Salem, has a superb lot of Dorothy Perkins roses and giganteum lilies for Easter. He has sold out nearly all his French hydrangeas.

Henry M. Robinson & Co., when visited, were up to their ears in business. Both Henry M. Robinson and Joseph Margolis visited the New York show.

Pink Supreme carnation from J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, is a great seller. Mr. Cohen says one firm practically buys up the entire crop, its keeping qualities appealing to them.

The McAlpines, of Exeter, N. H., are Adolph E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, says his pink snapdragons, Buxton's strain, and yellow marguerites, are going finely. He will drop Mrs. Sander marguerite after this season.

One of the most interesting places to visit near Easter is that of A. M. Davenport, Watertown. All the houses are filled to overflowing with choice stock. Some 12,000 giganteum lilies are just right. There are thousands of rambler, baby rambler and other roses, genistas, azaleas, bougainvilleas, bulbous stock, spiræas and marguerites.

A specialty here is Hypericum Moserianum; a large batch is starting to bloom finely. # Price Reduction

The strenuous weather of February completely disarranged our plans, and now everything comes at once. Two lots of plants ready to go out and another lot ready to go in. We shall give you the benefit of a reduction in price to quickly make room. Our plants are branched and stocky, and were never better. The price is only \$20.00 per 1000; \$3.00 per 100; 200 for \$5.00. These plants, if benched, will blossom from Memorial Day throughout the summer. If potted on and pinched, they will make you a leader for spring sales. Potted into 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  or 4-inch pots and set on the back side of carnation benches, will yield a surprising profit. While you can get fine plants at a small price make room somewhere. No other plant will do the amount of business in so short a time as our

You will fuss with a geranium for nine months and sell at $1.00 to $1.50 a dozen, while you can get the same money for our SEEDLING snap plants in THREE months, and at one-tenth the cost of production. This is not theory, but a plain fact. Pure seed at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. All orders cash. Free cultural directions.

on plants raised in 4-inch SQUARE paper pots (64 cubic inches of soil and roots) than on plants raised in 4-inch clay pots (31 cubic inches of soil and roots). See our larger advts. on pp. 147, 170. F. W. ROCHELLE & SONS, Chester, N. J.

Enchantress and White Enchantress are the kinds now grown. His flowers will in future be shipped to McAlpine & McDonald.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, R. I., is sending in fine Cardinal roses. Others of extra quality are Shawyer, Russell, Killarney Queen and Sunburst.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, says the sales of bulbous flowers in the Boston market have been better in 1914 than ever before in his experience. He grows lilies largely for cutting. In Dutch bulbs for Easter his great specialties are Murillo and Rose Luisante tulips, Golden Spur and Victoria narcissi.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, is marketing a superior lot of pink snapdragon, myosotis and English primroses. Beacon and Benora carnations are now extra good.

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be potted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders. C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong with extra good roots; just right to transplant for blooming in May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons.

Gentlemen:—In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January. We took some of them out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a good growth while in the bands, and transplanted as though they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-inch bands, which are making a rapid growth, scarcely losing a plant in trans-planting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands, which can stay there till time to plant out of doors without fear of becoming root bound, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots. Plants seldom become root bound enough to injure them in the dirt bands, and do not require near the amount of attention that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, trans-planting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117. When we get crowded indoors, it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set more than another time as many plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through he does not have the bother with gathering up, cleaning and storing away a lot of pots.

I believe anyone using the bands once will become a regular customer.

BOSTON NEWS NOTES.

Kameyama & Seradu, of Stoneham, have a fine lot of giganteum lilies just right for Easter.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is justly proud of his record of eight first prizes with as many entries of carnations at the New York show. His Gloriosa, Beacon and Benora are of splendid quality. He has a heavy cut of pink and white snapdragons.

W. C. Stickel, of Lexington, is enthusiastic over Pocahontas carnation. Yellow Prince and Yellowstone are fine with him, their only fault being a tendency to burst more than other varieties.

Between convention work and the coming Easter trade, P. Welch is one of the busiest men in Boston. He believes everything now is in first-rate shape for the convention and is brimful of enthusiasm for it. Easter advance orders are coming in fast with Welch Bros. Co., and they are looking for a big business.

J. W. Simpson, of Reading, and W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, are each sending in superb lots of yellow marguerites, for which the demand is always so strong that there is no surplus.

Pink snapdragons from C. E. Field, of Montello, and Spencer peas from Mishawum Greenhouses, of Woburn, are each of a quality as high as any now coming into town.

Henry R. Comley was among the visitors to the New York show and was much pleased with it. He has ideas for future retailers' displays at the Boston shows worthy of consideration. He carries at all times a lot of novelties in cut flowers and plants.

W. N. Craig.

March 26 Thomas F. Galvin was appointed a member of the Boston Park and Recreation Commission, by the mayor. Mr. Galvin, who lives at the Hotel Copley-Plaza, will get the position to which Joseph P. Collins, of Roxbury, was originally appointed.

NASHUA, N. H.

C. H. Blake has purchased a fine new Cadillac car, which goes to show that times are prosperous with him. His business during the last winter has been extremely good.

Geo. E. Buxton got a first and a second prize with his pink snapdragon at the recent New York show. His benches of antirrhinums are now a splendid sight. Orders for plants have come from all over the country. W. N. C.

Norfolk, Conn.—Ernest Walker has just started in business here and is growing bedding and stove plants.

Lynn, Mass.—Henry L. Martin, of Marblehead, will build two greenhouses on the Hawkes property on Cemetery road. They will be about 40x100 feet and will be ready for planting by mid-summer.

ROSES
In Leading Varieties

John Welsh Young
Uppl Station, P. R. R. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business is the best it has been since the beginning of Lent. Roses are still arriving in large quantities and there is plenty of stock on hand to fill all orders. American Beauties are plentiful, except in the better grades, which are a little scarce and bring a good price. The Killarneys are in good condition. Of other roses there are not many in this market, but those that do come are in good shape. Carnations still are plentiful and the price remains the same. Sweet peas and violets are not so abundant and have advanced a little in price. Bulbous stock is less plentiful. Lilies are increasing in quantity and will be in large supply until after Easter. Green stock has been rather scarce.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray's greenhouses are in excellent condition and every plant seems to be a specimen. He has an exceptionally fine lot of lilies and lilac and, in fact, everything in general for Easter trade. His houses are a regular show place and well worth seeing. The Alpha Floral Co. reports that the Lenten business is far ahead of that of last year. Henry Kusik & Co. handled a great many Beauties last week and they were exceptionally fine. This firm is still behind on wire work, as the orders come in faster than they can be cared for. Business is good also in the supply department. W. J. Barnes had an unusually busy week in funeral work. W. J. B.

HELENA, MONT.

Business last week was exceptionally good, and flowers of all kinds cleaned up well. Beauties and Radiance show a substantial improvement. Daffodils and tulips are exceptionally fine in quality. Pans of hyacinths and tulips have been good sellers. Stock for Easter is looking fine, with prospects for a clean-up. The State Nursery Co. reports business good in both the wholesale and retail departments. J. W. H. Superior, Wis.—The business run by Chas. Bergeson in connection with the Palace of Sweets, at 1717 Belknap street, has been taken over by Noel A. Degler.

JOY! This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us. JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as "a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem." That should be good enough for anybody.

A GREAT OFFER

"Easter Greeting," a Rival of the Azalea.

In Review, March 19, page 91, we told you about the new ever-blooming pelargonium "Easter Greeting." Many believed it. Did you? We know "Easter Greeting" is a stranger to 90% of the florists in U. S. Why? Because they think it is a common Martha Washington. That's their fault, not "Easter Greeting's." We have such unbounded confidence in it, and are so determined that every florist shall have a good chance to know it that we make this trial offer.

For Two Dollars

we will send 25 nice, strong plants of "Easter Greeting" and one of Lucie Becker, the beautiful pink sport of "E. G." This is very scarce and high priced. Most of the plants are in bud, and if ordered now will make fine Memorial plants. They will be packed in a light basket to save you express charges. 1000 florists should take this rare chance to try out the finest plant in cultivation. Our stock is very fine.

Order now and be convinced that "Easter Greeting" is "the plant of the century."

LYNCHBURG, VA.

The Market.

Lynchburg's fashion week, which has just been celebrated, was a great success for the general merchants of the city and also for the florists, as a good deal of decorative work was done and all the florists had their part in it. Every available palm, fern and blooming plant was brought into play, as well as large numbers of cut flowers, especially carnations, jonquils, etc.

Various Notes.

This city has several excellent greenhouse establishments and some substantial improvements are contemplated for the coming summer.

A. Brosch built a first-class rose house last summer and he intends to build a carnation house this season.

Brill & Spitzer put up two houses last year and expect to add more glass this summer.

J. J. Fallon has a new range of houses and his stock is looking well.

Miss Annie McCarron has been exceedingly successful with sweet peas this winter.

Among recent visitors were James Meiklejohn, of the Scranton Florists' Supply Co., Scranton, Pa.; John Buchach, representing Schloss Bros., New York; Mr. Nims, from A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass., and a representative of the Logan Pottery Co., Logan, Ohio.

PREPARE FOR EASTER!!

From whom will we purchase our Easter supply?

From our old friend, GODFREY ASCHMANN, of Philadelphia, of course. He was our man of the past and he shall be our man this Easter, and, as long as he ships us good plants, he shall be our man in the future. He always treated us right before, and we can rely upon him. What he advertises is true and is no bluff.

If you would know the fairest sight your eyes can ever see Where the most perfect plants are grown, to Aschmann's come with me.

Why! ne'er since flowers began to bloom was such a glorious show

Of all the best that florists need, found in one place to grow. The Lilies are the very best yet seen on Easter Day, Azaleas are whole sheets of flowers, perfect in every way. The Araucarias, matchless are the Ferns all green, With bulbs and plumed Spiraeas, the best you've ever seen; And Aschmann gives a challenge: "Let every florist hear! For flowers or prices, either, no rival does he fear; If you wish to gather dollars like Violets in the Spring, Then send your largest order—his plants the cash will bring."

A Photo of a House of Lillium Multiflorum, with Godfrey Aschmann, the Grower.

We have the genuine EASTER LILY, Lillium Multiflorum. We have the genuine stock, true to name, raised from selected bulbs, furnished by our grower in Japan; 9 to 12-in. bulbs; now in bud, in fine condition for Easter sale; 5½ to 6-in. pots, having from 5 to 10 buds to a plant; 10c per bud; plants having less than 5 buds, 12c per bud. Leading greenhousemen of Iowa conferred with President R. A. Pearson, of Iowa State College, and members of the agricultural faculty March 20 at Ames, Ia., to draw up plans for the new $35,000 propagating house provided for by the last legislature. Special attention to the commercial phases of greenhouse management will be given in the new courses in plant propagation, vegetable growing and floriculture which will be made available by the new building. The conference of the college faculty and greenhousemen was called to determine what courses would be most useful to young men and women who expect to take up this line of work.

With the completion of the new building the horticultural equipment at Iowa State College will rank with that at the best institutions in the country. The college expects to give increased attention to horticulture and its allied interests because of the rapid development of this industry in the state of Iowa.

Those present at the conference from outside of Ames were Wesley Greene, Des Moines; I. O. Kemble, Marshalltown; J. W. Dunford, Sioux City; C. N. Page, Des Moines; Roy F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs; Blaine C. Wilcox, Council Bluffs; Merritt Green, Marshalltown, and J. S. Wilson, Des Moines.

OKLAHOMA FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

An organization of the florists of the state of Oklahoma was launched at Oklahoma City March 23 when a number of the leading florists of the state met at the Lee-Huckins hotel, elected temporary officers and a committee on constitution and by-laws and called a meeting to be held in Oklahoma City April 15 for the purpose of completing the organization, adopting the constitution and by-laws and electing permanent officers and committeemen.

The meeting was called to order by George Stiles, of Oklahoma City. S. S. Butterfield was elected temporary chairman and Charles Stiles, temporary secretary. After considerable discussion it was decided to make it a state organization for florists, with permanent officers and place of meeting. It was ordered that notices be sent to every florist that a state meeting would be held at Oklahoma City Wednesday night, April 15, for the purpose of completing the organization.

A committee on constitution and by-laws, composed of S. S. Butterfield, of Oklahoma City, chairman; H. S. McClennahan, of Oklahoma City, and A. S. Gray, of Chickasha, was appointed by the chair.

SPIRAEAS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Please tell us when to bring Spiraea floribunda in to have them ready for May 30, in a temperature of 52 to 54 degrees at night. E. & S.

Allow the spiraeas six to seven weeks in the temperature named. If they come a little early, it is easy retarding them in a cold house or cellar. C. W.

Howell, Mich.—R. F. Clark, of Tacoma, Wash, has purchased the vegetable greenhouses and will take possession when Mr. Hubbel's lease expires, August 15. Mr. Clark is now working in the greenhouses.

Greenhouse Heating.

ASBESTOS COVER ON BOILER.

Please give me some information in regard to putting asbestos cement on hot water boilers. Should the boiler be heated when thus covering it, and should it be kept hot until the asbestos has dried? In my experience the asbestos seems to break away from the boiler and crack, instead of sticking tightly to the iron. J. H. P.

It is always well to have a low fire in a boiler when putting on an asbestos jacket, although it is not absolutely necessary. When the cement is in place, bind it to the boiler with strips of canvas, stretched tightly around it, leaving only the doors and base uncovered.

BOILERS IN BATTERY.

We enclose herewith a sketch showing the boilers as now situated at our greenhouses. Boiler A is a Kroeschell boiler; it has three openings for 6-inch flows and four openings for 6-inch returns. One return is not used at present and 4-inch pipe is used instead of 6-inch. This boiler heats three houses. Boiler B is a Superior boiler, with three openings for 4-inch flows and the same for returns; one flow is not in use. This boiler heats two houses. Boiler A is large enough to heat all the five houses without trouble. We desire to connect the two boilers in series in the most economical manner. Boiler A stands about six inches lower than boiler B. By connecting the boilers in series we hope to be able to eliminate either boiler according to the weather, except, possibly, on extremely cold days, when both are to be used.

E. D. C.

Just what size of pipe should be used to connect the boilers will depend upon the amount of radiating surface to be heated, but nothing is said about the size of the houses. The inquiry states that boiler A is large enough to heat all of the houses, but does not make it clear that this can be done with the three 4-inch flow pipes which are now connected with that boiler. If such is the case, however, I would suggest that an additional flow pipe be connected with boiler B and that each flow and return pipe on one boiler be connected as directly as possible with the corresponding pipe on the other boiler, without disturbing the supply mains leading to the different houses.

Another way would be to connect the flows and the returns on each boiler with 6-inch pipes, and connect all of the supply flow pipes to one of these and the returns to the other. If more than 3,000 square feet of radiation is required to heat the five houses, it would be well to use either 7-inch or 8-inch pipes.

PIPING IN NEW YORK STATE.

I am about to erect a greenhouse and should like to get an idea as to which would be the best way to build it, with reference to the points of the compass. The land, as you will see from the enclosed diagram, runs at a peculiar angle, extending from northeast to southwest. I intend to grow carnations and will have to run the house either from northwest to southeast or from northeast to southwest.

The house will be 25x100, of the ridge and furrow style. It will be seven feet high to the eaves and the gables will be three feet ten inches high from the top of the gutters. The side ventilators will be four feet six inches. In all, there will be 4,200 square feet of glass. There will be two side benches, each three feet wide, and two middle benches, each six feet six inches wide, with three walks, each two feet wide. The gutters will be supported by iron posts. The ground is unusually springy and the boiler can only be placed three feet deep, so I shall use overhead risers to supply the coils under the benches. Will 2-inch risers do or would it be better to have 3-inch risers? How many feet of 2-inch pipe will be required to heat the house? How large a boiler will be needed? How deep will it be necessary to set the side posts, which will be 2-inch, and the center posts, which will be 3-inch? What circumference of concrete will the posts require? My plans show a circumference of twenty-eight inches, but I think that is more than is necessary. How much pitch is needed for a 100-foot house? Is one-eighth of an inch enough per foot?

J. F. G. &amp; C.

The house can run in either of the Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now."

(Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

(Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.

July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now, since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (—) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place."

The Heart of a Greenhouse

The boiler plays a most important part in the science of growing flowers. As much care should be taken in the selection of a boiler as in choosing the material for the building of the greenhouse.

The SUPERIOR Boiler has them all beat for Results in Greenhouse Heating.

Do you give it this consideration?

The Superior Return Flue Firebox Boilers for Greenhouse heating excel all others. First-class material is used throughout in the construction of all our Boilers. Fire-doors and legs are made with solid steel rings and not cast iron, thus avoiding trouble due to cracked door rings. We claim ours to be the most economical Boiler on the market. The simplicity of construction is readily seen from the cut here shown. The back doors are amply large for convenient cleaning. The workmanship is guaranteed to be first-class. Terms and prices on application. The Superior is endorsed by the leading florists.

A boiler rated for 1,800 square feet of radiation will generally suffice, and it will be well to use three 2 1/2-inch pipes in each house for flows and connect with six 2-inch returns. ## BUFFALO.

The Market.

Because of the nearness of Easter, all stock is scarce. Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and narcissi are being held back and are in the market in small quantities only. Sweet peas are extremely fine and there is an abundance of large plants, such as rhododendrons, azaleas, baby ramblers and genistas. Roses are much improved, but are still scarce. Carnations are good. Valley is arriving in larger quantities. Cattleyas are plentiful. Pansies, snapdragons, marguerites and schizanthus are increasing in quantity. There is not a great demand for gardenias, but the flowers are fine.

Various Notes.

S. A. Anderson entertained the Buffalo Florists' Club at his greenhouses on Elmwood avenue, Sunday afternoon, March 29. There was an inspection of the greenhouses by all the members of the club and Mr. Streit's stock was found to be in excellent condition for Easter. Refreshments were served.

Will Greever has prepared an attractive folder for advertising his Ever-Ready pot covers. The folders have been mailed to all the florists in the city and are attracting considerable attention.

J. Benson Stafford has been doing a splendid business during Lent. He reports that there has been no falling off in the amount of trade. He had several wedding decorations recently and a dinner table for a noted foreigner who visited this city.

Jacob B. Wiese's store in the market is most attractive these days, with all sorts of flowers and plants. He is showing a fine line of snapdragons, pansies and daisies, besides some fine varieties of roses. He reports business first-class.

S. A. Anderson, Stephen J. Mahoney, Charles Felton and Henry Krauss went to New York to attend the flower show.

Wm. F. Kasting acted as one of the judges at the New York flower show.

E. A. LIPPMAN

MANUFACTURER OF GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

HINTS ON SPRENGERI GROWING.

I am contemplating growing a house of Asparagus Sprengeri, but before making a final decision I want a few facts and am asking my questions on another sheet. Please answer these and I shall greatly appreciate your kindness.

G. R. N.

G. R. N.'s questions are embodied in this reply, so that each separate question may be directly followed by its own answer.

At what night temperature should Asparagus Sprengeri be carried for best results?—A night temperature of 60 degrees.

Should the soil used be about the same as for carnations, or would a lighter or more porous soil be more suitable?—Use a carnation soil, heavily manured.

Do the plants grow best on raised benches, or on solid beds with eight to ten inches of soil?—Raised benches for a one-year crop, or solid beds for two to three years.

Give the average length of spray when ready for cutting, to obtain the best prices.—Fifteen inches to two feet long.

What is the proper distance apart for the plants?—About 10x10 inches.

Is good 3-inch stock, planted in May or June, all right for good results in the following fall or winter?—Strong 3-inch plants, planted in May, should give good results.

How long can plants be run with good results?—If well manured, they may be run for three or four years.

About how many good, salable sprays can be cut from average plants in the course of twelve months, or say from September to July?—The number of sprays per plant is a difficult question, as so much depends on the treatment, but probably fifteen to twenty sprays would be a fair average.

Is there a good, steady demand for this asparagus, at a fair price?—The demand for Sprengeri is reasonably steady, but A. plumosus is usually more in demand.

HYACINTH BUDS ARE BROWN.

I am enclosing some hyacinth buds. Will you please look them over and see whether you can tell me what is wrong with them?

C. B.

The most probable cause of the hyacinth spikes coming brown is that the bulbs were heated in transit from Holland. Such bulbs do not fail to throw leaves, but the flower spikes always come in this way. This also applies to both tulips and narcissi. These heated bulbs are readily distinguishable. If you cut them through you will find the embryo flower has a browned and wilted appearance. There are an unusually large number of complaints similar to yours this season.

AMHERST, MASS.

Floriculture day, observed recently in connection with Farmers' week at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, was a greater success in point of attendance than in any previous year, and the audiences seemed to be greatly appreciative of the lectures or addresses which formed the program for the day. After a few words of welcome, Prof. F. A. Waugh, head of the division of horticulture, introduced Prof. A. H. Nehrling, who recently became head of the department of floriculture at the college. Prof. Nehrling spoke convincingly on "Opportunities in Floriculture," maintaining the opinion that there are plenty of good opportunities for those who are thoroughly trained for the work.

Harry A. Bunyard, of New York, was to have spoken on "Professional Horticulture," but was unable to be present. In his place Prof. Asa G. Kinney, of Mount Holyoke College, gave a talk on "Mushroom Culture as a Side Line for a Practical Florist." T. D. Hatfield, superintendent of the Hunnewell estate, at Wellesley, Mass., spoke instructively on "Raising Plants from Seed," stating that his experience shows that many plants when grown from seed have a tendency to become more hardy. Mr. Hatfield is engaged in an attempt, by raising rhododendrons from seed, to create a type that will be suitable for northern latitudes.

The first speaker of the afternoon was Eber Holmes, of Montrose, Mass., who began his address with a few remarks on "Roses Under Glass." This subject was to have been discussed by W. H. Elliott, who was unable to be present on account of the death of his mother. The subject of the second and principal part of Mr. Holmes' lecture was "Outdoor Rose Culture." E. J. Canning, formerly curator of the botanical gardens at Smith College and now engaged in landscape work, was next on the program with a talk on "Methods of Improving Plants." Prof. Nehrling concluded the program with an illustrated lecture on "Glass Houses in the Middle West." By means of lantern slides he showed the evolution of greenhouse construction during the last twenty-five years.

DIRT BANDS—Experience in Using Them

H. B. WEAVER

Cut Flowers

United Phone.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.
F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver ordered 5000 Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, and 20,000 in March. See our two larger advertisements, pages 147 and 170.

W. N. FUMIGANT FOR GREEN APHIS.

I am somewhat of an amateur in the greenhouse business, for, although I have had a greenhouse for several years, I have only used it in the spring to start garden plants. This year, however, I have been running it through the winter and want some advice. I have been troubled with aphis on my lettuce, cabbage plants, carnations and Sprengerii. I have fumigated with tobacco stems, and the smoke injured my cabbage plants, lettuce, heliotropes, snapdragons, asters, petunias and some other stock. Will you tell me what is best to use, and when and how to use it? Would Sulpho Tobacco soap be the proper thing with which to spray lettuce and cabbage plants? I sprayed the cabbage plants with Paris green and it did not kill the aphis.

N. V. C.

Tobacco stems as a fumigant are now almost obsolete. They are far more liable to burn the foliage than other fumigants and will surely do so if allowed to blaze; in addition, they leave an offensive odor and render vegetables and flowers unfit to use for forty-eight hours. Try one of the paper nicotine fumigants. These are safe and clean to use and leave little odor. Most of the vegetable growers now use hydrocyanic acid gas in their lettuce houses and find it safe and reliable. Spraying vegetable crops is not to be recommended, but it is all right for many flower crops.

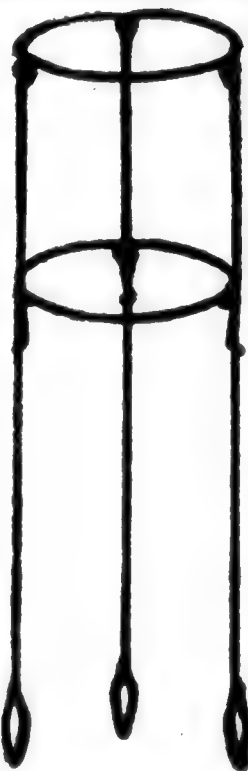

Sulpho Tobacco soap is good for mildew, but not for aphis. Paris green and other poisonous sprays are all right for leaf-eating caterpillars, but are worthless against aphides, which must be killed through suffocation by a soap, nicotine or spray. If you should use hydrocyanic acid gas, it is well to remember that this is a most deadly gas and only careful and responsible persons should use it. It does little or no injury when applied where the temperature is low, say 40 to 50 degrees at night, but with a higher temperature, also later in the season, danger of damage is greatly increased. Some plants, such as snapdragons and heliotropes, are quite susceptible to injury from hydrocyanic acid gas, but are not harmed in the least by the tobacco papers.

Fortunate is the man who can say that he has plenty of business. Others look to him to learn how they, too, can reach that prosperous condition—especially when they find out that 30 cents a week was the total price of that prosperity. Paper Pots and Dirt Bands on plants raised in Square Paper Pots than on plants raised in clay pots of same size.

There were 456 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch Square Paper Pots and 105 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch clay pots.

NUMBER OF STEMS IN BLOSSOM

	June 9	June 20	June 27
On 40 plants from clay pots.....	45	47	121
On 40 plants from paper pots.....	105	229	456

When set in the field May 15th, the root systems of the plants from the 4-inch square paper pots were 4-inch cubes (64 cubic inches of soil and roots) and from the 4-inch clay pots the root systems contained 31 cubic inches of soil and roots (the amount that a 4-inch clay pot holds).

The third count of blossoms was made June 27th, 42 days after the plants had been set in the field.

The plants from the square paper pots were then more than twice as large and vigorous as those raised in clay pots.

All plants raised in square paper pots are larger and more vigorous than those raised in clay pots, because they have about double root room for the same size pots.

Measure the two pots and you will find that the 4-inch square paper pot holds as much soil as two 4-inch clay pots.

It is the same with square dirt bands, which are square paper pots without bottoms (the bottoms being furnished by old newspapers spread on the bench).

The theory that it is only necessary to have a big top to the plant has been proved misleading.

There must be a big root system to push the top or the plant will grow slow and small.

Try some square paper pots or dirt bands with your clay pots and see if you can afford to use any clay pots.

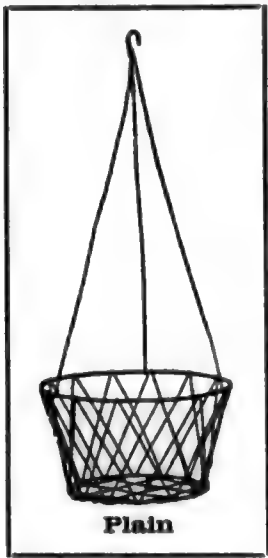

Some of the florists around Philadelphia are using large numbers of square dirt bands and paper pots.

We have shipped to Mr. P. B. Dilks, Bridesburg, Phila., Pa., 150,000 2-inch square dirt bands and 20,000 3-inch square dirt bands; to Mr. Geo. W. ## BUNYARD ON HELP PROBLEM.

In a letter to the Gardeners' Chronicle, London, Harry A. Bunyard has this to say of the opportunities for gardeners' assistants:

"A few years ago I wrote you relative to the scarcity of assistant gardeners and foremen for private estates in America, mentioning the fact that there were good openings for progressive young men willing to work and to adapt themselves to conditions here. At that time your editor took exception, stating that these young men should go to the British Colonies rather than come to the United States. However, a good many young men came over and found positions practically the day they landed. The immigration laws of the United States do not apply to gardeners, owing to the fact that they are classified as personal servants. This may be somewhat a reflection upon the profession, but it is nevertheless a fact. I am writing at this time to convey the same information, that there is a paucity here of young gardeners, more especially in the spring and fall. The wages run from $60 to $75 per month, without board, and $40 to $50 per month with board. The average cost for board and room here for gardeners is about $20 per month. I may at this time state that while gardening is not quite so far advanced as in the old country along some lines, there are immense private estates and florists' establishments that compare very favorably with those in Europe. I could cite many instances where assistant gardeners have grown up in this country and have now large commercial establishments themselves. It all depends upon the man. Should anyone wish to communicate with me on the subject I should be happy to answer. There are no openings for head gardeners, who are recruited here as in Europe from the foremen and assistant gardeners."

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

The Market.

Market conditions have improved somewhat. The weather has been fairly warm, with a reasonable amount of sunshine. Carnations are still plentiful and the stock is in better condition than it has been, being stronger of stem and of a better color. Roses are increasing tremendously in quantity and the stock is exceptionally good. The color is fine and the stems are longer than heretofore. Violets are still with us in quantity and are good for this time of year. It is expected that the crop will last until after Easter. Sweet peas are in fine shape and are plentiful. The Butterfly variety is especially fine and is bringing a good price. Bulbous stock is excellent and is selling well.

Various Notes.

W. C. Zimmermann was extra busy Saturday, March 28, with some large orders for the funeral of the daughter of A. F. Bues. Last week Mr. Zimmermann had the floral work for the funeral of Charles Hase, including a casket cover of lavender sweet peas and an unusually large number of designs. It was said that some of the decorations were the most beautiful that Milwaukee has seen for some time.

The Baumgarten Floral Co. has purchased an automobile and expects to be able to give its patrons quicker service in the future. The company is making preparations for a large Easter trade.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. has an exceedingly large lot of fine Easter lilies this year and reports heavy advance orders for this stock.

William Giebels, of Grand Rapids, Wis., was in Milwaukee March 25.

Mrs. F. P. Dilger is seriously ill at St. Joseph's hospital, but it is understood that she is improving.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Canada, was in Milwaukee March 27. He spent the day visiting the trade and left for home on Saturday. He was returning from an extensive trip.

Other visitors in this city were P. N. Obertin, of Kenosha, Wis., and A. G. Boomer, of Beaver Dam, Wis.

H. J. S.

Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, and Jacob Hess, of Omaha, spent a few hours here March 28 on their way home from the S. A. F. directors' meeting in Boston.

The Hole in the Iron Frame Cost Argument

THE hole in the argument of the man who claims that our Iron Frame house costs too much, is that he puts too much emphasis on the cost of materials, and too little on what it costs to erect them. After years of keeping careful cost records, we know that it actually costs less to erect our Half Iron Frame house than it does any all-cypress one; and that the erection cost of our complete Iron Frame is less than it is on the Half Iron Frame.

These things we know. The man who considers comparative costs of material and neglects comparative erection costs, leaves a hole in his argument for not buying our complete Iron Frame house that is almost big enough to crawl through.

The man who argues that "so and so is a good friend of mine, and even if his price is a bit higher I am going to give him the business," is liable to wake up some day and find out that the best friend you can have in business is Mr. Value Received.

STIRRING UP THE SALESMEN'S THINKERS

How Anderson, Buffalo retailer, got his sales force to study their work, by a prize for an essay on "Salesmanship"

ESSENTIALS OF SALESMANSHIP.

Prize Essay by E. C. Armbrust.

Appearance.—A great deal depends upon the appearance of a salesman. He should be neat in dress, modest in colors and avoid extremes in fashion, and, above all, should be clean shaved and well groomed.

Salutation.—A customer can be won at once by a cordial "Good morning" given by a clerk. It is important that one always greet customers pleasantly and have a genial smile for all, no matter how trying the situation previous to the encounter of a patron may have been. This is an art that can be learned. Never be short with or uninterested in your patron.

Interrogation.—Finding out what a patron wants should be done in a tactful and courteous way, without being blunt or appearing to be inquisitive. Avoid saying, "What do you want?" or "What is it for?" Rather say, "Would you like this, or that?" or "For what purpose would you like to use it, may I ask?"

Display of Goods.—Often a large sale can be made by one's being willing and ready to display goods that are not within sight. Be obliging and strive to please, showing patrons various things which might interest them and thus influence them to buy.

Suggestions Invaluable.

Suggestion.—We often meet people who do not know just what they want. It is within your power to suggest various combinations of kinds and colors of flowers that will appeal to your patrons. Study to make good suggestions; it is invaluable. Whenever you have a certain article of which you wish to dispose because of oversupply or other reasons, make your patrons want that identical thing by the power of suggestion.

Argumentation.—In discussing various color schemes, effects, combinations, or perhaps designs, the salesman should put up arguments that are sound, logical and convincing, at the same time watching for the psychological moment in which he can close the deal and make the sale to the best advantage.

Comparative Values.—Sometimes patrons ask the question, "How much do you think I ought to spend for this purpose?" If one knows the customer, one should suggest a value relative to the purse of the patron, if possible. Endeavor to make the sale as large as possible. By all means give patrons full value when filling orders; on the other hand, be honest with your employer, and do not give too much in value for the price received. Remember that your employer must make a reasonable profit on all sales, or lose in the end.

Dismissal of Patrons.—Be patient with all kinds of patrons, and never while you stand chatting with a friend about things other than strictly business.

Don't consider yourself too busy to wait on patrons.

Don't permit social affairs to make you neglect your duty to your work or employer.

Don't lose your temper. Perfect control of one's self under all circumstances is a mark of true gentlemanliness.

Don't waste time. Your employer pays you a salary, and he expects something of you in return. Find something to do, no matter what it is, and the influence on your fellow workmen will be beneficial.

Don't show partiality to any of your fellow workmen, but have an equal interest in all of them, and you will find that you will get along well with all.

Don't consider yourself above others who are employed with you, no matter how exalted your position may be. It pays to be humble.

Last but not least, be progressive. Don't be contented with what you know. Keep pushing forward to larger things.

THE ART OF SALESMANSHIP.

By Charles Felton.

We are here touching on one of the most important subjects in the commercial man's life, the art of selling, which, in my estimation, is sadly overlooked. It is a well-known fact that the big wholesale houses pay their traveling men enormous salaries and look to them solely for success.

These men, on account of their ability in putting up the goods to the customer in the most practical and interesting way, enable the houses to dispose of their merchandise.

Now, in the retail business the average salesman is a machine, with no detailed suggestions of the goods in stock to make that stock interesting to the public. In the case of goods not being in stock there is no attempt to put the retailer on the right side of the fence. Here is an example of conversation in stores I have worked in:

Customer: "Have you any American Beauties?"

Salesman: "No, I am sorry we haven't, but we have some extremely

THE TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Time was when, if one wanted to buy flowers, it was like the recipe for rabbit stew—"First catch your rabbit."

But not any more—the florist now has a handsome and attractive store on the main street.

Many of the progressive florists even have come to advertise their merchandise.

More than that—there even is a belief that some men sell more flowers than others can; that it isn't a matter of being a "born salesman," but a matter of study—of knowing one's business.

That's why florists everywhere are attacking the selling problem, studying its every angle, seeking to find out how to reach the public and, no less, how to convert awakened interest into sales, and then more sales.

That's why S. A. Anderson offered a prize to the one of his salesmen who should write the best essay on "Salesmanship."

And it's why The Review prints the essays.

appear bored or uninterested, nor give a sigh of relief when you have finally booked the order of a fastidious patron. After you have booked an order, make the patron feel that you would be glad to see him again, and thank him for the order. Never criticize a customer after he has left you or gone out of the store. It is a bad habit, and creates in the minds of the other clerks a dislike for that particular person; it is not the mark of true salesmanship.

Don'ts for Salesmen.

Don't select your customers. Be willing to wait on any of them, no matter how hard they are to please.

Don't allow patrons to wait for you

Negative Requires Tact.

Now, my contention is, the mere fact of the negative to your customer's demand requires a little tact. My own version on this particular point would be:

Customer: "Have you American Beauties?"

Salesman: "I am sorry, madam, but the American Beauties just now are extremely uncertain. Owing to the lack of sun, when we get them they are weak in stem and will not hold up any time. If you especially desire American Beauties we will do our utmost to procure them, even to telegraph to New York or Philadelphia."

By this time the customer has had an opportunity to see your stock, and you have shown your willingness to please. Then follow with your substitutes to the best advantage.

I believe in greeting each customer in a polite and cool way, not in rushing up as though he were leaving the store the next second. I do not believe in overdoing the meeting of your prospective buyer in a high-class store. It reminds one of a second-rate, cheap store. This is not just prejudice; customers become suspicious when goods are pressed on them with eager attentions.

Show Interest in Customers.

Many salesmen will show interest in their customers with whom they are acquainted outside of business. They should show that same feeling toward the mass. It is astonishing how, with a few words correctly placed, you can gain your customers' confidence. Once this is obtained, the rest is easy.

I am a great believer in will. If you approach your customer in a half-hearted manner, you do not get the best results, but if you approach that same customer with confidence in yourself, feeling that you are going to sell, you are at least a fighter in the game. This also applies to the "battle of life," in my experience.

The great Wanamaker will discharge an employee who, having been asked for an article not in stock, does not report immediately to the buyer, who procures it. However, we are not in the dry goods business, but I do believe in giving the salesman every possible chance to please his customer.

For instance, if sweet peas are asked for several times during the day the buyer should be notified and the stock procured if possible.

Suggestion in Selling.

I will now give an example of my method of selling one of our valentine baskets:

Customer: "I want some cut flowers for a valentine."

Salesman: "I have almost everything in stock—roses, lilies of the valfidence, which I contend is the main principle in salesmanship.

You will hear some salesmen say, "I am doing all the work I am paid for, and more." If you get that idea into your mind, and you feel that you are in that position, then comes the time to show your worth elsewhere. You are either overestimating your ability or your employer is not recognizing you.

In conclusion, we must not forget the business we are all interested in is a luxury and not a necessity of life; we therefore require as good if not better salesmen than any other retail trade.

THE SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN.

By Stephen Mahoney.

The work of a salesman in the florists' business is essentially different from that in all other trades. A few of the important points in this connection are necessary for an intelligent discussion of the subject:

1. The florists' business is as yet in its infancy.

2. Plants and cut flowers are the product of cultivated nature.

3. The goods or materials for sale are perishable.

To get the desired results as a salesman, it is first necessary to make a quick analysis of the customer you are about to approach. The results will largely depend upon your ability to explain the merits of the goods for sale in relation to the purpose for which the customer wishes to make the purchase.

As the florists' business is still in the process of being developed, it is easy to understand that a successful salesman is one who can and does perform the part of an educator, daily educating more people to the appreciation of flowers, bringing the logical result, an increased demand. This will be accomplished only by a capable explanation of our second point: Plants and cut flowers are the product of cultivated nature.

Give Reasons for Suggestions.

Simply telling the customer that this particular plant is beautiful, or that this basket is handsome, or that these particular flowers will make an exquisite or magnificent table decoration, will convince few people, however true

Salesman: "We find the demand for these plant baskets greater every year, owing to their lasting so much longer than cut flowers and their practicability for further use after the flowers have died."

I know numerous other ways of making sales, and there are thousands of opportunities, in our business especially, to thereby gain customers' con-the statements may be. A plant will generally appear beautiful to a customer just to the degree that a salesman makes it clear that this particular plant is most appropriate for this particular time of the year, or explains the possible future of the plant when it receives the proper care.

A customer will readily acknowledge how handsome a basket really is if his attention is drawn to the wonderful harmony of color or, in some cases, to the striking contrasts of color. Flowers should always be explained from the existing lines of art. The beauty of a basket will be made clearer by a detailed explanation of the quality of the flowers as well as of the quality of the basket itself.

A customer will accept your suggestions for a table decoration usually to the degree that you make it clear why you make such suggestions. This will be possible if you have a knowledge of the size and shape of the table to be decorated. The salesman will then be in a position to explain why he suggests certain flowers and how they should be arranged to secure the best effects. A customer will have confidence to the extent that a salesman proves his self-reliance, which is unconsciously expressed by a thorough knowledge of the material to be used. This brings us to the third point, that the goods or materials for sale are perishable.

Consider Stock on Hand.

The salesman who has, through a diplomatic way, found out for what purpose a customer wishes to make a purchase, will immediately be in a position to make proper suggestions from the stock at his disposal. A successful florist salesman is one who considers the importance of this point, because, with the best of care and under the most favorable conditions, some stock is sure to be a dead loss. An unexpected change in the weather, which results in a slump in the market for a day or two, will necessitate the rapid moving of certain stock. On the other hand, an unexpected rush in business will put a premium on certain stock. These changes or fluctuations are carefully watched by all successful salesmen.

This paper was not written for the purpose of outlining any stereotyped method for selling flowers, for, in fact, no two customers can be treated exactly alike, with the same results.

The proper filling of all orders as well as quick and timely delivery will have considerable to do with the customer's return and his feeling toward the salesman. Therefore, it can be easily seen that a successful florist salesman cannot wholly depend upon his own resources, but must have the harmonious coöperation of all the other departments in the business.

DUDLEY'S FUNERAL DESIGNS.

Funeral work provides steady business for the florist; it also provides him with an exceedingly profitable business when the pieces for one funeral are of the number and quality of those shown in the accompanying illustration. These are the pieces furnished by Charles P. Dudley, of Parkersburg, W. Va., for the funeral of the late Thomas Hawks, secretary of the Anglo-American Oil Co., the London branch of the Standard Oil Co. Roses and carnations were largely used, and Easter lilies, callas, sweet peas and valley to a less extent.

PALMER'S PRIZE TABLE.

Out of the twelve entries at the Boston spring show, the table decoration of Fred E. Palmer, of Brookline, which is shown in the illustration, was selected as the winner of the first prize by the society ladies who acted as judges of this class. The table, laid for eight covers, was effectively got up, and had for its principal components daffodils and Acacia pubescens.

PLANTS FOR FUNERALS.

In The Review of March 19 we noticed an inquiry concerning the use of blooming plants for funerals. We have sold azaleas, hydrangeas, lilies and palms for funerals. They are especially desirable when well done and always please the family. The great drawback to their use is the delivery, as it is hard to handle both plants and funeral pieces in a rush. We have also used palms and ferns for decorating around the casket, at the home and also at the cemetery, but the latter is not advisable on account of the danger from frost.

SCALE ON BOSTON FERNS.

We have found some ferns which are infested with a sort of small white scale, and the leaves so infested turn yellow. Can you give us any information as to just what kind of scale this is, and what can be done to get rid of it? We are sending you a sample frond.

D. F. C.

The specimen fern frond forwarded with this query was badly infested with a scale insect that is extremely partial to Boston ferns and other nephrolepis, and one that will ruin plants rapidly. If the trouble is confined to a few plants, I would burn them promptly in the furnace, but if the insects have spread about, then the next best thing would be to go over the lot carefully and cut out the bad fronds, after which the plants should be either sprayed or dipped, preferably the latter, in a 1-to-50 solution of tobacco extract and water. This treatment should be given weekly for three or four weeks at least. If the plants are protected from the sun after the dipping, they are less liable to suffer from the tobacco treatment.

Negative Requires Tact.

Now, my contention is, the mere fact of the negative to your customer's demand requires a little tact. My own version on this particular point would be:

Customer: "Have you American Beauties?"

Salesman: "I am sorry, madam, but the American Beauties just now are extremely uncertain. Owing to the lack of sun, when we get them they are weak in stem and will not hold up any time. If you especially desire American Beauties we will do our utmost to procure them, even to telegraph to New York or Philadelphia."

HYBRID TEAS IN THE GARDEN

Development of the Class.

In the preceding installment George H. Peterson briefly discussed the development of the hybrid tea roses from the days of the origination of La France to the present, and gave a short list of the most generally successful varieties. He now takes up the care of these roses in the garden:

Proper Method of Planting.

Now the question arises, what shall we do to enjoy the hybrid tea rose continuously during summer and fall? In the first place, a site for the planting should be selected, well away from trees or shrubbery, and at least a few feet away from buildings. The bed, for best results, should be well in the open, where it will get sun for at least half the day and yet be somewhat sheltered from the wind of fiercest storms. The bed or beds should have at least fifteen to eighteen inches of good, rich soil, well manured, including an application of bone, all of which should be thoroughly mixed through the soil and not left in layers. Any good garden soil can be made to grow fine hybrid tea roses, but remember that the rose delights in a rich, moist soil, so if there is some clay in it, so much the better. The careful grower may plant his roses in the fall, but the average planter in New England will find early spring, before deciduous growth begins, the best time; and the earlier this planting is done, the better will be the first crop of blooms, which should follow in about two months from time of planting. In order to receive one's plants on time and to get the best, the order should be placed with your grower weeks or even months in advance. In handling the plants after their arrival, care should be taken to expose the roots to the air as little as possible, i. e., in case of dry, clear weather. Do not crowd and double up the roots into a small hole, but spread them out naturally, and when the roots are covered, tread the ground firmly about each plant with the foot. After setting, the plant should be pruned severely, leaving the canes only from three to six inches long, according to strength, the weak shoots being pruned closest. If planting is done early, while the ground is still moist, little or no watering will be required until the plants begin to leaf out. From that time on, however, frequent waterings should be given during dry spells of weather, since the rose, as mentioned before, delights in moisture.

Each new strong shoot will produce usually three or four buds, all of which, except the terminal one, should be pinched off as soon as they can be taken hold of; and if this is done, one can have glorious roses beginning the first June after planting.

Insect Foes.

As we all know, the rose has its peculiar diseases and insect foes, but in this day of bugs and blight, what plant has not? As the shoots appear there will often be found upon the tender ends a number of little green, lice-like insects called aphides. These do not eat the plant, but live by suction, and while, consequently, they cannot be successfully poisoned, yet they can be killed by contact. The fumes of tobacco are fatal to this insect, and outdoors this is best applied in the form of tobacco water or fresh tobacco dust sprinkled upon the plants and will cause no injury to the latter, even though heavily applied.

A little later, green worms will appear on the foliage. These can be destroyed by using freshly powdered white hellebore, which is also harmless to the plant. In June the rose chafer, or rose bug, makes its appearance—a brownish, hard-shelled, flying insect, the worst sinner of them all. Hand-picking into a little pan of kerosene is the most effective way of destroying this insect, since it does not appear until the flowers are open and anything strong enough to kill it would ruin the petals on which it feeds.

Mildew and Blackspot.

Two of the chief diseases to which the rose is subject are mildew and blackspot. These, however, can be controlled by spraying with sulphide of potassium and Bordeaux mixture. I would recommend each grower to possess a good general work on rose culture.

While there are some difficulties in the way, yet these are often largely magnified, and if one has fairly good soil and strong, vigorous plants to start with, little trouble need be experienced. Insect foes and diseases always prey chiefly upon the weak, both in plant and animal life. With a little earnest effort one can be rewarded with an abundance of roses in his garden, often equaling the finest product from under glass, and that this can be so enjoyed we have to thank those who by patient effort and through many discouragements have wrought so wonderfully in the development of the hybrid tea rose of today.

AN ILLINOIS GROWER.

It was eight months ago that Frank P. Brigham rented the Fairview Greenhouses of the Eldredge estate, at Belvidere, Ill. The change, however, did not affect the management of the establishment, for Mr. Brigham had been in charge of the greenhouses for three years and had everything running in good order. It merely put Mr. Brigham in a position to enjoy a larger share of the profits. Not satisfied, he is still trying to increase the returns, having no fear of his ability to cope with the income tax. Everything is done to raise the standard of the roses, carnations, snapdragons and Easter lilies which he sends to the Chicago market. The houses shown in the illustration are all 225 feet long and form a part of the 60,000 feet of glass in the range. The stock is in fine shape just now and is always in condition for inspection by visitors, who are heartily welcomed by Mr. Brigham.

"CONSIDER THE LILIES."

"How they grow. They toil not; neither do they spin; yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Although these are not the bright-hued flowers that made Solomon's haberdashery seem modest by comparison, "considering the lilies" was a pleasing occupation to the three gentlemen whom the camera man caught in his picture. Solomon was no more interested in his thousand wives than are these three in their thousands of lilies. First, on the left, there is Charles Plumb, of Detroit, who owns the greenhouse, and the lilies. Close to him stands A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., Chicago, who supplied the bulbs, who has just handed Mr. Plumb a copy of his order for bulbs to bloom in 1915, Mr. Plumb evidently being engaged in scanning the prices closely. And at the right is Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, whose task it is to complete the season's job by turning Mr. Plumb's crop into cash.

These are giganteum lilies. Mr. Plumb makes a point of having some to cut practically every day in the year and as an indication of the magnitude of the lily business it will interest some people to know that he is using 100,000 bulbs this year.

BAILEY'S NEW CYCLOPEDIA.

["The Standard Cyclopaedia of Horticulture," by L. H. Bailey. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Volume I, containing 602 pages, with hundreds of illustrations in the text, and twenty full-page plates, four of which are colored. Price per volume, strongly and neatly bound in cloth, $6.]

This is the first volume of the new edition of Professor Bailey's horticultural cyclopaedia; it is the first one-sixth of a work which has for some time been eagerly awaited by hosts of the users of the older cyclopaedia, who have sworn by Bailey—not profanely—for many years. The term "new edition," however, may be misleading, since it often signifies simply a reprint of an old edition, with little or no revision. Such a notion of a new edition would be as far as possible from giving justice to this new cyclopaedia. The first volume of the work bears sufficient evidence of the truth of the publishers' statement, that "this is not merely a revised edition of Bailey's old cyclopaedia, but is really a new work from start to finish, with much new matter both in the way of text and illustrations, while even the old matter that has been retained has been rewritten." The new cyclopaedia, when completed, will consist of six volumes, instead of the former four, and "will come from the press," the publishers say, "as rapidly as manufacturing conditions will permit."

On being introduced, either to a person or a book, it is well, of course, to give due attention to the name of the new acquaintance, since names are always important and sometimes specially suggestive. Please take note, then, that this new work, though it is the rightful successor to Bailey's "Cyclopaedia of American Horticulture," has not inherited the old name, but has received a new name to befit its new character and its present position. And the new name, "The Standard Cyclopaedia of Horticulture," appears to be perfectly suitable. It seems proper that the word "American" should be dropped from the name, since the new work, though still American, is also much more than American; it may truthfully be said to be universal or world-wide in its scope. Two causes—the increasing use in America of imported species of plants, and the American acquisition of distant islands, with their peculiar forms of vegetation—have combined to induce Professor Bailey to give larger space in his new cyclopaedia to the discussion of foreign species. And is it not right, too, that the word "Standard" should become a part of the new name? After Bailey's cyclopaedia, during a period of fourteen years, has established its position as a standard authority, there is surely no immodesty in the appropriation of the title "Standard," especially since the new work is both bigger and better than the old one.

In the office of The Review, for instance, whatever other works of reference may be available, Bailey's cyclopaedia has been the supreme authority, the last and decisive word, in every case of doubt or dispute. It has been "the rule of faith and practice," from which no member of the editorial staff could diverge without danger of re-

While there are some difficulties in the way, yet these are often largely magnified, and if one has fairly good soil and strong, vigorous plants to start with, little trouble need be experienced. Insect foes and diseases always prey chiefly upon the weak, both in plant and animal life. With a little earnest effort one can be rewarded with an abundance of roses in his garden, often equaling the finest product from under glass, and that this can be so enjoyed we have to thank those who by patient effort and through many discouragements have wrought so wonderfully in the development of the hybrid tea rose of today.

AN ILLINOIS GROWER.

It was eight months ago that Frank P. Brigham rented the Fairview Greenhouses of the Eldredge estate, at Belvidere, Ill. The change, however, did not affect the management of the establishment, for Mr. Brigham had been in charge of the greenhouses for three years and had everything running in good order. It merely put Mr. Brigham in a position to enjoy a larger share of the profits. Not satisfied, he is still trying to increase the returns, having no fear of his ability to cope with the income tax. Everything is done to raise the standard of the roses, carnations, snapdragons and Easter lilies which he sends to the Chicago market. The houses shown in the illustration are all 225 feet long and form a part of the 60,000 feet of glass in the range. The stock is in fine shape just now and is always in condition for inspection by visitors, who are heartily welcomed by Mr. Brigham.

"CONSIDER THE LILIES."

"How they grow. They toil not; neither do they spin; yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Although these are not the bright-hued flowers that made Solomon's haberdashery seem modest by comparison, "considering the lilies" was a pleasing occupation to the three gentlemen whom the camera man caught in his picture. Solomon was no more interested in his thousand wives than are these three in their thousands of lilies. First, on the left, there is Charles Plumb, of Detroit, who owns the greenhouse, and the lilies. Close to him stands A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., Chicago, who supplied the bulbs, who has just handed Mr. Plumb a copy of his order for bulbs to bloom in 1915, Mr. Plumb evidently being engaged in scanning the prices closely. And at the right is Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, whose task it is to complete the season's job by turning Mr. Plumb's crop into cash.

These are giganteum lilies. Mr. Plumb makes a point of having some to cut practically every day in the year and as an indication of the magnitude of the lily business it will interest some people to know that he is using 100,000 bulbs this year.

BAILEY'S NEW CYCLOPEDIA.

["The Standard Cyclopedic of Horticulture," by L. H. Bailey. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Volume I, containing 602 pages, with hundreds of illustrations in the text, and twenty full-page plates, four of which are colored. Price per volume, strongly and neatly bound in cloth, $6.]

This is the first volume of the new edition of Professor Bailey's horticultural cyclopedia; it is the first one-sixth of a work which has for some time been eagerly awaited by hosts of the users of the older cyclopedia, who have sworn by Bailey—not profanely—for many years. The term "new edition," however, may be misleading, since it often signifies simply a reprint of an old edition, with little or no revision. Such a notion of a new edition would be as far as possible from giving justice to this new cyclopedia. The first volume of the work bears sufficient evidence of the truth of the publishers' statement, that "this is not merely a revised edition of Bailey's old cyclopedia, but is really a new work from start to finish, with much new matter both in the way of text and illustrations, while even the old matter that has been retained has been rewritten." The new cyclopedia, when completed, will consist of six volumes, instead of the former four, and "will come from the press," the publishers say, "as rapidly as manufacturing conditions will permit."

On being introduced, either to a person or a book, it is well, of course, to give due attention to the name of the new acquaintance, since names are always important and sometimes specially suggestive. Please take note, then, that this new work, though it is the rightful successor to Bailey's "Cyclopedia of American Horticulture," has not inherited the old name, but has received a new name to befit its new character and its present position. And the new name, "The Standard Cyclopedic of Horticulture," appears to be perfectly suitable. It seems proper that the word "American" should be dropped from the name, since the new work, though still American, is also much more than American; it may truthfully be said to be universal or world-wide in its scope. Two causes—the increasing use in America of imported species of plants, and the American acquisition of distant islands, with their peculiar forms of vegetation—have combined to induce Professor Bailey to give larger space in his new cyclopedia to the discussion of foreign species. And is it not right, too, that the word "Standard" should become a part of the new name? After Bailey's cyclopedia, during a period of fourteen years, has established its position as a standard authority, there is surely no immodesty in the appropriation of the title "Standard," especially since the new work is both bigger and better than the old one.

In the office of The Review, for instance, whatever other works of reference may be available, Bailey's cyclopedia has been the supreme authority, the last and decisive word, in every case of doubt or dispute. It has been "the rule of faith and practice," from which no member of the editorial staff could diverge without danger of rebuke, and danger of excommunication if the sin were unrepentantly persisted in.

But, though unceasing care has been used to make the cyclopedia botanically accurate, a no less constant aim has been to make it as practical as possible, as helpful as possible to those engaged in commercial horticulture. The cultural directions have been written by experts or specialists, or at least have been submitted to practical growers and other adepts for final criticism and correction, when specially trained writers could not be secured. Moreover, the importance or insignificance of the different species of plants with reference to "the trade," the value or worthlessness of the species as trade products, has had much to do in determining the amount of consideration that these species have received in the cyclopedia. Along with the need of botanical accuracy and completeness, the needs of the horticultural trades have been steadily borne in mind.

It is no exaggeration, then, to state that Bailey's new work is the best cyclopedia obtainable for all who are connected, either remotely or intimately, as amateurs or professionals, with horticultural pursuits. It is best for the student of botany, who is investigating the subject in a purely scientific way; best for the commercial grower who likes to be well informed on matters in general and his own trade in particular, and best for the other sort of commercial grower, who does not bother himself particularly about hunting for any information except such as will give him immediate help in producing a better crop.

The entire work of six volumes is for sale by The Review on the same favorable terms as are offered by the publishers.

In the private gardeners' vase arrangement, Wm. Kleinheinz took first, with a neat arrangement of Mrs. Ward and White Wonder, arranged with Asparagus Sprengeri, in a tall American Beauty vase. Thos. Aitchison took second, with a vase made up entirely of Beacon, while D. S. Miller took third with a typical English arrangement.

In the General Classes.

I noted among the general classes:

Matchless was easily the center of attraction. It won out in the 100 white class and took the A. C. S. silver medal as the best vase in the entire 100 section. This variety is certainly going onto the market with a fine record behind it.

There was a white seedling entered by the Growers' Cut Flower Co., of New York, which showed up finely. The only shortcoming I could discover was the name Prosperity in its pedigree, a hard thing for a newcomer to live down.

Mrs. C. W. Ward was easily the leader in its color. It not only took first in its class, but it also took the A. C. S. bronze medal as the second best vase in the 100 section, although it took nine men to decide between it and Alice Coombs.

Enchantress Supreme took first in the 100 flesh-pink class, followed closely by Laura Weber. The first-named is already well known, and the latter will likely be as well known in the next few years. Pink Delight lost out on color, the edge of the blooms being light, giving the flower a bicolor effect.

Philadelphia Pink ran second in the deep pink class, which speaks well for it, as it had traveled all the way from Detroit.

Benora is the only white variegated worth growing, and it seems well able to sustain its class. Everyone seems to do it well.

Rosette was shown in fine shape in the fifty class, every vase holding up well to the end of the show.

Northport Better Than Ever.

Northport was shown better than I have ever seen it staged.

Gloriosa was less conspicuous than usual. A. A. Pembroke, of Beverly, Mass., showed a fine vase of 100 blooms. There seems to be no complaint of the quality of this variety, but the complaint of "poor plant in the field seems general."

Beacon was, as usual, preëminent among the reds, although there was a fine vase of fifty Commodore shown.

White Wonder and White Enchantress were both shown in good shape, with the former leading.

Alice Coombs certainly has a fine color; in fact, I could not see a weak spot about it. If it is a good grower and bloomer, it should make a welcome addition to the list. There is a place for a good variety of this color.

Princess Dagmar, as usual, made a fine showing. Its rich color appealed to the masses. A fine vase of our old friend, Crimson Glow, was a surprise even to its disseminator.

There was a fine looking, large white variegated, named Majestic, which ought to take with the trade. It was one of the largest varieties in the entire exhibition.

Pink Sensation, Good Cheer, Champion and Yellow Prince came all the way from La Fayette, Ind., but arrived in good condition and attracted a great deal of attention. A. F. J. Baur.

CARNATIONS AT NATIONAL SHOW.

Novelties Lacking.

The thing that impressed itself on one's mind after the first look around at the New York flower show was, the last of March is not the best time to hold a carnation show if one wants to include the novelties along with the standard varieties. There was a splendid showing of the "divine flower" nevertheless, and a few of the new varieties were there. The new ones, however, are conceded to be the most interesting part of all our exhibitions, and in this respect the New York show was lacking. Another thing that struck one in looking over the display was the meager showing of the Enchantress varieties. Whereas, only a few years ago, every open class in white, flesh and rose-pink was made up largely of these varieties, there were few of them shown here, except in the classes calling for them, and in only one or two instances did they get inside the money. That means progress; because the Enchantress family has not gone back, but the other varieties have come up and passed them. The one shining light in that group was Enchantress Supreme. This variety bids fair to prolong the usefulness of the Enchantress type at least a few years.

Large Displays Unrivaled.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the whole carnation display was the entries in the class calling for a display covering 150 square feet of space. Three of the most expert decorative artists entered the competition, and a display such as has never been equaled in any carnation exhibition held in this country was set up. Any one of the three would have easily beaten anything shown previously along this line. They showed extensive preparation and forethought, and these, coupled with real artistic skill in the arrangement, brought out pleasing effects that many thought impossible with the carnation. And each was so different from the others that it again showed the carnation to be a more versatile flower than it is generally conceded to be. The group winning the blue ribbon was set up by the Cottage Gardens Co., who were assisted in the arranging by J. H. Small & Sons. It consisted of a large center mound made of Mrs. C. W. Ward. On each corner were smaller mounds made of Beacon and Matchless. Besides these, there were vases of a flesh-pink sport of Mrs. Ward and the other varieties already mentioned. For green there was nothing used except Adiantum Farleyense. This whole exhibit gave one a sense of massive richness.

Philadelphia Takes Second.

The second prize exhibit was made up entirely of the new Philadelphia Pink variety and was arranged by A. T. Bunyard, of New York. It produced a light, airy effect that was most pleasing. The center piece was a large Phoenix Ræbelenii. From this there radiated twelve arms of various lengths, which each held a vase of blooms. The pedestal holding the phoenix was draped with Farleyense plants and deep green velvet, which was brought down as a floor covering, and on which were arranged a number of vases of blooms.

The third group was arranged by S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo. This consisted of a double arch, which was topped by a large vase of Gloriosa. At each of the four corners of the arch was a vase of blooms. At each of the corners of the table was built a small mound of Farleyense and carnation blooms. The arrangement was exceedingly good, but was prevented from giving the best effect by the tables being too high.

In the commercial vase arrangement, F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, put up one of his usual high-class arrangements. It was made up of Beacon, Mrs. C. W. Ward and White Wonder.

THE CENSUS OF FLORICULTURE.

The United States Census Bureau has just issued a bulletin containing the census of agriculture for 1910, including the census of "flowers and plants." The figures showing the area under glass in 1909 were published in The Review for May 1, 1913, the first time that this data had appeared in print. The number of establishments reporting and the value of products for 1909 was made public in July of 1912. The complete figures now available show comparisons with ten years before, also acreage, which means nothing in this business, and the average value of products per establishment, which means even less, although it may be of interest to note that the government has figured out that the average value of the products of the greenhouse establishments in the United States in 1899 was $2,132, and in 1909, $3,286, the total value of the greenhouse products having increased in the ten years from $18,758,864 to $34,872,329, or 85.9 per cent.

The principal point of interest in the tables, however, lies in the fact that it is shown that of the 10,614 establishments from which reports were obtained to make the total, 3,170 had annual sales of less than $250; to be exact, average sales of $127.73. Establishments reporting products for the year 1909 valued at $250 or more numbered 7,444, the total value of their products being $34,467,440, or an average per establishment of $4,630.

These figures go to show what many have long believed, that the census of floriculture does not in any way truly represent the industry; that large numbers not actually engaged in the business are counted in the totals, while by no means all the actual commercial establishments are enumerated. The figures are, of course, five years old, but the most unsatisfactory feature of them is the statement that the tables include 3,170 establishments reporting an average value of products for the year of only $127.73. These people may be farmers; they certainly are not florists.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

The Hardy Garden.

Outdoor operations of all kinds will crowd now. The winter has been a dragging one and carried well into the lap of spring. This makes it necessary to crowd work unduly. It leaves a short shipping season for the nurseries, and delays in the receipt of stock are unavoidable. Each year I have advised more fall planting. The nurseries would appreciate fall orders; it insures the customers getting fresh stock and more promptly than in the spring rush. Furthermore, fall stock will, in nine cases out of ten, beat spring planted stock. Nevertheless the old idea that it is necessary to wait until spring before doing any planting dies hard, and probably florists' customers, in the majority of cases, prefer spring planting. But that it is a big mistake to let everything slide until spring, and then only half do it, will hardly admit of any argument. Anyone who has tried fall planting of hybrid perpetual roses, herbaceous plants, fruit trees and deciduous shrubs and compared them with spring results, must admit that, with a few exceptions, fall is the best planting season. Some day people will better appreciate this fact.

Pruning Hardy Climbers.

All deciduous hardy climbers, such as wistarias, begonias, aristolochias, vitis, actinidias and clematis, should be pruned now. The Kudzu vine, Pueraria Thunbergiana, makes a rapid growth. It should be cut back hard, as should Clematis paniculata. Begonias and wistarias also should be cut back hard once they have covered their required space. Loniceras, such as brachypoda, Halleana, Belgica and sempervirens, should have dead wood removed, but cutting back live wood will destroy the flowers. Hydrangea petiolaris and Schizophragma hydrangeoides, the climbing hydrangea, should not be cut back at all. Their beauty lies in their natural growth, and they are specially good for covering large cedar posts, dead trees which have been headed back, or living trees which do not cast too heavy a shade.

Hardy Perennials.

All winter mulch should be removed from hardy perennials and the ground stirred up. It is surprising how quickly the plants grow, once the ground is open. Fall is the best time for planting most of the perennials, but any work not done then should be completed now, and varieties of doubtful hardiness in the northern states, which require storing over winter, should be planted out now. These include incarvilleas, early flowering chrysanthemums, Japanese anemones, double helianthus, tritomas and a few other subjects.

Pansies.

The winter covering can safely be removed from pansies in the open. Heavy snow coverings are a benefit to these, and in many sections they have wintered unusually well. Plants in coldframes, if kept well watered and the sashes kept over them, will give flowers much earlier than the outdoor ones, and early flowers of this popular plant are always in demand. The same applies to such favorites as double daisies and myosotis. Where it is desired to get pansies and forget-me-nots along in good season, they can be planted in boxes or baskets and kept in a greenhouse. Use a dozen in a basket, which is a salable number for retail customers.

Bulb Beds.

Care must be taken in removing the covering from the tulip, narcissus and hyacinth beds, or many shoots will be broken. It is also wise not to remove all the mulch at once, as frequently cold, frosty winds come late in April and these pale yellow sprouts are more susceptible to injury than such as have been exposed all the time. Such bulbs as Hyacinthus candicans and montbretias can be planted now; also any lilies which may have been carried over winter in pots.

Deciduous Shrubs.

Few deciduous shrubs require pruning when in a dormant state, but such hydrangeas as paniculata grandiflora and arborescens are exceptions. Practically all other flowering shrubs should be pruned after they have flowered. If cut back now the flowering wood will be removed. Planting should be pushed ahead with vigor as soon as the ground has dried out sufficiently. Dig out ample holes, do not use manure about the roots, be sure all roots are well damped before filling in, and firm the soil thoroughly. Any manure is best applied as a top-dressing after planting. It is well to remember that roots as well as shoots are better cut back to some extent. This is particularly true of shrubs of large size; the larger the shrubs the more necessary it is to head them back well. All broken or mutilated roots should be cut clean away.

Left-Over Easter Stock.

Inquiries are frequent as to what to do with left-over Easter plants. Spiræas can be planted out in any good soil, and in two years they will have made big clumps which will probably need dividing into two or three, but which will beat any imported clumps in quality. Lilacs should be cut back well, removing foliage entirely. Planted out in an open, sunny spot, in rich soil, in two years they will have made splendid growths and will force well. Genistas are better thrown away unless it is desired to grow some on into large specimens. Azaleas should have flowers and seeds removed, should be pruned into a symmetrical shape and planted out where they can be watered in dry weather. These, if treated thus, will flower much more heavily than any imported ones. Acacias will require pruning back and must be kept in a cold pit for a few weeks longer; the same applies to ericas and boronias. Left-over bulbs are really not worth saving unless a flower bed requires some, in which case plant them out at any time. Rambler roses can be cut back close to the ground, when they will soon send up a fine crop of young shoots. Hybrid perpetuals can be planted without any pruning and will force well another season.

ALVIN, TEX.

The cool, late spring has held vegetation back several weeks later than usual. The weather bureau at Houston, twenty miles from here, reports that the average mean temperature for the month of March for this locality was lower only in 1892 and 1912 than it was for last month. As a result of this the cape jasmine crop is reported to be unusually late. We expect the largest crop we ever have had, but the supply for Decoration day will be limited, owing to the late season. Unless the weather during April and May is most favorable for their development, the crop will be too late for the day of best demand.

TOLEDO, O.*The Market.

Last week the trade was blessed with a pretty decent brand of weather, with the exception that the cold seems to hang on with dogged persistency. Trade was quite brisk in all lines. This is the great week that all florists have been looking forward to, and for which we have been making such strenuous preparations. Never in the history of the flower business here has potted bulbous stock been so plentiful and in such excellent condition. Plants of all kinds are abundant; many beautiful azaleas, hydrangeas, rhododendrons and lilies are gracing the display windows of leading shops. All that is necessary, as one florist expressed it, is the business. Much depends upon the weather, which is uncertain. There will be about enough lilies to supply the demand. Carnations are the only cut flowers that are scarce at the present writing.

Various Notes.

The death of Charles Koelker is recorded in this week's obituary column.

A party of Toledo florists made a trip to Mentor and Cleveland last week to see if they could not learn something to their advantage. In the party were Harry Heintz, John Helmar, Thomas Magee and Frank M. Schramm, of this city, and "F. T. D." Pochelon and Robert Rahaley, of Detroit. The first place visited was that of Merkel & Son, at Mentor, where the party saw some magnificent roses. The azaleas also were excellent.

Schramm Bros. have been making some changes in their greenhouses with a view to giving increased facilities for handling the greatest Easter business in the history of this long established business. A fine workroom has been completed and the cooler has been greatly enlarged. Ten extra helpers were engaged for this week. April 3 Frank M. Schramm and George B. Schramm visited the plant show held at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange at Detroit.

Miss Helen Patten has been having many difficulties of late in keeping up with her deliveries, due to the bad luck she has been having with her delivery car. Business has been lively at Miss Patten's.

If there is any reader of The Review who has a method of either catching or destroying experienced rats, let him inform John Barrow, who conducts a prosperous flower business on Detroit avenue. Mr. Barrow has been having all kinds of trouble lately with rodents, which seem to have a diabolical ingenuity in evading traps and poisons, but which love roots and plants. He claims his rats are the smartest rats in creation. A. C. K.

NEWPORT, R. I.

James McLeish, Jr., spent ten days in New York, where he went to attend the flower show.

Wadley & Smythe received an importation of sixty bundles and eleven boxes of plants and shrubs from Holland April 1.

James Watt has succeeded the late Paul Volquardson as head gardener at Mrs. W. G. Weld's estate. Mr. Watt removed his family from Manchester, Mass., last week.

Oscar Schultz lost a valuable horse last week, one of a pair just received from Boston. W. H. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.*The Market.

The outlook for Easter is particularly good, and it looks as if we are to have a most successful holiday, providing the weather conditions are favorable. From the reports of the growers it looks as though there will be all the potted plants that will be needed. Cut flowers promise to be plentiful, and good quality is practically assured. During the last week business has been quite good, but Palm Sunday trade was not so rushing as was expected, probably on account of the cold, snowy weather which has returned again. Stock has kept up well, as far as quality is concerned. Some good American Beauties are in the market; prices are reasonable and the demand good. Other grades of roses are of good, strong stem and sell well. Carnations are overplentiful, with quite a strong demand. Sweet peas are in fine condition, with good color and length of stem. They are selling well. Pansies, Cecile Brunner roses, daisies, mignonette, ten week's stocks and other fine flowers are much sought after for basket work. Violets are plentiful, but are getting smaller. There is a heavy demand for freesias. Lilies are plentiful, and valley is meeting all requirements. There are plenty of daffodils and jonquils.

Various Notes.

The Rochester Floral Co. has been making a specialty of boxes and baskets of cut flowers during the last week. Business is steadily increasing, and one always finds the store in a clean and well kept condition.

The florists opposite Mount Hope cemetery are doing a good business now that the weather has opened up some. Heavy business is looked for during the coming week.

There has been a noticeable let-up in funeral work the last few days with about all the florists. Some are preparing for emergency calls during the rush by making up a large number of galax and magnolia wreaths, to which a spray of flowers can easily be fixed.

Visitors last week included Mr. and Mrs. David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y.; E. R. Hyde, of Wayland, N. Y.; Mr. Bebb, of Geneva, N. Y., and E. J. Fancourt, of Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

George B. Hart's force has been extremely busy this last week and has already started working late evenings. They have been sending large shipments of lilies, etc., out of town. Mr. Hart says everything points to a record Easter, providing the weather is favorable. Another lady bookkeeper has been added to his office force.

J. B. Keller Sons have done good business lately, with a good counter trade. The window has been prettily arranged with vases of large Spencer sweet peas.

Fred Vick's greenhouses are looking quite gay at the present time, with a beautiful display of blooming plants and shrubs.

H. E. Wilson has been handling some good Pink Pearl rhododendrons, which sell readily. The supply of Dutch blooming bulbs is of good quality, particularly the hyacinths.

N. A. James has been busy with funeral work for two or three days. His greenhouse keeps him pretty well occupied. H. J. H.

DAYTON, O.*The Market.

Trade in the wholesale end of the business has been far better than in the retail end, as the wholesalers have been busy shipping plants while in bud. Owing to the fact that Easter comes so late this year, many of the growers complain that most of their hyacinths, daffodils and tulips will be "all in" for Easter. On the other hand, lilies seem to be a little slow, and after Easter, it is feared, there will be an overabundance. The complaint is general that the average height of the lilies will be between one and a half and two feet. Spiraeas are looking fine and are in good crop, while azaleas will be scarce. Carnations and roses are looking well and will give heavy cuts for Easter.

Up to the present time there has not been much evidence of spring, as the weather continues cool and mostly cloudy. April started in with a genuine April shower, accompanied by a heavy thunder storm and snow flurries.

Various Notes.

Mrs. T. M. Waters, of Eaton, O., was in town last week, buying stock for Easter.

M. Anderson spent the week end at his retail store in Cincinnati.

Elmer Jenkins is erecting another greenhouse, which he expects to devote to the growing of pot plants. He also states that he is going into the gladiolus business more heavily than ever this year.

Arthur Schmidt says that his tulips got ready to bloom before Easter.

It was reported in my last week's letter that a daughter had been born to Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Schaefer. Mr. Schaefer has since informed me that the daughter happened to be a son.

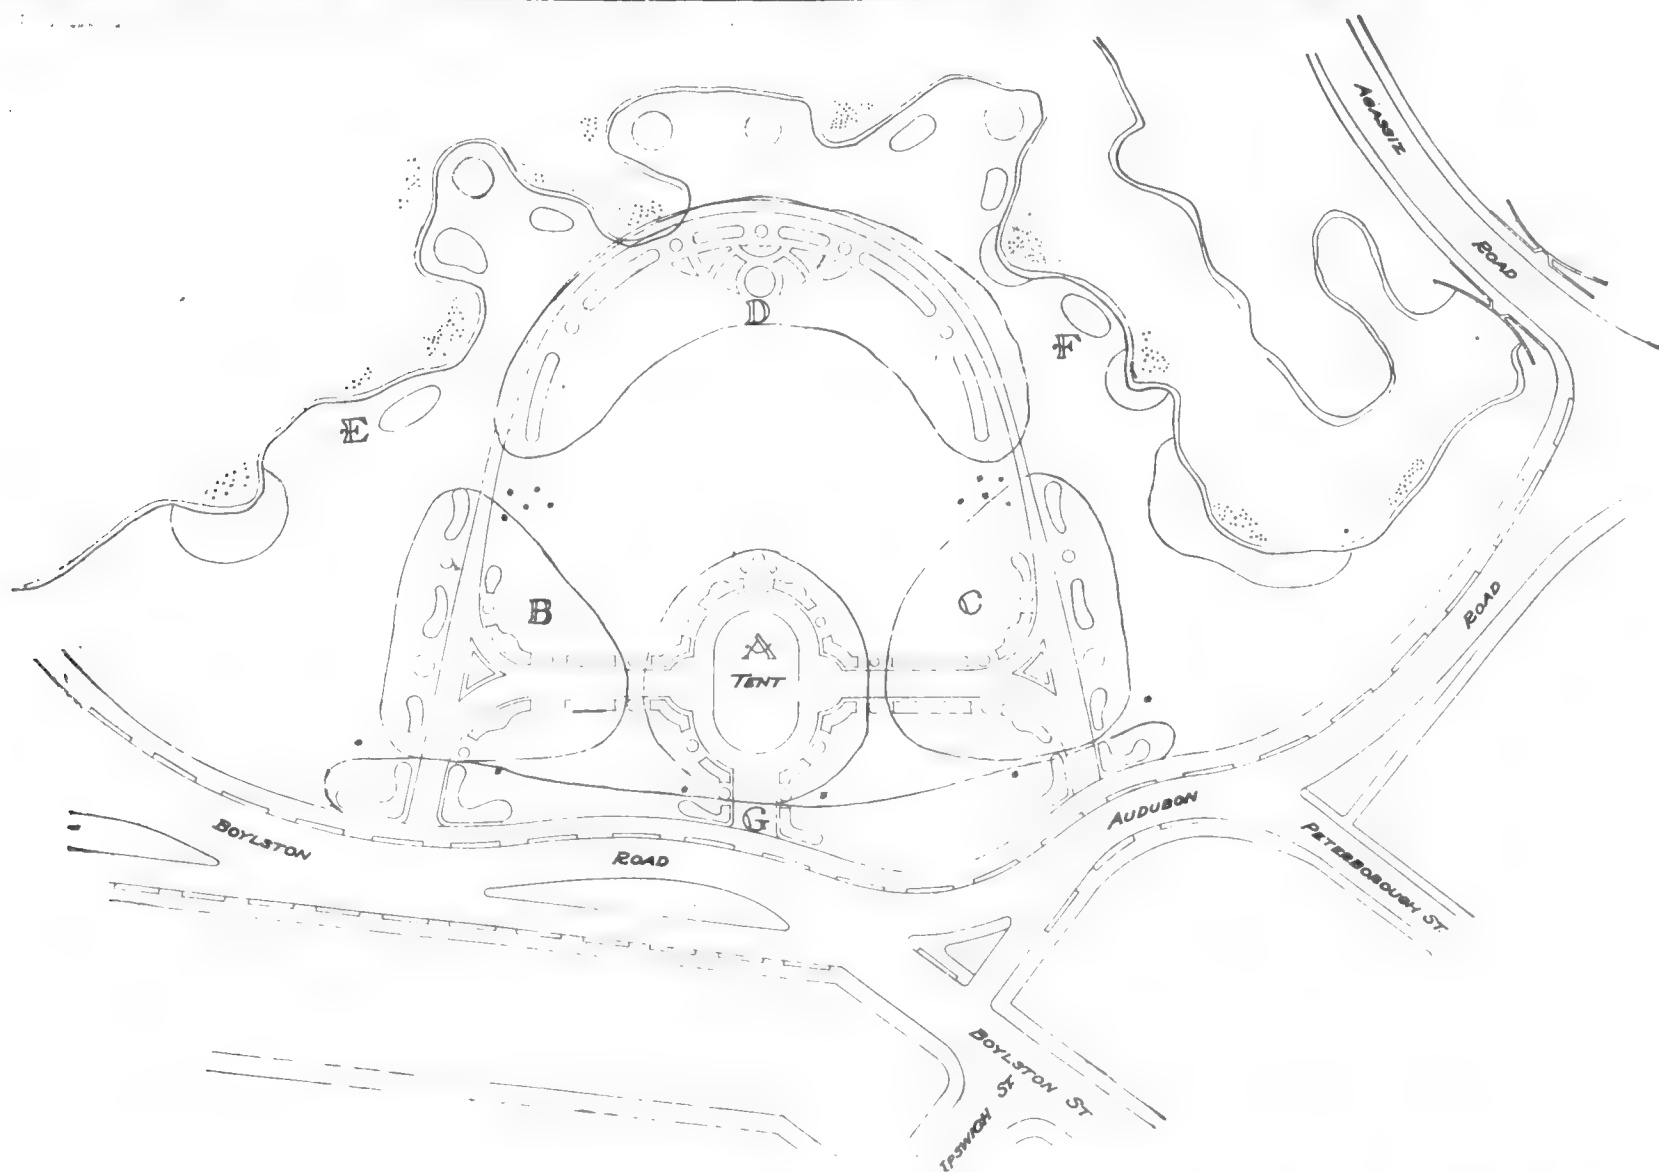

Herbert B. Maynard stopped in Dayton April 5, en route to Lima, O. While here he called on several of his acquaintances in the trade. He goes to Lima to accept a position as carnation grower at the Zetlitz greenhouses.

The Dayton Florists' Club held its monthly meeting and annual election of officers April 2, at J. F. Young's establishment, on East Fifth street. Geo. W. Bartholomew was elected president; Arthur Schmidt, vice-president, and Horace Frank, secretary and treasurer. Plans for the annual banquet of the club were left in the hands of the officers and the affair will take place soon after Easter. R. A. L.

Holyoke, Mass.—Hugh Clark has opened a store in the Phoenix building, 2227 Maple street. He makes a specialty of decorations. He started in this line at the Humphrey store here and later worked for large concerns in Kansas City and Chicago.

Slingerlands, N. Y.—Easter will find Fred Goldring well prepared with a full line of flowering stock. He has been fortunate, especially with a good batch of lilies. Miss Goldring had an exciting adventure at the time of the fire at Wellesley College, but fortunately escaped harm.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Sketch Showing the Site of the Convention Garden of the S. A. F., for the Boston Meeting in August.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN.

The convention garden committee, of which James B. Shea is chairman, and the park and recreation commission, of Boston, of which John H. Dillon is chairman, are sending out letters to round up the exhibitors who are going to use space in the convention garden, a plan of which is shown herewith. In order to carry out their purpose of making the exhibition the largest on record, those in charge are particularly desirous of getting an early start and, for that reason, of receiving prompt responses from exhibitors. A large number of inquiries have already been received and the expectations are for the largest display of the kind ever made in the country. The full support of the trade is desired to this end, and intending exhibitors should make their space requirements known to the committee at once.

The only charge will be for planting and care of plants throughout the season, which will be at the rate of 10 cents per square foot of space occupied. For a large area special arrangements can be made by consulting with the chairman. All the arrangements, grouping and control of the exhibits will be under the direction of the park and recreation department of the city of Boston and no exhibit may be removed until that department gives authority for such removal next autumn.

The tent space will be devoted to tender plants requiring protection from sun and wind. Space G is a space shaded by large trees and should be devoted to evergreens, shrubbery, etc. The other groups—A, B, C, D, E and F—are all open, level land, available for general exhibits. The small bays in the adjacent Fens pond bordering on sections E and F are admirably adapted to water gardening, semiaquatic and shore planting. Allotments will be made with reference to earliness of application, which, together with all inquiries and correspondence, should be addressed to James B. Shea, deputy commissioner, Department of Parks and Recreation, 33 Beacon street, Boston. It is the desire of the committee that all allotments be completed by May 1.

DIRECTORS' MEETING.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Florists at the Parker House, Boston, March 17 and 18, were present President Theodore Wirth, Vice-president Patrick Welch, Secretary John Young, Treasurer Wm. F. Kasting, Directors John K. M. L. Farquhar, Charles H. Totty, John A. Evans, August Poehlmann, Thomas Roland, J. A. Peterson and J. J. Hess; also W. F. Gude, the Washington representative, and George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee.

Mr. Farquhar and the other Boston members of the board had made every arrangement in advance, so that the work of the board was transacted without any delays or intermissions. Luncheon and dinner had been provided for in an adjoining room; so no time was lost in journeying to places of refreshment, and the meetings of the board were practically continuous. The local members reported in detail the progress already made towards carrying out the details of the convention and that for the outdoor planting exhibition a plot of ground containing about ten acres in the Back Bay section had been obtained and was being prepared and laid out for the use of the society.

It was decided that the outdoor planting exhibition should be known hereafter as the convention garden. It was decided that details connected therewith be left in the hands of the local committee. The price to be charged for space is to be not less than 5 cents per square foot and not to exceed 10 cents per square foot; as this plot of ground is in the park department, a charge for rental could not be made, and the 5 to 10 cents per square foot will be charged to the care and maintenance of the exhibit, carrying out the arrangement made with the authorities of Boston. It was necessary that the sum of $1,500 be deposited with the treasurer of Boston, to insure the city against any losses which may incur. Any profits that may be derived from the convention garden will be turned into the treasury of the society.

Awards for the exhibitors in the convention garden will be in the form of medals, certificates or diplomas; there will be no money prizes. Allotment of space and the management of the convention garden will be under the supervision of the advisory committee, but under the direct management of James B. Shea, deputy commissioner of parks. The president is authorized to appoint five judges for the convention garden.

Mechanics building was selected as the building in which to hold the indoor trade exhibition. In this building there will be 40,000 square feet of available space. The rules governing the exhibits and the prices for space are to be the same as charged at the convention in Minneapolis. The rule regarding signs was amended so that the official sign should not cost more than $3.

A preliminary program was presented by the committee appointed for the purpose, and the completion of it was left to the president, vice-president and secretary. It was decided to have a three-day business convention, the fourth day being set aside for entertainment.

Messrs. Roland, Farquhar and Hess were appointed a committee to consider the proper standardization of flower pots. This committee is to report at the meeting of the board of directors to be held in Boston before the next convention. It was recommended that the society join the L'Union Horticole Professionnelle Internationale, the fee being $10.

It was decided that the Hotel Copley-Plaza be selected as headquarters for the society during the time of the convention. The local committee will publish in the trade papers a list of all the other hotels, and rates, at a later date. Appropriations were made for different purposes for carrying on the work of the society for the present year. President Wirth appointed Charles E. Critchell chairman of the committee of sports.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were referred to an auditing committee and found to be correct. These reports had previously been audited by a firm of certified public accountants in Buffalo. The action of the treasurer in depositing the funds of the society in the different banks mentioned in his report was approved.

The question of affiliation was given careful consideration by the meeting, and George Asmus, W. F. Kasting and J. J. Hess were appointed a committee to devise plans for affiliation; such plans could then be presented to the different organizations, stating what the society would be willing to do towards bringing about affiliation. This committee is to report at the meeting of the board previous to the convention, mileage to be allowed the members of this committee for one meeting only, in a central city.

George Asmus gave a detailed report of the progress on the work being done towards the next national flower show, to be held in Philadelphia in 1916, and stated that he and the other members of the committee were on their way to Philadelphia to inspect the building where the next national flower show will be held.

It was decided that the public should not be admitted to the indoor trade exhibition which is to be held at the Mechanics building at the time of the convention.

Mr. Gude presented final resolutions as offered by his committee.

John Young, Sec'y.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

These weeks before Easter, how they do repeat themselves! Last week was no exception to the rule. From bad to worse the whole cut flower market slid, until it seemed the bottom had fallen out of it entirely. Friday and Saturday were the duller days of the week, and little, if any, improvement is anticipated until a day or two before Easter. American Beauties suffered the heaviest slump of all the roses, the finest of them selling as low as $15 per hundred. Every variety of rose felt the general depression. There was universal complaint by the retailers of lack of business. It is the same old story, repeated year after year and then forgotten, only this year is called the most unprofitable in a generation. Every wholesaler agreed that it was the duller week of the season.

Little advance in prices seems possible for the holiday. There is such an abundance of everything that the regular rise of other years seems more than doubtful. The novelties in roses, of course, will be in sufficient demand to absorb them all, and at good prices. There will probably be a surplus of Beauties. Carnations are also overabundant and prices low. In large quantities most excellent stock sold as low as $10 per thousand. Even for selected blooms $2 per hundred was the top price, and only a few of the season's novelties sold above that figure.

There is a great abundance of short-stemmed lilies in the market. These have been disposed of at low prices, but the long-stemmed and well hardened longiflorums have held firm at $10 to $12 per hundred. Valley is abundant; $2 was top last week and not over $3 per hundred is likely at the close of the present week. Callas are lower, and there is a big supply of them. Gardenias also are lower, with $3 high mark for the best; a few long-stemmed sold a little higher. Only the gigas, of the orchids, command the values of a year ago. These will be up to the 75 cent quotation for Easter, but there will be plenty of other varieties at 50 cents and under.

There will be no lack of sweet peas and bulbous stock of every kind, especially tulips, hyacinths and daffodils. The market is overwhelmed with southern shipments of the latter, some of the wholesalers having to telegraph their consignors to stop shipment. It seems impossible for the retailers to obtain even 10 cents a bunch for them. The Spencer sweet peas meet with a ready sale, but the common and short varieties do not sell at all. Spring flowers of every kind are here; the windows are bright with forsythia. Retailers are receiving their plants, and buying heavily. The less said of violets during the last two weeks the better. They were literally given away. There may be a slight spurt for Easter, and then good-bye.

Various Notes.

The flower show is now but a memory, but there is a wide interest already manifested in the exhibition of 1915, and over $6,000 worth of space has been spoken for. Full particulars in regard to the last show may be expected at the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, which takes place the day after Easter, Monday, April 13, at the club's rooms in the Grand Opera House building.

J. B. Deamud, lately of Chicago, has taken up his residence in New York.

W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., of Chappaqua, says the acacia supply will last until after Easter.

Siebrecht & Son are now established in their new store, at 619 Fifth avenue, at the corner of Fiftieth street, close to St. Patrick's cathedral. The firm has been in existence since 1867, forty-four years.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the MacNiff Horticultural Co. will hold special auctions of Easter flowering plants at their big store, at 56 Vesey street.

A. T. Bunyard's artistic arrangement of Breitmeyer's carnation exhibit at the flower show was one of the greatest attractions of the latter days of the exhibition.

The store at 112 West Twenty-eighth street will shortly be ready for the removal of Slinn & Weiss from across the way. The ground floor seems to be much in demand now on Twenty-eighth street, and upstairs is no longer popular.

Richard Wenham, formerly with Wadley & Smythe, is now one of the force of Thos. F. Galvin, Inc.

All the seed houses that made exhibits at the flower show were well satisfied with results, and several have already secured space for next year's exhibition.

James McHutchison left last week on his five months' trip for New Zealand, Australia and Japan.

Fenger's irises are again in the New York market, being handled by Henshaw & Fenrich.

Bowling, after Easter, will be made popular once more by several matches, in which prominent members of the Florists' Club will engage, the scheme being engineered by Harry Riedel.

Announcement has only recently been made of the purchase of the entire business interests of the firm of Woodrow & Marketos by Samuel A. Woodrow, April 1, 1913. The business will be continued under the firm name.

W. H. Siebrecht has been forcing lily of the valley for this market for thirty-eight years.

Mrs. L. J. Kervan went to Florida this week to join her husband, who is wintering there.

Large quantities of hardy roses have arrived from Europe this week for Arthur T. Boddington.

W. B. DuRie, of Rahway, N. J., recently celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary.

Max Schling is employing double his regular force of thirty people this week.

M. A. Bowe has a large branch store on Thirty-fourth street, near Fifth avenue, this week.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co., on Vesey street, reports that some hardy roses sold at auction last week brought 70 cents each, a record figure.

Woodsen & Christensen have put some excellent daisy plants on the market this week through William Kessler, who also has had fine bougainvilleas from Savoy.

Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co., lectured last week before the Tuxedo Horticultural Society.

C. C. Trepel's plans for this week included the Ladies' orchestra, which was the feature of the flower show; an exhibit of 2,000 fancy poultry; and seven stores, three of them in Brooklyn, stocked with enormous quantities of plants and cut flowers. Mr. Trepel says he expects the biggest Easter in his career. J. Austin Shaw.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

April, with her varying moods, now holds sway, and if her showers are more in evidence than her sunshine, the florist who has his Easter stock well developed is thankful that the dark weather prevails, though he hopes that the latter part of this week will be light, so that his Easter trade may be fully satisfactory.

The market in the last two weeks has been dull, but that is to be expected during the last week or two of the Lenten season. Trade has been enlivened, however, by occasional spring openings and social affairs. Stock has been of fair quality and not overabundant. Indeed, carnations are extremely scarce and roses are not up to the mark in either quality or quantity. All bulbous stock has suffered a considerable shortening up and there is a general lull before the great Easter festival.

The outlook for Easter in the plant line is excellent. The greenhouses of the principal growers present a sight which is a delight and a stimulus to the florists and an attraction to the flower-loving public. As to the cut flowers, most of the rose and carnation plants have a wealth of buds, which a few days of sunshine would open into blooms for the Easter trade.

Various Notes.

Miss Helen F. Patten, of Toledo, O., has returned home after a visit of a few days with Mrs. Geo. W. Flick, of the Flick Floral Co. Miss Patten is contemplating a trip abroad this summer, in company with Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Mildred Flick, who leave June 30 with a party of travelers who will tour England, Ireland and the continent.

Judge W. J. Vesey, of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has returned from an extensive southern trip, which included a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Cecil Max, of Mobile, Ala., and to New Orleans, La., at the time of the Mardi Gras. Mr. Vesey has purchased a tract of land north of this city, on the Goshen road, where he will erect several new greenhouses. He also contemplates removing his entire range to his new property, as the present site is considered too valuable for greenhouse purposes. A recent visit to the Vesey greenhouses disclosed many possibilities in the cut flower line for Easter, especially in roses. Some fine Spanish irises and orchids were noted.

The Lanternier greenhouses give promise of a great many blooming plants for Easter. The stock of cinerarias is especially fine.

Frank Knecht & Co. have a fine showing of plants and flowers for the Easter business.

The greenhouses of the Flick Floral Co. present a gorgeous sight, with their big stock of flowering plants, ready to be taken to the downtown conservatory. The rose stock gives promise of a splendid cut for Easter. R. R. F.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week proved to be another good one for the trade. Both local and shipping business was brisk.

Roses of all kinds are in good supply and generally of a high average of quality. Reports from the growers are to the effect that the cut will increase in size up to Easter and that there will be a good quantity for that day. Beauties still are rather scarce. Easter lilies promise to be in splendid supply. Calla offerings are large. A fair quantity of smaller bulbous stock is coming into the wholesale houses. Carnations have been cleaning up nicely. Valley and sweet peas are both in good supply. Orchids sell fairly well. Some good snapdragon is offered. Violets are no longer of high quality and even home-grown singles seem to be nearing an end.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been disposing of large quantities of plumosus from the Lake Shore Ferneries.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. had a large decoration at the Gibson hotel this week.

E. G. Gillett has been getting fine lilies from C. P. Dieterich & Bro., of Maysville, Ky.

Fred Brueggemann, of P. J. Olinger's, went to New Castle April 7 to look over the stock.

Visitors: Sam Seligman, with Wertheimer Bros., New York; Joseph M. Stern, Cleveland; J. Keller, Lexington, Ky.; Floyd Anderson, Xenia, O.; Wm. Winters, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Lampert, Xenia, O. C. H. H.

Galena, Ill.—B. F. Vandevate has a heavy stock for Easter. His supply of lilies and bulbous flowers will be especially strong.

Erie, Pa.—As a result of the flower show in the Mayer building two weeks ago, a movement is on foot for the organization of the florists of the city. John Laver is at the head of the movement.

Holyoke, Mass.—The next regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club will be held at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, April 14, with George Strugnel, of the Bonnie Brae Greenhouses.

New Castle, Pa.—J. S. Hennon & Son had a striking Easter window, in which colored lights and a background of full-sized trees were features. It was the work of Harry G. Purvis and showed originality.

Youngstown, O.—A fire started by some hot ashes caused about $1,000 damages to R. Inglis Sons' greenhouse about 4 a. m. March 29. The fire got a good start before it was discovered and killed a great many small vegetable plants in addition to damaging the house and boiler shed.

Lincoln, Ill.—Will Hembreiker, foreman at the greenhouses of Gullett & Sons, purchased the A. C. Canfield plant at Springfield, and Iles Cole, formerly also with Gullett & Sons, has gone to Springfield to take charge of the establishment. Mr. Hembreiker, who has been with Gullett & Sons for twenty-two years, will not leave for a year at least.

OBITUARY

James H. McManus.

One of the most widely known and popular men identified with the retail florists' trade in Boston died April 2, when James H. McManus passed peacefully away. The deceased started work, when 12 years of age, with Thomas F. Galvin, and for forty-three years was with that firm, nearly thirty years of that time officiating as general manager. There are few growers of plants and cut flowers in New England who did not know Mr. McManus, and to know him was to respect him for his sterling business qualities.

The deceased gentleman worked as usual at the Tremont street store April 2 and, after supper, enjoyed his usual smoke. It was then that he passed quietly and painlessly away from heart failure. An attack of the same nature two years ago carried off his brother, who was associated with the Back Bay store.

Mr. McManus leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. Funeral services were held from the family residence, 120 Hyde Park avenue, Forest Hills, April 6, there being a high mass of requiem at St. Thomas church, Jamaica Plain. There was an overflowing congregation, including large numbers of his business associates and others in the trade. A wonderful display of floral souvenirs, including magnificent ones from the Galvin firm and employees, attested the esteem in which he was held.

Charles Koelker.

Charles Koelker, of Toledo, O., died April 2. He was 64 years of age and conducted a retail establishment on St. Clair street. The greenhouses are located on Philipps avenue. His two sons, who were engaged in the business with him, survive Mr. Koelker and will continue the business. The funeral took place April 6, from the residence on Cherry street, and was largely attended, there being many flowers.

Mrs. Elizabeth Durand.

Mrs. Elizabeth Durand, wife of F. W. Durand, of Elmira, N. Y., died Saturday afternoon, March 28, at the Hotel Chamberlin at Hampton, Va., from Bright's disease. She had arrived about ten days before for a stay at the hotel. The body was taken to Elmira for burial.

Watervliet, N. Y.—Henry Hannell has a fine lot of rambler roses. The majority find a ready market with the Albanians, but many are sent far from home.

Scranton, Pa.—The flower show, held March 31 and April 1 by the Scranton Florists' Club, drew a large attendance and created a great deal of interest among the florists' patrons, as it was the first show of its size held here.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—The Jeff McDonald Florist Co. has been incorporated by Jeff McDonald, H. J. Webb and C. H. Jones, with a capital stock of $20,000. Willard Parker, of Cleveland, O., has been engaged as manager of the entire business.

Duluth, Minn.—In accordance with the annual custom, the greenhouses of J. J. Le Borious were thrown open to the public Palm Sunday and drew a large number of visitors.

Corning, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel prides himself on growing Richmonds, having never failed to have a good season since planting it the first year it was sent out, and he is anxious to try Hadley to see if he will be as successful with it. He is strong on callas and has a fine stock of bedding plants. He anticipated a busy spring by adding a Ford car to the delivery service.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

If your city is not represented in the trade news in The Review, wouldn't you like to supply the deficiency?

THERE are chrysanthemum cuttings everywhere—if they all go onto the benches and bloom there will be no scarcity of flowers in the autumn.

CARNATION cuttings are by no means so plentiful as in previous seasons. Field-grown plants will be good property in August unless the weather is unusually favorable.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

PROBABLY the all-around most successful concerns in the trade today are those that have for years required their money the day it was due. They have the cream of the customers, are able to pay their own bills promptly and have few worries.

THE twenty-third annual volume issued by the American Carnation Society is being distributed this week by Secretary A. F. J. Baur. It contains the proceedings of the meeting and exhibition, held at Cleveland January 28 and 29, and reported in detail in The Review for that week. In addition there are lists of members and lists of registrations by the society and by the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England.

PROMISE AND PERFORMANCE.

Anybody can promise—it's the easiest thing publishers do—but not every paper can make good the strong talk of those who are hired to "get the business." The one who knows is the one who grows. Like this:

Kindly insert the enclosed ad. We have been using The Review for quite a while now and it seems to be a sure advertising medium.—Armstrong Greenhouses, Armstrong, B. C., March 29, 1914.

A publication that is "sure" for a grower in British Columbia must be fairly certain for those in the United States.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The penultimate week of the Lenten season was one of no special activity; indeed, the time and attention of nearly everyone in the trade appears to have been given to preparations for Easter; Easter and the dark, cold weather were the staple topics of conversation. The market was quiet and good flowers scarce, the bad weather having impaired quality in almost all lines. Prices ruled low, except on carnations, which stiffened.

There has been extremely little sun for nearly a fortnight prior to April 5, which was a bright day, and the temperature has been unseasonably low. This had a tendency to check production and to detract from the quality of flowers, but there has been no scarcity of stock, in a general way. Because of low prices there has been a disposition to hold back as much stock as possible, a difficult undertaking in view of the softness of the stock. This may have done something to help the market last week, but it has not been of assistance in the last few days, those immediately preceding the Easter rush. At the beginning of this week there was too little first-class stock and too much stock that was not of usable quality.

This week's issue appears just as the Easter shipping is getting under way. In spite of the fact that buyers generally feel assured that there will be large supplies for Easter, about the usual number of advance orders has been booked, the opening days of the present week having brought the wholesale houses the heaviest volume of correspondence in their history. There is a general belief that the volume of telegraph orders in the later days of the week will be of record-breaking proportions. The one bright day, April 5, helped some, but growers and wholesalers believe there will be no oversupply. The continued dark, cool weather had the result of delaying the crops. Roses have not gone off crop in the way that many expected them to. At the same time, Beauties have not come along so fast as would have been the case with bright, warm days at the end of March and early in April. While there are a few good Beauties, the principal Easter shortage will be in this flower; other roses should go around. Carnations shortened up sharply last week. Some said it was only the usual holding back and predicted that there will be enough this week for the out-of-town buyers, with a probability of a break in prices on the arrival of the shipments from the growers who always hold their Easter stock until Saturday afternoon. Others, however, believe we are between crops on carnations. Violets are among the most plentiful of flowers in the houses which handle them in quantity. Sweet peas are less abundant than they have been. Some of the growers explain this by stating that the buds dropped badly during the dark weather.

Some disappointment is expressed over the number of advance orders for cut lilies. It seems as though many of the out-of-town buyers who have ordered lilies from this market in other seasons, this year either have bought pot plants or have some local source of supply; at any rate, the orders for cut lilies on file at the opening of the week, with most of the wholesalers, was not so great as it usually is a week before Easter. Wholesalers still are of the opinion that all long and medium-stemmed lilies will clean out in good shape, for the growers report all sorts of trouble with their lilies, many having last week despaired of getting more than a small part of them in on time. Pot lilies are said to be well cleaned up.

There is a good supply of bulbous stock and miscellaneous flowers. The success of a holiday season depends largely on how this class of material cleans up. If there turn out to be too few roses and carnations, then the miscellaneous flowers sell well and everybody is happy, including the buyers, but when roses and carnations are in oversupply the miscellaneous stock brings low averages.

Plantmen's Troubles.

The plantmen were a gloomy lot last week; they had given up hope of getting their stock in for Easter. This applied to pot lilies, azaleas, spiræas and other things, but especially to rose plants, of which larger numbers than ever before were started this year. One of the largest growers of rose plants for Easter said he did not expect to be able to flower more than twenty per cent of his stock in time. The reason was plain: With so late an Easter all the growers sized it up that there was plenty of time, three weeks more than last year; so they did not force their plants, letting them come along naturally. Just when they had reason to expect bright skies and warm sun the weather turned dark and cold. It was particularly bad all last week. Of course everybody got busy, but it was late to apply forcing methods; one can not force plants that forcibly. The nice, warm sun of Palm Sunday helped some, but it is freely predicted that a lot of Easter plants will have to be sold in the latter part of April.

Our Candidates.

For the third time W. F. Schofield, democrat, has failed of election to the city council. In the election April 7 he received 5,203 votes as against 5,509 for the progressive candidate. It is of interest that the women this time were responsible for Schofield's defeat, as the successful candidate received 2,127 women's votes to 1,368 for Schofield.

In the Seventeenth ward, strongly democratic, J. E. Franke, republican retail florist, who received the nomination unopposed, polled only 522 votes against 3,491 for the democrat.

M. G. Holding, who is not a florist but who has sold many thousands of boxes of glass to growers, was defeated for reelection.

Various Notes.

At Bensenville W. F. Duntzman is glazing three new houses, each 24x175, and will at once start on four more of the same size, principally to be used for Killarney Brilliant. The addition of seven houses, which are of truss pattern and Garland material, will give him about 150,000 feet of glass. His cut is sold by Erne & Klingel and A. L. Vaughan & Co.

April 21 to 24 have been selected by the John C. Moninger Co. as the dates for a series of public tests of Furman-Moninger boilers. As the Moninger factory at Weed street and Hawthorne avenue is easily reached by taking any north-bound car and transferring to North avenue, a large number of visitors is expected. The tests will run eight hours each day.

April 15 has been set by John Mangel as the date for opening his branch in the annex building of Marshall Field & Co.

At the J. A. Budlong establishment benches are being renewed and replanting is being pushed. A. H. Budlong speaks of the season as being, on the whole, a good one.

The father of Herman Schuettler, first deputy superintendent of police and former owner of the Star Floral Co., now Pyfer & Olsem, was buried April 5. There were many flowers.

The horticultural emporium of the W. W. Barnard Co., handling everything from Easter pot plants through seeds and garden tools to nursery stock, is being advertised in the city dailies much stronger than last year, which was the first in the new and easily accessible location.

Four houses already have been replanted by Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst. Two are White Killarney and two contain Milady and Hadley.

With good bulbous stock scarce for Easter, E. Wienhoeber congratulates himself on having 7,000 tulips in fine shape for his basket work this week.

After having been a little late with their carnation crops most of the season, Miller Bros., on North Lincoln street, who are neighbors of Peter Reinberg, have a fine crop for Easter.

April 4 Anton Then said he had sold every pot plant on the place that had any chance of getting in for Easter. His stock included 12,000 pots of lilies, 200 roses and quantities of other plants.

It is the opinion of John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., there will be smaller plantings of Beauties for next year. Beauties unquestionably require sun to set buds and for the last two seasons results have been particularly unsatisfactory. The growers have been all in much the same boat, cutting little during the months of brisk demand and getting low prices when they had good cuts.

When Frank Oechslin's customers called him up last week and said "Send another dozen plants" of this or that, the answer was, "All right, but we shall have to take it off your Easter order." Mr. Oechslin wishes he was in the soap business, so he could keep a warehouse full of stock all the time.

It is said of A. Lange's that more customers are waited on there than in any other store in town. There are other stores, however, where the individual sales are believed to average larger.

Business at the new store in the rotunda of the Insurance Exchange building is reported as opening well for Zalinger & Hirsch.

Palm Sunday O. W. Frese spent at Morton Grove, his first visit there since the S. A. F. went in a special train, he says.

A meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club is announced for tonight, April 9, but no large attendance can be looked for, in the midst of the Easter rush.

Alfred Fischer and wife spent a few days visiting at Rochester after the recent bowling congress at Buffalo.

The fortnight of dark weather, according to N. J. Wietor, has thrown after the holiday the biggest crop of Beauties ever cut by Wietor Bros.

An excellent start at Indiana Harbor is reported by D. T. Matchen.

A bad cold on the lungs is adding to the difficulties of John Kruchten's work this week.

A good many growers have their fingers crossed: it was just a year ago, the Monday following Easter, that the big wind hit the Hoerber plant, and others.

Bulbous stock is selling better than it did earlier in the season, according to E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co.

To give his bad leg a few days' rest, Clifford Pruner has come in off the road to spend Easter.

Strikes in the building trades are delaying the work on the new plant of the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., but Carl Ickes hopes to install much of the machinery prior to the completion of the buildings.

After an illness of ten days H. D. Schiller is carrying his part of the Easter rush.

Having cut back a good part of its Beauty plants, the Batavia Greenhouse Co., at Batavia, Ill., expects to cut new Beauties for Memorial day.

One's heel is not the ordinary place for a boil, but that accounts for Harry Manheim's recent limp.

The Mrs. Russell rose seems especially at home in the establishment of Sinner Bros. They will plant all they could root of it.

One of Tuesday's election judges was Arthur Weatherwax, of Smyth's, who served in the forty-fifth precinct of the Third ward.

A loss in glass was sustained in a wind storm, March 26, by Henry Ilg, of

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The cut flower market has taken a brace, so that it is in excellent shape for the greatest flower day of the year. There are several odd conditions: Carnations are worth more than roses, only you must not measure the stems when comparing them; daffodils are bringing a better price than during most of the season, although the southerners are here. True, the southern daffs are not especially plentiful, nor are their northern cousins, so perhaps it is not so odd, after all, as there is a demand created by the heavy supply of the last two months. Single violets are over, or nearly so. Double violets are in good shape, thanks to the cool weather; they bid fair to continue so until after Easter.

There are no other special features to the market, except that last week's forecast of plenty of flowers seems sure of realization. Carnations may possibly be short of the demand and of course there will be things here and there not as plentiful as could be desired at the moment they are wanted, but the broad fact remains that there are likely to be more flowers at the end of the week than this market has ever seen before.

The Floracraft Greenhouses.

Edward Ross hesitated just an instant, which way to turn: On one side were the hydrangeas, on the other the valley. If there was choice, possibly the valley was the finer, but the hydrangeas come only at Easter and the valley is present for 365 days in every year. The hydrangeas presented the most glorious sight. Nearly 1,900 of them, all heavily flowered, with immense trusses of bloom and scarce a blind shoot anywhere. They presented an even sheet of color; not a straggly plant; hardly a plant above its fellows; they were the perfection of the grower's art. This house was filled with Otaksa. Avalanche, Bouquet Rose and some of the other French varieties were elsewhere. A single plant of Avalanche carried forty heads of bloom over a 12-inch tub. The valley has lost none of its charm; an enormous quantity is being flowered extremely well. The new houses erected for lilies are interesting. In construction they resemble the houses of twenty years ago more than those of today. The chief idea is that the light shall all come from above, none from the sides, so that the lilies will have sufficient stem at all seasons of the year. The last of the tulips, all doubles, and the first of the spring vegetable plants show how closely the seasons follow each other in a well managed establishment.

Fifty-fifth and Springfield Avenue.

The features of William K. Harris' fine Easter assortment are the azaleas and the roses. In each of these one variety stands preëminent. In azaleas it is Prof. Wolters, esteemed for its soft rich color and, best of all, for its durability. In roses it is Tausendschon; Thousand Beauties is the German translation, a translation borne out by the charm of this great Easter forcing rose. There are lots of other things and some novelties of more or less merit, but it was these two varieties that made the deepest impression.

The Michell Farm.

There are times when the lot of the newspaper man, so full of work and detail, becomes delightful. He is lifted out of his every-day routine; lifted bodily, as it were, into an atmosphere quite new and full of interest. He is not obliged to do a certain number of things in a limited space of time, nor must he put ideas into readable form after he has worked hard for a much longer time than is usual with his florist friends. One of these pleasant occasions was foreshadowed in an invitation to Andalusia last week to see some new things. There were three in the party that went out that cloudy, sunshiny April afternoon, when nature was just preparing to burst into bud and leaf. There was Henry F. Michell, whom everybody knows, likes and admires for his wonderful constructive ability. With him was Paul F. Richter, whose boyish appearance and disposition are combined with a brain that has marvelous grasp of detail and an extraordinary capacity for hard work.

Andalusia reached, the farm is seen in all its glory. The 672 feet of lawn, relieved by what will be canna beds and beds of evergreens, has just been doubled; a ten-acre tract, giving 672 additional feet along the railroad, has been purchased and will immediately be laid out in turf, and beds to be filled with cannas and evergreens like the others—to show progress, Mr. Michell says.

The new greenhouses face the older ones in a way to suggest a broad shed or corridor house as part of the plan. These greenhouses are used partly for seed and plant tests, partly for propagation and partly for growing bedding and vegetable plants. The plant tests were particularly interesting. There were a number of lilies on trial. All looked well, but best of all, far and away, was the good old Bermuda Easter lily, Lilium Harrisii, rejuvenated, looking as though it had never known disease. It was particularly pleasing in these days of short-stemmed lilies. The height was excellent, neither too tall nor too short.

Then there were the French hydrangeas. A number of these were on trial, in full bloom, affording opportunity for comparison. The new pink spiraea, Astilbe rubens, is promising. While it is too early to be positive, it looks as though this new variety is strong where Queen Alexandra is weak. Geranium Helen Michell was the best of the plant novelties in bloom; beautiful it was, with its great trusses of showy flowers borne proudly erect on small plants. There were many seeds, bulbs and tubers starting into life—salvias, cannas, dahlias and many more. Hardy roses and vegetable plants each had their section.

A two-story shed, 50x150 feet, adjoining the greenhouses, is used for packing and storage. Gladioli in vast numbers are wintered here.

A feature outside is the large number of sash-covered hotbeds filled with hardy plants in excellent condition. Soon the grounds beyond will be alive with perennials, destined to become an important part of the Michell place at Andalusia. The approach through the rose walk, with its many climbing varieties, will soon become one of the prettiest attractions.

The farm, now fully equipped and in excellent running condition, comprises nearly thirty acres, with the possibility of further additions as the need for expansion arises.

The advertising feature is kept constantly in mind; a beautiful flower picture is prepared for the passengers on the trains that dash by hourly each way between two of the greatest cities in this country.

Mantua Way.

Today there is some doubt exactly where Mantua begins and where it ends; there was none in the good old days of Hestonville, and Southwark, and Mantua, when our grandmothers talk of Schuylkill, Sixth street and the like. If you want to go to Mantua today, or, to avoid argument, if you want to get very warm indeed, call at Henry Engler's and ask William H. Engler to show you the lilies. They are worth seeing, those lilies, and will be particularly interesting to those who know Mr. Engler only as a newspaper man. They show how the other half lives, or, to be more exact, what excellent use is made of the time that is not devoted to the stub in the ink pot.

Various Notes.

John R. Andre, of Doylestown, Pa., will erect two greenhouses 35x250 feet each, presumably for Killarney.

DETROIT.

The Market.

When these few lines reach our readers all indications are that Detroit florists will be in the midst of the best Easter business ever experienced. All kinds of cut flowers probably will be found equal to the demand except perhaps sweet peas and small rosebuds for corsage purposes. Good violets also will sell readily. The finest snaps ever seen are available.

In plants the market is well supplied. In several instances lilies came with short stems, but other growers had more than the required number. Rhododendrons will play an important part this Easter, many beautiful specimens being seen in the stores. Azaleas also are of excellent quality. Bulbous stock is plentiful and in most instances the quality is good. Many splendid rose plants of various kinds are available.

Various Notes.

The writer recently paid a visit to the florists in the extreme western part of the city and found them all busy preparing for Easter. Gus. Knoch, Chas. Warneke and John Warneke were visited and much fine stock was seen.

A trade show was held in the new quarters of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange April 1, the building proving as well adapted for show purposes as it is for a wholesale house. The lighting facilities are good. John Dinsler had a fine lot of bulbous stock, his daffodils being exceptionally fine. His lilies and azaleas also were much commented upon by other growers. Fred Miesel showed some fine genistas and primroses. Beard Bros. showed roses, bottle brush and acacia of excellent quality. Fred Breitmeyer was on hand with an attractive lot of Japanese maples and a fine vase of Philadelphia carnation. Chas. Plumb, one of our largest plant growers, was equal to the first prize on genistas, lilies and azaleas, his Blushing Bride azalea being especially fine. Arthur Von Beversluys had a vase of white carnations and a delicate pink snapdragon, the latter attracting much attention. Albert Stahelin showed two lots of snaps, one delicate pink and the other deep pink, both of which were excellently grown. Mr. Stahelin recently returned from a Chicago visit. Robert Klagge had the cut flower field all to himself, with fine Philadelphia carnations, valley, gladioli, callas, Spanish iris, bulbous stock and roses. J. F. Sullivan was the only strictly retail man to make an exhibit and took the prize on well grown palms and aspidistras. He also showed some fine lilies. J. M. Gasser Co., of Cleveland, showed a vase of cut American Pillar roses, of the rambler type. They proved attractive and received much favorable comment.

Various Notes.

A new wholesale house has opened at 118 Broadway under the name of Flower Growers' Corporation, with C. H. Maynard as manager. Mr. Maynard reports having a number of first-class growers who will consign their stock to him. His quarters are well equipped and, being already well known to the trade, the success of the concern seems assured.

E. A. Fetters recently embarked in a new enterprise, known as the Glendale Nursery Co. H. M. Hunter, formerly city forester, will act as manager. Their aim is to build up a nursery and landscape business on good business principles.

B. Schroeter had the elaborate decorations for the Traver-Bird opening, using quantities of spring plants and blooms as well as numerous Beauties.

Chas. Plumb and Frank Danser recently were heard discussing a trip to Europe this coming summer H. S.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders .....	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. ..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

The Market,

The local market last week was again overcrowded with stock of all kinds at cheap prices. Although the retail business has not been so good as expected, the trade bought liberally. Cheap prices on stock in big lots brought out bargain sales at all the downtown retailers' and at the department stores which have flower stands. The outlook this week seems good for plenty of cut stock for the Easter trade, but indications are that prices are going to be high. Easter here is always a great plant day and the uptown florists are pushing plants ahead of cut stock, and will continue especially to do so if the wholesalers are going to raise prices. Present indications are that Easter business is going to be heavy with all of us. There are plenty of lilies, both plants and cut flowers, which sell at $12.50 per hundred blooms. Violets will not be overplentiful, as they are showing pale color now on account of the few warm days last week. Carnations and roses will be in heavy supply, as will be also sweet peas and bulbous stock. Valley dragged all week, and prices went down to $3 per hundred.

Common ferns are up to $4 per thousand. Smilax, asparagus and other greens remain as usual and at the same prices.

Various Notes.

spective neighborhoods. Fred H. Weber, Kalisch Bros., Fred C. Weber, Ellison Floral Co., the Sanders Nursery and Young's are among the largest in this respect.

Frank Buckshadt, manager of the Grand Leader's flower department, says they have had a busy week in nursery stock and also in cut flowers, of which they had several special sales, in roses, sweet peas and violets.

George Waldbart and M. M. Ayres, on Grand avenue, have tastefully arranged stores for Easter, and are showing their usual excellent line of plants and cut flowers.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, has decided to grow roses for this market, and the big house that will be built this summer will be used for that purpose.

Paddy Patton's identity has been discovered. Paddy made it known to friends last week that he would make a trip this summer to Ireland, to visit relatives. The question arose, how could he have relatives in Ireland when his real name was Wilhelm Hunzmier?

Grimm & Gorly, the Riessen Floral Co. and Alex. Siegel, downtown florists, are making great preparations to handle a large Easter business in plants and cut stock.

Adolph Steidel, son of John Steidel, of Olivette, Mo., is now in the employ of Vandevort's, in the cut flower department, and young Mr. Jaenicke, son of Adolph Jaenicke, is also at this place, with Mr. Wells in the nursery department. These two departments had plenty of business last week.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had some large consignments of extra fancy cut Easter lilies last week and expects these to continue for this week's demand.

Chas. Beyer received a big importation of fine boxwoods in all shapes and sizes. Robert Beyer reports that they have advance orders for nearly half of them for the local trade.

The Market.

The weather has been changeable during the last week, varying from warm, springlike days to blustery and cold ones, and business has been changeable like the weather. Taken all in all, it has been rather slow, while funeral work has been in demand. Cut flowers have been having a poor sale. Roses and carnations still remain plentiful, except white carnations and roses, which were in demand at a fair price. Snapdragons, while of good quality, find a poor sale; the local market does not seem to take to this attractive flower to any noticeable extent. Lilies of both kinds have been in good demand, with a good prospect for the Easter crop of cut blooms, although good pot plants will be in demand, as they are not overabundant. Violets are still plentiful, although the quality is not at its best; the prospects for Easter are good. Valley and peas are moving, but not briskly. Plain and fancy ferns are in good demand, owing to the short supply of greens. Easter prospects are bright for cut flowers, which are assured of a good sale.

Mark Wells, who conducted the Broadway Florist Store some years ago, has reengaged in business, at 1531 West Baltimore street, having opened the doors of the West End Flower Shop Friday, April 3. This property year. The company is more than pleased with the showing made.

Samuel Feast & Sons, at their green-pot plants for Easter trade. Along with a good line of azaleas, rhododen-of the new rose, Excelsior. Some good lilies were also seen. French hydran-geas have entirely supplanted Hydranfine specimens were seen. A house of cattleyas will be in fine crop for Easter fine specimen plants of Dendrobium market in such quantities that they are of little value. Violets are also selling for little or nothing, as they are so plentiful outdoors. The sale of the regular florists' varieties of cut flowers seems not to be affected by the outdoor stock. Business has been better of late than for a long time. Funeral work has been especially heavy.

Now that Easter is only a week away, we can begin to form some idea of what will be in stock for that season. Roses promise to be abundant and of excellent quality. There are plenty in storage to insure this. Carnations will be abundant, though not in oversupply. There is every reason to believe that we will have the largest supply of lilies that we have seen for several years. Pot plants will be abundant and about all of the seasonable varieties will be represented. Hydrangeas will be perhaps as scarce as any of the good plants. Azaleas have held over well and we shall have some good ones.

The bedding plant business has been opening a little the last few days, and another week of warm weather will see considerable done in this line. While all are crowded for room, bedding stock is looking well. The counter business in seeds has been good the last week.

Various Notes.

McIntyre Bros. are getting their store decorated for the Easter trade, while they are using their stall in the Market House to clean up a few thousand early pansies.

The Nashville florists met at the Maxwell House Wednesday, April 1, to perfect a local organization. All of the leading florists were represented except one, and he sent a message that he was called away just before time for the meeting. There was considerable discussion as to what was to be accomplished by such an organization, and a temporary chairman and a secretary were chosen, so that another meeting could be called soon to perfect the organization.

I visited the Mt. Olivet cemetery greenhouses last week and found everything filled with good stock. They have not done much towards getting the cemetery in shape for the summer as yet.

It is reported that Mr. Skalowski, who has for some years operated the most up-to-date ice-cream parlor and candy store in the city, has leased quarters on Church street, half a block from the flower store of the Joy Floral Co., and that he plans on putting in a cut flower department. The building is being remodeled at present and it is reported that he is looking for a location for a range of greenhouses.

Mr. Green, who opened up greenhouses a few months ago, has a good line of bedding plants ready for the spring sales and will be ready for the cut flower trade in the fall.

The Joy Floral Co. is having heavy cuts of all kinds of flowers, the surplus of which they are storing for Easter. They will hit the market just right with their heaviest cut of roses again. They also have an abundance of good pot plants.

Oscar Geny, of Geny Bros., has recovered his health enough to be able to look after business again. The firm will have the largest supply of good lilies for Easter that they have ever had.

Haury & Sons have their store well decorated with ferns and pot plants at

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is still holding on to winter weather. April 3 we again experienced a snow storm. Weather statistics show we had eight clear days in March, twelve partly cloudy and the balance rainy, snowy and cloudy, which is somewhat unsatisfactory growing weather. So far April has been keeping it up, and this will shorten the cut somewhat for Easter. Last week found more stock of all kinds than the market would take and the wholesalers came near having a glut for the first time this year. Beauties and violets seemed to suffer worst, as there was nothing special going on to take them up. The prospects for Easter, however, look good at this time.

Retailers are busy making preparations in the way of blooming plants, a greater effort being made to sell plants than ever before. Baskets of plants of all kinds, both big and little, are being prepared and some of the arrangements are particularly fine. From the quantity of these, one would wonder what is to become of the cut flowers.

Various Notes.

The city conservatories have their regular Easter display ready and had many visitors on Sunday in spite of the cold wind. The displays are quite up to the usual standard, which is saying a good deal.

Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., has his stock in fine shape for Easter, both plants and cut flowers. He is making Pittsburgh his market, as an auto truck does not let distance make much difference these days. He is a Roosevelt man in some respects, as his thirteenth child was born April 2. Two of his sons are in Germany learning the trade and if they come back as good gardeners and growers as their father, there will be some firm in Greensburg.

J. A. Evans, the ventilator man, visited Pittsburgh on his way home from the show, where he picked up a bunch of good orders.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

THE mail orders are holding up well, the season being rather backward over a large part of the country.

W. F. THERKILDSON, of Burpee & Co., returned to Philadelphia last week after a three weeks' trip through the middle west.

FIRE caused by a stroke of lightning completely destroyed the building of the Botna Valley Seed Co., at Lewis, Ia., March 28, together with its contents. As the building was outside the fire limits, no efforts could be made to check the blaze. Insurance of $2,500 on the building and of a like amount on the contents does not cover the loss. The company will probably rebuild.

THE CENSUS OF SEEDS.

The U. S. Census Bureau has issued a bulletin containing the figures on agriculture gathered in the enumeration of 1910, including statistics of the seed crops of 1909. Although the matter hardly deserves a place under the head of Seed Trade "News," it will be of interest to note that "Table 64 of the bulletin presents statistics for all grass seed (including clover and alfalfa seed), clover seed separately, and for flower and vegetable seeds, by divisions and states, for 1909 and 1899, and Table 65 gives statistics for the different kinds of grass seed for 1909.

"The acreage from which grass seed and flower and vegetable seeds were raised has not been tabulated. In some cases this acreage was not reported, and in many other cases it would represent a duplication of the acreage reported for hay and forage, flowers and plants, and vegetables. The reported production of flower and vegetable seeds doubtless represents chiefly that of farms producing such seeds for sale, small quantities raised by farmers for their own use presumably being often, if not generally, omitted. Since statements of quantity for all classes of flower and vegetable seeds combined would obviously have no significance, only the total value of these seeds is shown in Table 64. For the country as a whole the value in 1909 was $1,411,000. The most important states in the production of such seeds in 1909 were California, Illinois, New York and Ohio.

"The production of all grass seed (including clover and alfalfa) increased from 4,865,000 bushels in 1899 to 6,671,000 in 1909, an increase of 37.1 per cent, and the value from $8,228,000 to $15,138,000, or 84 per cent. The production of clover seed, however, decreased from 1,349,000 bushels in 1899 to 1,026,000 in 1909, and the value of this seed increased at a lower rate than that for all grass and clover seed combined.

"Of the total value of grass and clover seed reported in 1909, the value of clover seed constituted $6,925,000; that of timothy, $4,019,000; of alfalfa, $2,052,000; of millet, $492,000; and all other kinds, $1,650,000. The East North Central division was the principal one in the production of clover

BLINDNESS

A child is born and a peculiarity of the eyes is noticed. The nurse drops a few drops of antiseptic in each eye and the child is cured—of total blindness for life.
This blindness is incurable except during the first nine days. Now likewise a lily is born—young and tender shoots come from the ground.
If green flies are allowed to have their way the first nine days, the same results will occur. So when you first see a green fly is the time to clean them out. Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs, grown properly and kept free from green fly, will produce most wonderful results when Easter comes. Absolutely the best to be had anywhere.

Dry peas and beans are reported on in separate tables and it is presumed that the quantities grown for seed are lost in the much larger quantities grown for culinary purposes. Corn also is separately enumerated as a cereal. Even at that it may surprise some people to note that the seed crops in Nebraska in 1909 amounted to only $39,737, also that the value of the California seed crops increased 500 per cent in the ten years, representing in 1909 more than one-third of all the seeds grown in the United States. At least, those are the official figures.

NO UNITED EFFORT.

It was commented weeks ago in this column that popular demand was sure, sooner or later, to force seeds and plants into the zone system of the parcel post and that the way to get the most favorable arrangement was for the trade to decide what is wanted and all work together. It was the consensus of opinion that as good an arrangement as could be expected would be one which would let the old flat rate apply on parcels up to eight ounces, with the zone rates applying on heavier parcels. The trade was taken by surprise when the expected legislation was presented in the form of an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill; it was put through so quickly that the full significance of the amendment was not appreciated and, therefore, before protest could be made in effective form. W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the postal laws committee of the American Seed Trade Association, has been and is a busy man, with a matter of such large importance coming up, and staying up through the widespread demand for reconsideration, and is closer in touch with all phases of the subject than is any other one in the trade. In describing the results to date, and the present situation, April 3, he said in part:

"At this time I cannot refrain from saying, 'I told you so!' The action of the Senate postoffice committee in making this provision was the result of the independent action of the various small dealers throughout the country, backed by their farmer friends. They had expected a few champions of the flat rate to be able to retain for them all the good things to be had in the parcel post and allow them to secure for themselves the things that particularly fitted their business.

"At the time this ruling went into effect, I was in the office of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., and that concern had had no notice prior to telephone instructions from the local postmaster.

"It is absolutely impossible for one or two men, or a few firms, to have withstood the insistent demand of not only the dealers outside of the association but, in fact, a good many members of the association, who bombarded their senators and representatives with the demand that seeds, plants, etc., be admitted to parcel post.

"In consultation with Mr. Stokes, Mr. Dungan and Mr. Burpee, we arrived at the conclusion that it was useless for the postal laws committee to attempt to work along our own ideas in the matter any longer.

"As you are aware, there are several bills in the House, also several in the Senate, covering this same situation, and it is the writer's opinion that in order to obviate the routine of reading and discussion that would necessarily arise with the handling of these several bills, the Senate committee added the four lines to the postoffice appropriation bill which has resulted in the 'Ouch!' expressed in your publication of March 19.

"There has been a wide division of opinion as to the desirability or undesirability of the parcel post. I have

CHILDS' GLADIOLI

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS

have retained the eight ounces at the old rate and under the old provisions.

"It would seem that there is a possibility that Senator Pomerene's Bill No. 4980 will be favorably enough thought of to pass. If this does, it will take care of the matter, but it demands a uniform effort on the part of the various members of the trade to secure this, rather than the divided effort which secured for us the difficulties under which we now have to labor.

"It is all very well after the fire to lay the blame upon someone and, personally, my efforts are well enough known to the trade in general for myself or the postal laws committee not to have to accept any of the blame for the present condition. We have had little coöperation, except at the hands of several of the larger firms, and I am sure if we could have had the coöperation on the Lieb bill, which I wrote about and which was published in The Review at that time, that we might have secured something entirely different from what we now have, but it would surprise you to know that outside of letters from Mr. O'Mara, of Peter Henderson & Co.; Wm. Henry Maule, the Storrs & Harrison Co., and a few other concerns who have worked with me and our committee, we received little coöperation in this matter. We do not think that this would have at all happened had it not been for the independent action of many who depended upon the postal laws committee to retain all the good things in the parcel post, which was an absolute impossibility, owing to the overwhelming demand on the other side.

"The individual on the outside cannot conceive of the immense amount of labor, correspondence and expense that has been borne by a few in the trade in a futile effort to retain the things of benefit."

The Review believes the committees of the Seed Trade Association deserve to be backed up by the entire body of the seed trade. The committees give their time and money freely; they do not urge or represent their personal views; they represent in every case the views of the majority of the trade. When part of the trade is for one thing and part for another, what eventuates seldom is what either wanted and not for the greatest good of all.

BURPEES IN TEXAS.

The following is clipped from the San Antonio Express of March 25:

W. Atlee Burpee and David Burpee, his son, known throughout the country as seed distributors and horticultural and agricultural experts, are in the city from their home at Philadelphia. Mr. Burpee, Sr., came south on a vacation, and his son, a student in agriculture at Cornell, got leave of absence to accompany his father.

The Burpees are relatives of Thomas A. Coleman, of San Antonio, and of the Atlees, and the Philadelphians will probably visit them during their stay in southwest Texas. They have been in other sections of Texas several weeks and will soon leave for Chattanooga, where Mrs. Burpee is staying at present.

"We have found Texas very interesting from every standpoint," said Mr. Burpee at the Menger. After his gradu-

The Market

As Easter approaches, the stores take on a holiday appearance. Early Easter lilies, pots of valley, rhododendrons and other plants are wisely shown by retailers, not so much for immediate sale as for suggestions for Easter, and they are sure business-getters. Bulbous stock generally will not, apparently, be any too plentiful. The daffodils are coming along rapidly. There will be plenty of Spanish iris and other later varieties, while the sweet pea rows in the growing quarters look like contributing their full quota to the general display. Cut flowers are not too plentiful in the best grades, roses having fallen off more or less. The pretty little Cecile Brunners are again making their appearance from outdoors, and by the time these notes appear they will be plentiful. Outdoor carnations and other stock are abundant and there is a good variety. Boston ferns are scarce and high in price. Whitmani is a little more plentiful.

Various Notes.

If the Sierra Madre flower show goes on improving as it has been doing, Pasadena will have to look to its laurels. The show held April 2 to 4 was a notable tribute to the good work done by the Sierra Madre Women's Club, an organization that is doing much good even outside of the flower show and horticultural end. The flowers shown were uniformly good, and there were plenty of them. One of the prettiest features was the class for baskets of cut flowers, and here our old friend W. W. Felgate won rather easily with a magnificent rose basket, showing that his skill in arranging flowers is as great as in growing them. His vegetables were also superb, the finest dishes being elegant peas and tomatoes. Theodore Payne, of Los Angeles, showed a fine collection of native shrubs and flowers, true to name and exceedingly attractive. The collection of cut flowers of rare varieties from Mr. Hart's place was an education in itself, and interesting to the lover of rare things. Other good trade exhibits were staged by Ward, of Sierra Madre, and Laurie's, of Pasadena. The judges were William Hertrich, of the Huntington estate; Theodore Payne and H. R. Richards, of Los Angeles. The patronage by the public was most encouraging.

P. Smith, of the Smith & Feters Co., Cleveland, O., is again in town and is said to be still looking for a location in which to start business here.

Mr. Birch, head of the Harris Seed Co., San Diego, has been in town looking up stock for his spring trade.

The prospects are for a magnificent show at Pasadena next week.

Polder & Groen were first in the market with Spanish iris this season—a good and profitable first, too, judging from the quality of the stock and the good prices realized.

The nursery of Howard & Smith, at Montebello, is now ablaze with flowers, the amaryllis of this spring joining hands with the cannas, supposed to be of last year, though cannas flower practically the year around here. A splendid type of gazania is also flowering here.

Our business in Carnation Cuttings is breaking all records. The Review is our only means of advertising.—Hollywood Gardens, Hollywood, Wash., January 8, 1914.

J. Dieterich is planting large trees around the site of his home that is to be, at Montebello. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

With Easter so close on our heels, retail storekeepers are busy studying the wants of the season. From all indications we will have a fine lot of potted lilies, and the price at this writing is fairly well established. Cut lilies, however, are not settled in price. This will depend considerably upon the amount of sunshine that we have between now and Easter.

There are few azaleas of merit procurable in San Francisco. Spiræas are also in short supply. A few of our growers have a good stock of high-grade primulas, which will be good for basket work. There will be all the rhododendrons necessary, and undoubtedly Pink Pearl and Cynthia will be the best sellers. It is not probable that the yellow genista will hold on until Easter, owing to the warm weather that we have had. There are few rambler roses procurable; in fact, it might be said that potted stock is in short supply, aside from the staple commodity, the lily. Callas are being shipped away in quantity; despite this fact, there will be more than San Francisco can handle. Cut flowers at this writing are in good supply. My Maryland rose is the best seller of the week. Killarneys are fair. Richmond has not been selling at all. We saw hardly any violets last week, and a few sweet peas have supplanted them. Daffodils, which have been such a good filler in, have petered out, the later varieties standing too high in price as yet to be popular. The life of the fruit blossoms has been comparatively short this year, owing to the warm spell followed by the rain. The same is true of acacias, and there is nothing attractive offered in the way of greens, aside from the regular commodities.

As is usual just previous to Easter, the retail flower business wanes, but the writer, speaking to the leading storekeepers of San Francisco, was assured that beyond a doubt the Easter trade would be an extremely good one.

Various Notes.

It is with great regret that we learn that the Mayflower Floral Co. has found it necessary to close its doors. It seems that the location selected by them is a hoodoo corner. While in the heart of San Francisco's business section, this store has too narrow a frontage to attract passers-by, and those who have ventured to occupy it have met with failure. The honest policy pursued by this firm in all its dealings, and particularly in the settlement of all its claims, is most commendable.

The Fairmont Floral Co. has been showing some of the finest peonies that San Francisco has ever seen. The wonderful pink shades have attracted everybody in the city. These blooms, many of them measuring fourteen inches in diameter before they were fully burst open, are some of the finest that any San Francisco florist has ever displayed.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co. has spared no efforts in advertising to the public the fact that florists want to sell at Easter. The company's display in the windows of the Emporium covers a show window space fully 50 feet long, and consists of a wonderfully artistic arrangement of lilies, Pink Pearl rhododendrons, basket creations of roses, valley and bulbous flowers, and some fine plants of Phalaenopsis amabilis with long spikes laden with mammoth-sized blooms. Mr. Navlet deserves great credit for his liberality in making these displays, which stimulate business interest, and his personal display is beneficial to every florist in San Francisco.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have just finished remodeling their store. The show windows and floor are now covered with white tile, with a neat border. The partition work has been given a finishing coat of enamel, and everything is in readiness to handle their usual large bulk of Easter trade.

Podesta & Baldocchi have not adopted the retrenching system during the dull period before Easter. They have bought just as liberally as if business were rushing, and as a result their windows during the week have attracted the many passers-by of that section.

Albert O. Stein has been confining his energies during the week to decorative work and has had little time for store trade.

The American Florist, on Polk street, featured a wonderfully well flowered plant of Phalaenopsis Schilleriana. Perched on the fragile stems of these flower spikes were eight or ten birds, and, although out of proportion, the arrangement gave us something novel to look at.

Mr. Schwerin, of the Visitation Valley Nurseries, is devoting his attention to supplying the San Francisco market with valley for Easter. He has also some Pink Pearl rhododendrons and some rambler roses; the latter will probably not reach the Easter market, but will make a good commodity for the latter part of the month. Mr. Schwerin reports a good sale of early cut lilies and of the azaleas that he has to offer.

H. Plath, whose nurseries the writer had the pleasure of visiting last Sunday, has not been able to carry his usual line of Easter commodities, owing to the fact that his last Christmas was such a heavy one. Mr. Plath, who specializes in ferns, has the finest lot of Bird's-Nest ferns that have ever been grown on the Pacific coast. It would be difficult to estimate the number of thousands that he has put on the Pacific coast markets.

with pleasure to an instructive lecture by Ralph Stevens, which will be delivered at the regular meeting of the society April 4. Mr. Stevens spent last year abroad, assimilating knowledge and collecting pictures of interest to those absorbed in floriculture.

The Luther Burbank Co. has been showing a liberal display of flowering plants during the week, the star feature being Pink Pearl set on high pedestals in the window space of some 150 feet. This prize rhododendron makes a wonderful showing.

The finest gardenias San Francisco can boast of having are those brought in by the E. W. McLellan Co. They have stems fully a foot long, fine foliage and flowers three to four inches in diameter. W. A. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There seems to be plenty of stock to take care of the demand. Lilies are in fine form; while no surplus prevails, everyone expects to fill all orders. Azaleas never were in better condition. Hydrangeas, rambles, rhododendrons, spiraeas and tulips also will play an important part in the Easter business this year. Roses are gradually increasing in quantity and quality is improving. Carnations are overplentiful. On these there is no standard price for the wholesalers, the better stores maintaining the retail prices at 75 cents per dozen, but in some places there are special sales at 50 cents. Violets are scarce; there is a fear of no violets by Easter. Sweet peas are still rather scarce and bring good prices. Daffodils and tulips are almost out of the market. Lilacs are blooming outdoors.

Various Notes.

H. Fleishauer, of McMinnville, speaks optimistically of the aster situation. Sales of seeds have been satisfactory. He will devote about four acres to asters; approximately 75,000 plants will be planted out. So far 4,000 have been planted and the rest will soon follow. Herbert & Fleishauer are among the most successful aster growers in the northwest.

Wm. Fehrenbecker spent the week end at Gearhart, Ore., where he is building a cottage. He expects to have it completed by the time the exodus to the seashore commences.

Niklas & Sons are using a Brush auto for delivery purposes, getting satisfactory service.

Benjamin Van Kirk is building a home on Fifty-second street, adjacent to the greenhouses, which will soon be ready for occupancy.

The Nippon Floral Co. has a nice lot of wistaria plants in bloom, which sell readily.

R. C. Cook reports business satisfactory. E. R. C.

IS THE WATER UNSUITABLE?

Having had considerable trouble of late in growing my plants, and having exhausted every means known to me in trying to remedy the trouble, I have come to the conclusion that our water supply is bad. Our soil is a heavy yellow loam and we have always, until this season, had good success in growing lettuce, radishes, carnations and a general line of bedding and ornamental plants. The recent lack of development has been most noticeable in lettuce, radishes and geraniums, although the carnations are not doing so well as formerly.

I submitted a sample of the water for analysis and received the following report: Acidity, four one-hundredths per cent; total solids, 970 parts per million or 56 grains per gallon; organic matter, 30 parts per million or 1.74 grains per gallon; lime and magnesia carbonates, 155 parts per million or 8.99 grains per gallon; lime and magnesia sulphates, 246 parts per million or 14.27 grains per gallon; sodium chloride, .56 parts per million or 3.25 grains per gallon; iron carbonate, 124 parts per million or 7.19 grains per gallon; nitrates, none; dissolved oxygen, .65 parts per million; free and half bound carbon dioxide in fresh sample, 150 parts per million; total carbon dioxide in fresh water, 168 parts per million; free and half bound carbon dioxide after standing and precipitation, 48 parts per million; total carbon dioxide after standing and precipitation, 141 parts per million; sediment consists almost entirely of iron oxide; scum contains trace of crude oil.

The sample of water was taken from a well 200 feet deep. We had no reason to suspect the water until last November. Please give me your opinion as to whether this water, according to the analysis, would be detrimental to vegetation.

W. W. T.

There is nothing in the conditions mentioned which would readily account for the difficulty in growing the plants. It is quite possible, however, that the trouble is to be found in the water, although the analysis as given does not show any impurities likely to cause serious results. The two ingredients most likely to prove injurious are the sodium chloride, or common salt, and the crude oil spoken of as a "trace." The sodium chloride is stated as .56 parts in a million parts, but, judging from the number of grains found in a gallon, it should have been stated as 56 parts in a million. However, even this amount is not likely to cause much trouble. While the crude oil is reported as only a trace, it is possible, as the oil quickly rises to the surface; that care was not taken to get a fair sample and I would expect to find this to be the cause of the trouble.

Manhattan, Kan.—Mrs. Carrie Collins, proprietor of Collins' Greenhouse, reports business good and increasing steadily. Prices here are low and the problem is how to get stock enough to turn at a small profit. A meeting of three of the florists resulted in a decision to try to gradually establish such prices as would make it profitable to ship in flowers.

Cobleskill, N. Y.—Alfred Goldring is of the opinion that the calla is the most profitable lily to grow, as it seems to have outgrown the disease from which the Japanese as well as the Bermuda stock now suffers. Spiræas carried over and planted out are forcing better than newly imported stock. Mr. Goldring has a hobby for raising seedlings and is growing a fine stock of an orange scarlet single geranium that is quite popular with his patrons. A double flowering cyclamen is another acquisition.

What stock have you

Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast
Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

OTTO MATZINGER, who has been in the employ of the Sterling Floral Co., Sterling, Ill., for the last five years, has resigned his position to go into business for himself as nurseryman, landscape gardener and importer of shrubs and trees, with headquarters at 111 Nineteenth avenue, Sterling.

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

The 1914 meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen will be held at Vancouver, B. C. The executive committee has fixed the meeting dates, June 16, 17 and 18, with the view of affording an opportunity for members so desiring to attend the meeting of the American Association, with dates following, on the same round trip.

The British Columbia Nurserymen's Association has already made preparations to entertain the Pacific Coast Association most elaborately. The recreation, social and pleasure features so much enjoyed by our members during the past meetings will again serve to restore the needed perspective, create the renewed energy and develop the unflinching determination which are essential for success in the nursery business.

Our association will be royally welcomed; provision is being made for every comfort to our members, and the British Columbia nurserymen are expecting a good attendance from this side of the line. Nurserymen and florists from all sections of Canada will be present at this meeting.

Will our members please write at their earliest convenience, stating what subject matter it is desired, in their opinion, to have come up before the meeting for discussion and consideration, so that the executive committee may know the wishes of our membership when preparing the program? Address C. A. Tonneson, secretary-treasurer Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, Box 1604, Tacoma, Wash.

CENSUS OF NURSERIES.

The United States Census Bureau has just issued a bulletin containing the census of agriculture made in 1910, including the nursery statistics, the general totals of which were for the first time published in The Review for May 8, 1913. In addition to the figures then given, the bulletin contains no new matter except percentages of increase or decrease and figures of average values, which are without practical importance. The bulletin, however, shows one extremely interesting fact: It is stated that the figures which The Review published May 8, 1913, "relate not only to nursery products raised on ordinary farms but also to the much larger output produced in special establishments devoted exclusively to these products and using intensive methods of agriculture. Table 152 gives statistics for nursery products produced in special establishments. Table 153 gives statistics for all nursery products." It was Table 153 that appeared in The Review a year ago.

Table 152 reveals the fact that the general figures of nursery products for the year 1909 include 3,112 farms or establishments reporting the total value of nursery products as $431,119, or only $139 per establishment. These are not nurseries; they are not to be counted as in the nursery business. Recognizing this, the table shows the number of establishments reporting the value of nursery products at $250 or over. This reduces the number of nurseries from 5,582 to 2,470, which still is much too high, since it includes establishments reporting nursery products valued at as little as $250 for a whole year. The average value of the products for the whole number, 2,470, is $8,348. The showing for the 2,470 establishments reported as having nursery products valued at $250 or over in 1909 is as follows:

SPRAYING FOR SCALES.

In the discussion of "The Bug Question" at the last meeting of the New England Nurserymen's Association, W. C. O'Kane, acting state inspector of the New Hampshire experiment station, at Durham, N. H., spoke of the methods of getting rid of scales and pests. The San Jose scale can be controlled by fumigation with hydrocyanic gas, which he said is the best thing that he knows of. Below the scale is a living female, and her progeny, unlike almost every other form of parasite, is born alive.

The oystershell scale, he said, is not susceptible to fumigation, and a spraying with a linseed oil emulsion is the best thing for that—one pound of soap to one gallon of water and two gallons of linseed oil. This form of scale is in some ways as dangerous as the San Jose scale. To spray on the trees, to this emulsion nine parts of water is added. The lime-sulphur spray must be used two or three seasons before the scale is dispelled.

For the brown-tail and gypsy moths nursery stock must be examined when

SALVIA GREGGII NEW, HARDY, EVER-BLOOMING, RED-FLOWERING SHRUB

A Native of the Cold, Arid Mountains of West Texas

Extremely hardy. Has withstood a temperature of ten degrees below zero. Is a great drouth resister. It flourishes and blooms profusely in the hottest and driest weather. It is as near an everblooming plant as we have ever seen. It begins to bloom in early spring soon after growth commences. The blossoms literally cover the plant for two months or more. Then for a few months it does not bloom so freely, but is perhaps never without some flowers. In the fall it puts on another full crop of blossoms that continue till long after the early frosts have set in. It requires a killing freeze to check its flowering.

The color is an indescribable lovely shade of red. It is a dark, soft, cerise crimson, much the color of a well grown American Beauty rose. It has none of the harsh, glaring shades of the Salvia splendens. The beautiful color is perhaps the most attractive feature of this novelty.

It is a hard-wooded shrub. Grows three to four feet high and three to four feet wide in a compact globe, very full and neat in appearance. It is beautiful when massed in a solid bed, and is as useful as the Spiraea Van Houttei for bordering shrub beds. It is not so tall, but is as compact and graceful as the Spiraea, and in addition it is a blaze of beautiful red nearly all the season.

We began selling plants last November, and have sold them in nearly every state of the Union and also several European countries. Reports are just coming in as to how they stood the winter. Below are a few of them.

What others say of it:

Illinois: G. Klarner, Quincy, March 16th, 1914, says, "To date the Salvia Greggii are in good healthy condition uninjured from the cold, which for two weeks ranged from two to six degrees below zero, every night. They were planted out when received and had no protection of any kind. There was no snow when temperature was lowest."

New Jersey: Geo. C. Woolson, Hastings-on-Hudson, New York, writes, "I grew this thirty years ago when my nursery at Passaic, N. J., was running and it is certainly a very desirable species, and is hardy in the North, like many of the Texas plants."

Georgia: P. J. Berckmans Co., Augusta, March 21st, "The Salvia Greggii stood the winter without injury and they are now in fine shape."

Florida: Buckeye Nurseries, Tampa, March 18th, 1914, say: "The Salvia Greggii received from you three or four months ago has bloomed continuously for the past two months. The writer has it planted around his home and is very much pleased with same."

California: T. K. Godbey, Waldo, March 18th, says, "Salvia growing fine and in bloom."

Texas: M. Falkner, Waco, March 17th, 1914, says, "The one year Salvia Greggii bought of you last November doing well. During the mild weather in January all the plants had a few blossoms and one of the plants blossomed heavily, being of a rich red and very pretty."

Kansas: E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Sept. 27th, 1913, says, "Salvia Greggii plants you sent me last December were planted out in the open field and given no protection whatever. They went through the winter without injury and came out in the spring in full leaf to the tips. They went through the hottest and driest summer ever recorded in Kansas, showing good blooms through it all. I look upon it as the most valuable shrub that could be planted in this great Southwestern belt."

Our field grown plants are sold out for this season but we can still furnish strong young plants, six to eight inches high for lining out in nursery, or for summer bedding. It blooms as early and more freely than the Salvia splendens and is much prettier in blossom and plant. Contract prices for field grown plants November delivery given on application.

it is dug, as gypsy moth egg masses are often found in the earth clods. In evergreen stock it is hard to detect gypsy moth eggs. In regard to the brown-tail moth, he said that taking off the webs does not insure the eradication of the moth, because oftentimes, when the webs are cut off in the fall, the moths are not all in the nest and until all the leaves are off the trees and the weather is cold one can not get them all. He advised owners to make freer use of the lime-sulphur spray.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Milwaukee is having a great deal more than its share of dark, cloudy weather. The weather man has succeeded in foisting upon us the largest and most diversified collection of clouds that he could possibly accumulate. We have had practically no sunshine for the last ten days and of course this makes tremendous inroads on the cut for Easter.

Roses are plentiful and the stock is exceptionally fine, considering the lack of sunshine. The crop will be in prime condition for the Easter trade. American Beauties are in great demand, and the supply is entirely inadequate. Carnations are still plentiful and they are cleaning up every day. The stock is fine, but the volume of Easter orders is so great already that unless we have fine, warm weather from now on, the supply will not be equal to the demand.

Sweet peas are also being affected by the dark weather, and the crop is lessening considerably. Violets are still fine and will be in crop for Easter. Bulbous stock is fine and is having large sales at this time.

Common ferns are extremely scarce and we are afraid that the sources of supply are almost exhausted.

Various Notes.

A. Klockner has opened a store at Sixth and Grand avenues, where he has a fine assortment of spring nursery and garden stock. This store is centrally located and should do a big business. It is surprising that no one has had the forethought to establish a retail store of this nature there sooner.

P. Nohos & Co. have succeeded in getting the display windows next door to show their Easter stock. This will greatly enhance their chances for an enormous Easter trade.

Wm. Lubliner had the entire decoration of the interior of the Stumpf & Langhoff store, at Second and Grand avenues, for their opening recently. He

BOSTON.

The Market.

A noticeable improvement took place in business last week. April 4 all the wholesale markets cleaned up remarkably well, and the outlook for a first-class Easter is decidedly cheery. Everyone seems to be optimistic, even though general business conditions are poor and large factories and workshops in New England are laying off thousands of hands. With clear skies this week, I look to see a large volume of business; it can hardly hope to be a record-breaker, but will come near it.

Roses are moving decidedly better. Beauties are still lower and more abundant. At prevailing prices they are in good demand. Mrs. Aaron Ward is remarkably good, some with 48-inch stems being noteworthy. Russell, Killarney Queen and Richmond are splendid. Carnations have stiffened again. There has been a strong call for crimson, while Pink Delight remains as great a favorite as ever. Single violets are nearing the end; Easter will finish them, but doubles will persist for another month. Good sweet peas are not abundant. Valley has been selling remarkably well. Cut lilies are quoted mostly at $10 per hundred; some fancies, higher. Yellow marguerites continue to clean up well. Pink snapdragon sells away ahead of all other colors. Dutch bulbs are cleaning up well; the cool weather is prolonging their season, which has been a profitable one. Gardenias are now plentiful. Cattleya Schræderæ still is abundant, while some Mossiæ come in. Quite a few other orchid flowers are arriving.

Business in pot plants is decidedly brisk and the large growers are all pretty well sold out. Of Easter lilies there is not likely to be any surplus of good plants; many giganteums are so dwarf as to be of little value. A wealth of rambler and other roses is seen, while azaleas, genistas, ericas and other flowers are offered on every hand. It seems likely to be more a plant Easter than ever before.

Asparagus sells well, as it has done all winter. For smilax the call is good this week, with only a moderate visible supply. The call for boxwood, laurel and hardy ferns is good.

Various Notes.

The landscape gardening classes of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club had a successful field day at F. E. Palmer's farm in Newton April 4. The weather was clear and crisp and everyone enjoyed the outing. Mr. Palmer gave an excellent demonstration of dynamiting for preparing land for tree planting, also for removing rocks and tree stumps. R. W. Aldrich, chief landscape instructor, gave lessons in the use of instruments used in surveying, grading, etc. Mr. Palmer served lunch and treated everyone with great courtesy. At his Newton farm he has one 200-foot greenhouse which contains a splendid lot of Pink Delight and White Perfection carnations. He has a fine young apple orchard, several acres in area. In the nursery there are over 30,000 shrubs. He propagates Euonymus radicans heavily and plans to devote four acres to its culture.

The death of James McManus, whose obituary appears in another column, removes one who has been a familiar figure in Boston's retail business for over forty years. The deceased was extremely popular with everyone in the trade.

H. M. Robinson & Co. note a specially heavy demand for lily of the valley. They handle A. N. Pierson's stock. The demand for baskets and greens is heavy this week.

William Sim's single violets are nearing the end and the present week will finish them. He is busy propagating stock for next season. He has five large houses in sweet peas; two of these will be in crop for Memorial day. He is planning to plant practically all his houses with tomatoes as fast as he can clear them of existing crops.

Practically the whole of John McFarland's lilies were bought by Thomas F. Galvin. They were in prime condition.

trees a chance to establish themselves in the new compost. Some trees need removing, but no wholesale cutting down is necessary. If such a man as the late J. A. Pettigrew could have had charge of Boston's Common, instead of trusting its care to political experts, the trees would be in a different condition today.

McAlpine & McDonald, the new wholesalers, report that business started with a rush April 1, and has kept it up ever since. They are handling a splendid lot of roses from S. J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I. The Ward roses with 4-foot stems, of McAlpine Bros., are splendid.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, have had a successful bulb season. For Easter their specialties are Golden Spur, Victoria, Von Sion and ornatus narcissi, White Hawk, Flamingo and Murillo tulips.

Thomas F. Galvin's trade during Lent this year has been much ahead of that of 1913. For the funeral of B. F. Keith, the theatrical manager, last week, Galvin's had forty large designs, a large number being ordered through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery in distant cities where Keith theaters are located.

P. L. Carbone arrived home from an extended European trip April 5, and all is rush and bustle at the big and handsome Boylston street store.

Peter Fisher has 40,000 rooted cuttings of his beautiful new light pink carnation, Alice. This is proving to be a prolific bloomer. It will be introduced in 1914 and 1915. He reports sales of Gorgeous as heavy.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, April 21, Prof. Rees, of Amherst, will lecture on "Orcharding." The question of affiliation with the S. A. F. will come up for further discussion.

The Sutermeister Estate, of Readville, in addition to the regular line of cut bulbous flowers, had an exceptionally fine, stocky lot of tulips, narcissi and hyacinths in pans, as well as spiræas for Easter.

Records That Count

The following are letters and extracts from letters received in one week. They are from men who do business for profit:

Great Neck, N. Y., March 30, 1914.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg—Dear Sir: Your Silver Pink Seedling Snapdragon is doing grand with me, and it is bringing a good price in New York market. Much better than the darker pinks. * * *

WM. W. MATHEWS.

Grimsby, Ontario, March 27, 1914.

Dear Sir: Please send me 200 of your Seedling Silver Pink Snaps, also one packet of seed. Check enclosed. The seed I had from you last year produced a fine lot of plants, which have been greatly admired. Yours truly,

R. MORRIS WOLFENDEN.

York Harbor, Me., March 25, 1914.

Mr. Ramsburg: Send me two pkts. seed of your S. P. Snap and 200 seedling plants of same. Also grow for me one flat of seedlings same as last year. Your Silver Pink is a great one to branch and the best seller I have grown. All of my stock is grown and flowered outside.

ALBERT LANGVILLE.

Others reach us daily. One grower has asked for price on stock for an acre, which means 15,000 plants. And so the business comes. Get in line and pick up some of the easy money coming to growers of SEEDLING Silver Pink, both indoors and out. We still offer first-class plants at the reduced price of full committees are appointed and are already starting work, and all visitors who come to the Hub can bank on getting full value for their money.

MacMulkin has an unusually fine display of specimen flowering plants at his Boylston street store.

One of the neatest commercial establishments near Boston is that of E. H. Borowski, of Roslindale. Everything here is kept as neatly as on a private estate. Standard Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins roses are good. Among other varieties, Excelsa, double bright scarlet, is splendid. This is one of Walsh's varieties and a vast improvement on Crimson Rambler. It makes Hiawatha, growing alongside of it, look quite dull. White Dorothy is a good seller. Minnehaha, of the color of Lady Gay, but with heavier foliage and immense trusses of flowers, is a coming variety. I counted 100 flowers and buds on trusses in 8-inch pots. Bougainvilleas are splendidly grown here, in all sizes, some standards being superb. Giganteum lilies and azaleas could hardly have been better. A grand lot of cyclamen was waiting for more space, for Memorial day trade. Everything here is a credit to the capable growers.

James F. M. Farquhar arrived home from Porto Rico last week, much improved in health and eager to be at business again.

Welch Bros. Co. reports the demand for lilies in pots as exceptionally strong.

All the seed stores report business as strenuous. Counter trade was late in starting and congested conditions will rule the rest of the season. Owing to continued cool weather, hardly a seed has yet been sown outdoors here. Nursery firms report an avalanche of orders, and the season will be a trying one to them, owing to the frost holding on so late.

Good single violets are becoming scarce, but April 4 the flowers from William Spillsbury, Woburn, and Kidder Bros. were equal to the best mid-season quality. This has not been a profitable season for violet specialists; the first half the plants bloomed sparsely, while latterly prices have ruled lower than usual.

A number of friends visited Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Duguid, of Wellesley, the evening of April 3. Mr. Duguid is superintendent of the H. S. Hunnewell estate and is extremely popular. On behalf of the visitors W. J. Kennedy presented to Mrs. Duguid a handsome chest of silver; an appropriate gift also was given Mr. Duguid. A most enjoyable evening was spent by everyone.

No yellow marguerites in the local market are quite equal in size to those sent in by W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham. His carnations are in heavy crop for Easter.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society April 4, the sum of $500 was voted for the S. A. F. convention expenses. The sum of $6,000 was voted for prizes at exhibitions to be held in 1915. The question of having a big and imposing spring show in 1915 was discussed and received with favor.

AMHERST, MASS.

The short course class in floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College recently made its annual trip to Boston to visit the markets, stores and greenhouse establishments in that vicinity. Three days were spent visiting the various places. The first day included visits to J. T. Butterworth, at South Framingham; S. J. Goddard and William Nicholson, at Framingham, and Robert Montgomery, at North Natick. An early start was made the next morning, in order to see the Boston flower markets when business was in full swing. The remainder of the morning was spent in visiting the retail stores in the city; in the afternoon a trip was made to Peter Fisher's establishment, at Ellis, Mass. On the last day the places visited were Thomas Roland's range, at Nahant; William Sim's, at Cliftondale, and Thomas Roland's other range, at Revere. This trip has come to be one of the features of the course, since it gives the students an opportunity to see all phases of the floricultural industry.

THE GREATEST CANNA NOVELTY OF THE DECADE QUEEN HELEN

3½-inch pot plants, $3.00 each; per dozen, $30.00

1/3 dozen at same rate as per dozen. Plants ready now; can be shipped immediately

QUEEN HELEN is a green-leaved sport of King Humbert, retaining all the good qualities that have made Humbert the best Canna heretofore introduced—and Queen Helen has several points of superiority over Humbert. Same orchid-like flowers, golden yellow color, evenly spotted with red; stronger grower, producing more than twice as many shoots per plant; flower clusters larger; green-leaved, foliage large and glossy. Queen Helen is a variety that in years to come will be grown more generally than any other one canna. One large canna grower says it is the best novelty ever produced.

This Canna originated at our place in the year 1910 and the first time it was mentioned in The Florists' Review was June 15, 1911, under the St. Louis items, where I had shown a plant at one of our club meetings.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 12, 1913.

HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: We note your picture of Queen Helen Canna in The Review and would like to have you write us fully regarding it. *** According to the picture, this Canna must have special merits, and we would be glad to assist you in its introduction, etc.

Yours truly,

L. H. READ & Co.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 25, 1913.

HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: Your box of Queen Helen duly received, and I should have written you sooner. *** There is no question but you have one of the greatest novelties ever produced, and we should like to know all the particulars regarding same. We have the largest and most complete collection of Cannas in America, consisting of 170 choice named varieties, etc., We remain,

Yours truly,

New Rose, Killarney Brilliant

THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

Mrs. George Shawyer

We are growing this splendid rose this season with most gratifying results. As a free and vigorous grower and great producer it has no equal. It has not shown the slightest symptoms of mildew with us. It sets buds freely in the short days of winter and is now coming in with a fine spring crop. It does equally well on grafts or own root.

We intend planting Shawyer heavily this season, but still have a splendid stock of fine young plants in 3-inch pots, ready for immediate delivery—on own root.

We also offer a splendid lot of Sunburst, Ward, Richmond and Killarney, all own root stock. For prices and further particulars write.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

Florists' Club Organized.

At a meeting attended by nearly every florist in the city, at Turner hall March 30, the San Antonio Florists' Club was organized. R. C. Kerr, of Houston, chairman of the state organization committee, who is touring the state preparing for the organization of the state association at Waco next month, is largely responsible for the organization of the local club. He addressed the meeting, pointing out the advantages of a club, and reading letters to show the interest of florists throughout the state in the movement he represented. He also read a letter from T. J. Anderson, general passenger agent of the Sunset-Central lines, announcing reduced rates to Waco for the state meeting May 4 and 5.

Upon the motion of Chris. Hauser a temporary organization was formed, and Mr. Hauser was elected temporary chairman and Frank Hauser temporary secretary. It was decided to meet on the last Monday in April, the place of meeting to be announced by the chairman, for the purpose of hearing a report of the committee on by-laws. This committee is to be composed of the chairman and the secretary and three other members to be named by them, one of whom was named last night, Frank Suchy.

Attending the meeting March 30 were Chris. Hauser, Jr., P. D. Hauser, H. Steingrouber, P. Poppe, Charles Albrecht, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albrecht, Sr., Miss Monard, Mrs. Jung, Miss Jung, Mrs. F. Bright, Walter Schumann, F. Freeborough, Frank Suchy, Frank Hauser and Mr. and Mrs. William Herzog.

JOY!

This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as “a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem.” That should be good enough for anybody.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

There has been a slight increase in business. Last week a number of large funerals and wedding decorations helped out a great deal, as did the industrial exhibition at the Auditorium. Stock is quite plentiful and sells well, so little goes to waste. Potted plants for Easter are being brought in. Some fine roses, spiræas, lilies and rhododendrons are seen. Locally grown lilies are better than last year, as are spiræas and roses. Violets and cut roses are in good crop, but carnations are just off crop for Easter. There are quite a number of advance orders and the prospect for a busy Easter trade looks good.

Various Notes.

Mark Aitken's greenhouses in Agawam are filled with plants for Easter. Mr. Morgan, the superintendent, has turned out some fine Easter lilies, rose plants, spiræas, etc., 5,000 lilies being grown for Easter. James Morrison, the violet grower, has a fine crop on.

N. F. Higgins had an exhibit at the industrial exposition and quite a number of advance orders for Easter were taken there. Stanley Coley, of Westport, Conn., now is with Mr. Higgins.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Easter promises to be a busy time for the florists throughout the Dominion, judging by the volume of business at this early stage of the holiday season.

The lilies at the Dale Estate are without doubt the best stock ever produced in Canada, and it is doubtful if there will be sufficient plants to go around. Orchids are in good supply and no doubt will take the place of American Beauties, which are more difficult than ever to procure.

Wilbert Thompson, who has been with the Dale Estate for several years, is about to remove to Simcoe, where he will engage in the grocery trade with A. Widner, and in time probably will venture into the greenhouse business to some extent.

There is to be another range of greenhouses in Brampton, eight acres of land having been purchased by a Mr. MacIntyre, of Toronto, close to the

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be potted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamens were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong with extra good roots; just right to transplant for blooming in May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order. L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The principal interest in smokeless coal since April 1 has been in contracting. A major portion of all the rail business for Chicago proper has already been closed, according to a leading coal trade journal, but there remains a good sized volume of business yet to be done and the closing on that is not quite so prompt as was expected. "A good many important orders are hanging fire, but not many of them are held off on any disposition to contest the price asked by the operators. In a few isolated cases important buyers of coal are deciding this year to try their fortunes on the open market, instead of providing for their needs by contract. They proceed naturally upon the assumption that coal trade conditions this year are against the stability of prices on various grades of coal and therefore on smokeless. The operators contend, on the other hand, that never were conditions more favorable to the maintenance of prices. The spot business is moving away satisfactorily in that a number of companies are entirely sold up for April and May delivery on the prepared coal and more than half sold up on June and July delivery. Prices for this year are as follows: For mine run, $1.25 up to August 1; $1.40 after August 1. For lump and egg, $1.60 for April, $1.70 for May, $1.90 for June, $2.00 for July, and $2.25 for August and probably through the year. For nut coal, $1.40 for April, May and June, $1.50 for July and $1.75 for August and thereafter. For slack coal, $1.25 throughout the year."

UNIVERSITY PLANT HOUSES.

We have built two plant houses, 27x160, in connection with the state university, and we expect to put in the radiation this spring. We have received a radiation plan, which seems to me to be wrong. #### The Leading Grower in Vermont.

I have had the Kroeschell Boiler six years; it is heating 17,000 square feet of glass. NO OTHER BUT A PLATE BOILER FOR ME.

(Signed) H. M. TOTMAN, Randolph, Vermont.

The Quality Place of Boston.

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,
Waverley, Mass.

Glad He Bought a Generator.

Wish to express my complete satisfaction with your Generator which I purchased in November.

In extreme cold spell of January 11 to 14, when the thermometer registered 6 below zero and the wind blowing at a gale of 70 miles an hour, temperature of carnation houses stayed at 52 at all times; this would not have been possible without the Generator.

(Signed) JOHN S. HASS,
Jan. 19, 1914. Newport, Rhode Island.

Kroeschell versus Cast Iron.

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 square feet of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 feet. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50 degrees in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ,
Menominee, Mich.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack.

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13. I HAD A BREAKDOWN, ONE OF A BATTERY OF TWO CAST IRON BOILERS CRACKED so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has TAKEN CARE OF SAME GLASS AS THE TWO CAST IRON BOILERS had done easier and better in every way.

nection with university classes, and some commercial growing for demonstration work. I am enclosing a sketch showing the houses, with the piping as I have suggested it. The plan submitted provides for a supply main running down the center of each house, about a foot below the ridge, with leads to pipe coils which are placed under the benches. This calls for from seven to fourteen pipes under each bench, which, it seems to me, would dry out the benches rapidly, besides failing to provide heat near the walls and gutters, where it is needed to be of best service.

I have suggested a plan as follows: Run a supply main down the center of each house about four feet from the ridge, with leads to a 2-inch pipe under each gutter, to pipe coils on the walls below the glass, and to such coils under the benches as would be necessary to furnish sufficient radiation. Would it be better to run more pipes near the roof? Is it better to attempt to prevent condensation each evening or to allow the moisture to freeze on the glass, as long as dripping does not interfere with the morning plan of radiation is the better and have you any suggestion to make?

U. N. D.

The letter states that one plan calls for seven to fourteen returns under each bench, but there is nothing to indicate how many benches will be placed in the houses, or how much glass there is in the side and end walls.

The amount of piping required to heat a greenhouse can be greatly lessened if the temperature is such that the glass frosts over at night. If the class of plants to be grown is such that a temperature of 55 degrees at night will answer in extremely cold weather, not more than two-thirds as much radiation will be required as would be needed for 70 degrees. If there is no more than thirty inches of glass in the outside walls and a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees will suffice, I would suggest running a 3-inch main three or four feet below the ridge and with this feeding a coil of four 1 1/4-inch pipes on the side and end walls. There should be four additional returns under the benches.

For the rooms requiring 70 degrees at night, in addition to the 3-inch flow and four returns on each wall, eight additional 1 1/4-inch returns will be necessary in your cold northern climate. These can be connected with the main flow and return pipes wherever most convenient. In case it is considered necessary to maintain 80 degrees at night in any of the houses, still another coil of eight pipes should be added. There are few plants in common cultivation, however, for which a minimum of 70 degrees at night, with about 10 degrees more during the day, will not answer.

The radiation specified for 60 degrees at night will readily give 70 degrees during the day in ordinary weather.

MANUFACTURER OF

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

The Market.

There is an abundance of all sorts of stock for Easter. One week of moderate weather, with a great deal of sunshine, has brought on quantities of stock. Everything points to good trade. Bulbous stock will be about over after this week. Roses are greatly improved by the spring sunshine and the supply is abundant. Beauties are excellent, but the price is high, with the demand, however, increasing steadily. Giant pink snapdragon is coming into the market in big lots and is finding great favor with the public. The newest fad in pot covers for plants is to cover the pot with green moss instead of crepe paper. It gives the plant a natural finish and harmonizes with all colors of flowers and foliage. Azaleas, genistas, rambles, roses, rhododendrons, lilac, begonias and Easter lilies are all in good condition for Easter. Tausendschon roses are excellent. A few good pots of scilla are being shown. Boston ferns, palms, etc., are selling well.

Various Notes.

Wm. A. Adams was at home a few days last week, suffering with a severe cold and grip.

Joseph Cannon, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has joined the working force of S. A. Anderson.

The pre-Easter display at the Lenox Flower Shop is unique and pleasing. It consists of a miniature hillside, with a log cabin on the crest. In the valley below, there is a brook which babbles over white pebbles and is lost to view behind another cabin. Rustic bridges cross the brook here and there and a brood of ducklings play among the flowers and shrubbery. The motion of the brook and the animation of the ducklings are great attractions to the passing throngs.

On Palm Sunday S. A. Anderson invited the public to see his Easter display at the greenhouses on Elmwood avenue. Personal invitations were mailed to patrons and others were scattered broadcast. There were immense crowds and each visitor was given a rose. The exceedingly attractive Easter baskets in an endless variety of combinations were a special feature. Combination baskets of fruit and flowers are finding favor with the public.

W. J. T. Ivey, of the firm of Thos. Ivey & Sons, Port Dover, Ont., was in town last week.

Recent visitors include E. J. Fancourt, of Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; James J. Bates, Akron, O., and Walter Stroh, of Batavia, N. Y.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business last week was far more satisfactory than it has been for some time, regardless of the fact that the market has been overstocked with flowers of all varieties. Funeral work has been plentiful, and this has cleaned up much of the surplus. Toward the end of the week the supply of carnations decreased somewhat, and the price rose to $3 and $4 per hundred and there is little prospect of it dropping to its former level of $1 and $1.50 for some time.

The demand for potted plants is quite satisfactory, and during the week the stores featured these in their annual Easter flower shows. The stores have been crowded with visitors and purchasers, while large numbers took advantage of the opportunity offered them last Sunday to go to the nearby houses to see the lilies just coming into bloom. There will be plenty of these as well as of spiræas, azaleas, rhododendrons and potted roses, and the quality is exceptionally good. The prices on both cut flowers and plants will be about the same as in previous years, and the same conditions of cut price competition on the part of the street vendors and department stores will prevail.

Various Notes.

The Du Pont Flower Shop, in Du Pont Circle, has been further ornamented by the placing of lattice work over the walls. The lattice will be covered with smilax and will give to the store a bower-like appearance.

"Captain" Fred H. Kramer was the host at a reception tendered to the Minute Men, an organization of which he is a prominent member and which but recently returned from an extended tour through Europe, and their ladies. The conservatory at the rear of the F street store was used for the occasion, and filled as it is with the Easter stock, it looked like a bit of fairyland. At the front of the store was a large orchestra, and professional entertainers helped to make the affair a success. The reception wound up with a banquet. C. L. L.

Erie, Pa.—Adolph F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the American Carnation Society, was the guest of the Baur Floral Co. last week, en route from the New York flower show and a visit with his brother, Henry Baur, in Philadelphia.

The Recognized Standard Insecticide

W. N. Craig writes in Florists' Review (March 5, 1914): "Scale on greenhouse plants is not easy to get rid of, as doses which are sufficiently strong to kill the scale will usually disfigure the plants at the same time. I have found APHINE a first-class remedy for scale, and if you will apply it according to directions you will kill and loosen the scales, although they will not fall off, as will some other pests."

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Spring is here at last. Hyacinths, daffodils and other bulbous stock, outdoor shrubs and cherry trees are in bloom. As a rule such stock coming into bloom before Easter has little effect on the trade, as most people would rather buy more than cut what they have. Easter prospects are only fair. Good lily plants will be scarce, especially tall plants. Other pot plants will be plentiful, but none too much so. Cut flowers are expected to advance in price, but not much over last year's figures. The market last week was cleaned up on all cut stock and business was good, with some decorations and funeral work. Roses have been plentiful, but not in over-supply. White Killarney was in demand all week. Carnations still are plentiful, although less so than several weeks ago. Bulbous stock is about at an end and is scarce. Anyone who has any stock for Easter will get a good price for it.

Club Meeting.

The last meeting of the Florists' Club was held April 3 at W. J. Barnes' greenhouses, Thirty-eighth street and Euclid avenue. Four new members were received into the club. The members realize the importance of the existence of the club, as there is so much business to look after, and progress is being made. The next meeting will be held April 17 at W. L. Rock's store, 1106 Grand avenue, at 8 p. m. sharp.
W. J. B.

H. F. Jones has sold his greenhouses at Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue to Patrick Larkin, retail florist, and John Stevens, a grower at the plant. The consideration was $40,000. The property includes thirty acres of land a quarter of a mile east of Swope park, with 80,000 square feet of glass. The new owners plan to operate an extensive wholesale business out of Kansas City. Mr. Larkin was formerly secretary of the police board.

Wakefield, Mass.—Chas. A. Ball has covered all of his land with greenhouses and is now considering the purchase of another tract for outdoor crops.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The month of March kept to the proverbial description of "It" and ended with mild, fair weather, after several weeks of blustering storms. In business the month was exceptionally good and compared quite favorably with March, 1913, which included Easter. Lent seems to make no difference in the flower trade nowadays.

There is a good stock of all kinds of blooming plants for Easter. Roses are likely to be in short supply, but carnations, valley and lilies will be plentiful. Easter lilies are fine this year, although a little short in stem.

Various Notes.

The Knoxville Florists' Society met Tuesday, April 7, at the store of A. H. Dailey, on Prince street.

C. L. Baum received a small shipment of cut blooms of Carnation Philadelphia from the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, through the courtesy of S. S. Skidelsky & Co. They were in good condition, considering that they were not packed in ice. Mr. Baum considers this one of the best varieties seen here and will house several hundred plants next year. He has some fine azaleas and rhododendrons for Easter.

Business is better than usual just before Easter with A. H. Dailey, and prospects for the holiday are good. Orders for bedding plants and shrubbery are heavy now.

Addison J. McNutt has been having a good sale of pot plants at good prices and the outlook for Easter is excellent.

A good line of stock on hand for Easter and plenty of work in bedding stock make Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno satisfied at present.

The Howell Nursery Co. has been so busy with out-of-town trade that local orders have been delayed. In some cases the local trade has had to be sacrificed to take care of the other orders.

D. R. Mayo finds garden seed trade brisk, but the larger part of the field seed business is over. Cow peas and soy beans are selling well in anticipation of higher prices. The former are $2.40 to $2.50 and the latter $1.90 to $2 per bushel.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt. sacks, at $2.75 per 112 lbs.; $12.50 per 560 lbs.

The President Talks About the Kind of Iron We Kick for in Our Houses

You are up against it when you start kicking about our iron.

LONG ago we stopped buying our iron here, there and everywhere in the open market, where we could get it cheapest.

We found out that the only way to get the high grade of iron, best for greenhouse strength and endurance, was to buy iron containing certain mixtures which the best engineers in the country declare to be best for structural purposes where required to stand the stress and strain that is in a greenhouse.

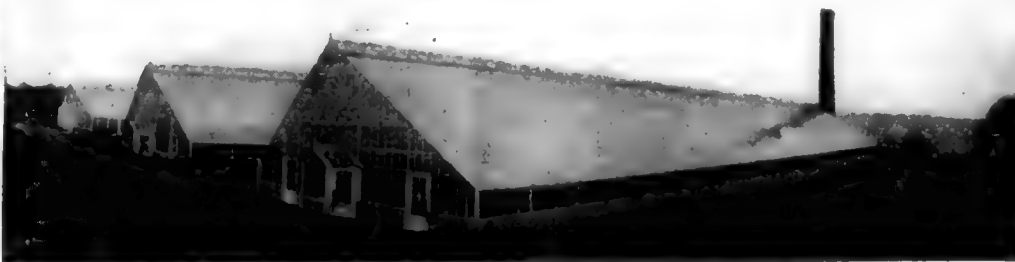

We won't go into the scientific side of the question here; our chemist will gladly do that for you any time you are visiting our factory.

Greenhouse iron must not be too soft; neither can it be too brittle. It must bend to the greatest extent possible before it breaks—still on the other hand it must not bend so easily it lacks rigidity. The weight of iron does not determine its strength, but the proportion of its mixture and proper manufacture together do. There is just the right method of manufacture and mixture of iron that is just right for greenhouses.

Every house we sell you will, every time, have the same right iron, because we buy the same right iron mixture every time—no matter whether the price is up or down.

It's just another one of the things you can depend on depending on in Hitchings houses.

OCEAN VOYAGERS FILL FLORISTS' POCKETS

The telegraph and improved methods have made orders for outgoing ocean liners an increasing factor in the Retail Florist's business

EARLY every day in the year at least 500 cabin passengers leave New York on ocean liners bound for foreign ports. The average for each day is about 1,000, and in the height of the tourist season the number of ocean voyagers leaving New York in a single day sometimes runs well above 3,000. These figures are only for the port of New York; including Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Montreal, San Francisco, Seattle and ocean ports of lesser size, the number of departing voyagers each day reaches an immense total. According to the latest figures, approximately half a million cabin passengers leave this country's ports each year. As all these figures exclude steerage passengers, which are about equal in number, it may be safely assumed that the great majority of these half million ocean voyagers are patrons of the retail florist in their home town.

It is only by the statement of these figures that the enormous size of the business in steamer orders now open to florists can be fully appreciated. Day by day this is increasing. It now puts thousands of dollars into the pockets of New York retailers each year; yet it has only begun to be developed.

Season Now On.

This month of the year marks approximately the beginning of the tourist season, and every week enough people leave the port of New York to populate a small town. From six to a dozen ocean greyhounds leave each Saturday, the favorite day of sailing, and the total of their lists of cabin passengers invariably reaches well into four figures.

Some of these people hail from New York city, but the greater part come from scattered points on the map. The friends of many of them wish to send them bon voyage tokens, and what is better than flowers? So the retailer who has persistently called this branch of his business to his customers' attention receives orders to be telegraphed to the port of departure. The influence of the advertising of the telegraph delivery of flowers on this branch of trade has been considerable. Those florists who, by means of the list of steamer sailings published in The Review, have kept their patrons posted in regard to the dates of departure of the ocean liners begin at this time of the year to reap the results.

Van-loads of Flowers.

As a result, the retailers in the ocean ports have as an important part of their business the filling of orders for departing voyagers. Some of the New York retailers who have given especial attention to this line have so many orders for the passengers of a single vessel that several automobile trucks are required to deliver them at the dock.

It was not so long ago that the dock, and steamer officials looked upon the few flowers they received as so trifling a matter that they need not even give receipts for them. But the growth of the business, supplemented by the demands of the New York retailers, has forced them to make special provision for its care.

Particular attention has also been given these orders by the retailers of the large ports. Every effort that they have made to the greater satisfaction of the steamer passengers has been the means of bringing more business, and recognizing this, they have increased their efforts and their business. The advance from the former paste-board boxes of flowers to the corsage baskets shown in the accompanying illustrations is a big one. How this progress was made and how the orders of the present day are put up, are best described in the words of Max Schling, the New York retailer, whose baskets are those reproduced herewith:

Big Results from Little Change.

"For a long time we filled our orders for outgoing steamers in the same way we filled any city order—put the flowers in a box and sent them to the steamer—until I once had a chance to see the lack of facilities for caring for flowers on a steamer, the scarcity of vases or any vessels to put them in, and from that time on we changed our methods. It is easy to get a simple, inexpensive box with a zinc liner, arrange the flowers the way they should be, and send them already in water. Or the flowers can be placed in a cheap glass vase, sufficiently deep to contain whatever is ordered. Whoever receives them will not forget this little extra attention, but will remember the name of the florist who filled the order in this manner. We have found that in many instances those who received the flowers kept our tag and called on their return from abroad. This, certainly, showed their appreciation.

The Corsage Basket.

"A novelty in this kind of work can be made with corsages. A box about six inches deep can be filled loosely with the regular fancy ferns, the seed of which helps to keep the water clear and sweet, and with a good keeping flower, such as lily of the valley. In between the ferns and valley can be arranged corsages, one for each day of the voyage. For the latter days of the voyage a corsage of cypripediums, one of cattleyas, one of dendrobiums and one of oncidiums will be good. For the first two or three days, sweet peas, gardenias, violets, or something similar may be used. If the corsages are each placed in glass tubes of different sizes, they will make an exceedingly good looking box. The receiver can take out one of the corsages each day without leaving the box altogether empty, as the valley, in ordinary conditions and if well taken care of, will last for the six or seven days of the voyage.

Type of Steamer Basket of Corsages that is Adding to the Retailer's Trade.

"The old way of packing the corsages in boxes is losing more and more ground, and the new arrangement of the flowers in water deserves to gain all that the old loses, and more. The little extra work which this way of sending out the flowers puts us to, does not count when we consider that all the steamer orders are given by patrons who cannot go to see them and must therefore trust to our judgment. We owe this much to the public, which knows about flowers only what we teach, and the more our patrons know about flowers, the better flower buyers and flower utilizers they will be."

PANSY CORSAGES.

Everybody likes pansies and there is sure satisfaction in a well made corsage bouquet of pansies; the bright-faced, fresh little flowers make up splendidly. To make a good corsage of pansies it is necessary to wire the stems. Take a fine wire and insert it in the stem; it goes in easily; then the pansies will stand up, you can put them where you want them, and they will stay where you put them. Also, no one ever will know that there is wire in the bouquet. For the back use violet leaves and the bunch does not call for the use of a shield. If a shield is wanted, however, one of dark green can be added. Of course the stems will be covered with green foil, and there will be added a tie, preferably of medium width green ribbon.

THE LILIES BY THE SEA.

Why Don't They Bloom for Me?

C. M. Luther, of Lawrence, Kan., says Easter trade was good, but some of the lilies were too late, which inspired the following:

Do the lilies bloom in Heaven?
Do they bloom in Heaven for me?
I remember well the story
How they grew near Galilee.
Dearest Master, if I ever
Meet Thee at the crystal sea,
I will never need the lilies
As they grew near Galilee.
But before my Father's glory
And the joys prepared for me,
I may still recall the story
Of the lilies by the sea.

SNAPS FOR MAY 30.

We have recently started into the florists' business on a small scale and we would like to ask you how to have snapdragons in bloom for Memorial day. We started the seed in January and the plants now are from four to five inches high and strong looking.

G. G.

Your plants should be in flower all right for the end of May, as growth is much more rapid from this time onward. The plants, I presume, are in beds or benches. They should have a space 8x8 or 10x10 inches, according to the bushiness of the plants. The larger space would give you heavier spikes, but, as a rule, those of a medium size are more salable for Memorial day. A night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees should not be exceeded. Be careful not to use any strong fumigant, such as tobacco stems or hydrocyanic acid gas, where you are growing snapdragons. The tobacco papers and liquid extracts are, however, quite safe.

As the plants grow they will need some support. This you can either give by running galvanized wires lengthwise and twine crosswise, as in the case of carnations, or use a stake to each plant and tie it round loosely. Probably the wires and twine would be the easiest to apply.

As your plants show flowers, start feeding, either by using cow or sheep manure water, or by giving an occasional top-dressing of pulverized sheep manure or fine bone. The plants require an abundant supply of water and, after this date, there are few days when continuous ventilation cannot be left on, including all nights which are not cold. C. W.

SHADING FOR ASPARAGUS.

Kindly answer the following questions concerning Asparagus plumosus: What is the proper amount of shade to give the plants? We have two houses, each 29½x91, three-quarter-span to the south, with 6-foot gutters, and one house 15x91, even-span, with gutters about eight feet high as the ground slopes. There are no partitions between the houses and all are planted to plumosus in solid beds. The ventilators of the wide houses are hinged at the ridge and those of the narrow house at the header; there is continuous side ventilation at the south and there are seven wall ventilators at the north. Now, the stock in these wide houses has always been burned considerably in hot weather, unless the shade was heavy. Last year we had a mixture of whiting, coal oil and linseed oil put on in places almost as thick as oilcloth, and quite heavily all over. This, of course, stopped the burning, but the trouble seems to be that, when we start to shade, the growth is checked and the burning continues until the heavy stage is reached, probably for the reason that the light in the morning and evening is weak at a time when the plants would stand the clear glass, and thus the growth is softened and made less able to withstand the midday heat.

The narrow house is new and we expect better results from it. I thought that if five or six feet of boards were laid on the south side, thus reducing the glass area, the houses would be more like even-span houses and a light shade could be put over the balance. Our location, you will notice, is eastern Missouri.

How closely may asparagus be cut without injury? Will two or three stubby old leaves suffice or would a tuft of growth be better? Occasionally a plant is found in which the crowns are cut away and there is little prospect of new crowns shooting up. Are eighteen stems a year a fair average cut?

R. W. G. S.

The houses of Asparagus plumosus should have a moderate shading of whiting, white lead and coal oil, put on with a brush to insure an even coat. Then, with continuous ventilation at the ridge and also at the south side, these three-quarter-span houses ought to keep in fair condition. In extremely hot weather, a syringing twice a day would help to keep the temperature down and check the burning, and would also prevent the attacks of red spider. I would not advise covering any part of the house with boards, as the part so covered would have entirely too much shade.

It is not advisable to cut asparagus down too closely, as that practice tends to weaken the plants. If you can average eighteen stems per year, the crop ought to be a satisfactory one.

HARDY ROSES.

Planting and Pruning.

When not fall planted any roses, no matter whether hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas or ramblers, should be got into the ground just as soon as possible. Be sure to soak all roots well, plant deeply, so as to bury grafts or buds well, and firm thoroughly. It is a good idea to head back the shoots a little, but leave the pruning of spring-planted stock until the plants start away into growth. Pruning of all established plants should be done at once. Cut back the hybrid perpetuals, such as Druschki, Laing, Brunner, Crawford, Luizet, etc., to three or four eyes in the case of strong shoots; leave only one or two when they are weaker. Hard pruning insures strong shoots and fine flowers; light pruning gives somewhat earlier flowers, but of poorer quality. One advantage of severe pruning is that such plants are comparatively easily protected in winter, which is not the case when they are but lightly cut back. Cut away all dead and weak wood. Roses, in consequence of the constant freezing and thawing, are often quite loose at this season. Be sure to tramp firmly before pruning. Any loosely planted subjects will never give satisfactory results.

Hybrid Teas.

Hybrid teas, where buried or stored for the winter, should now be replanted. Cut away dead and weak growths, but merely cut the ends of the stronger ones. These require much lighter pruning than the hybrid perpetuals; they also succeed particularly well on lighter land. As they are persistent-flowering and their colors are varied and beautiful, embracing many charming yellow, orange, apricot and other shades, in addition to scarlet, pink and white, they are jumping into favor amazingly and sales of them now exceed those of the hardier hybrid perpetuals.

Ramblers.

Ramblers, when newly planted, do better if cut back quite hard. Any shoots they may carry will flower but sparsely, and, if they are severely headed back, it will insure some stout canes from the base for flowering another season. Established plants should have all dead and weak wood removed. It is a good plan also to bend over the long canes. This makes them break and flower more freely. The common habit is to leave too much old wood on the ramblers. If the canes after flowering can be cut out entirely and the shoots from the bottom are allowed to come up, the plants will flower more abundantly and carry much larger trusses. There now is such a wealth of material among ramblers that it is no wonder they are becoming universally popular. Crimson Rambler has had its day; it led the way for the galaxy of beauties we have today. Flower of Fairfield and Excelsa are much better double reds. Hiawatha is still hard to beat as a scarlet. Tausendschon is probably the favorite among pinks, but Lady Gay, Dorothy Perkins, Minnehaha and others are all beautiful. Carmine Pillar and American Pillar are beautiful singles.

In double whites, White Dorothy has a delicate blush color in the bud which is charming. Alberic Barbier, creamy white with yellow center, and Mrs. M. H. Walsh, pure white, are superb. Leuchtstern, Trier and others are good.

Single-Flowering Ramblers.

The single-flowering ramblers are desirable for trailing over banks and rock work in the same way as Wichuraiana, Pink Roamer and others. The Austrian briars and their hybrids, such as Soleil d'Or, Rayon d'Or, etc., want light pruning. Rosa rugosa and its many beautiful hybrids, such as Coubert, white; Conrad F. Meyer, Mme. del Campo and the beautiful Repens alba, must not be cut back hard, nor should the so-called baby ramblers, such as Catherine Zeimet, Mrs. Cutbush and Baby Dorothy, or the dainty little polyantha Mme. Cecile Brunner, Hermosa, Clothilde Soubert and Leuchtfleur. The baby ramblers and polyanthas and such hybrid teas as Gruss an Teplitz are splendid subjects for massing in beds, as they are persistent bloomers.

PAPER WHITES IN BENCHES.

A recent issue of The Review contained an inquiry from E. W. K., with a request for replies from any fellow florists whose experience might be helpful. The inquiry was, in substance, as follows: "Has anyone ever grown Paper White narcissi by planting them directly on benches? I should like to have the experience of someone who has forced these popular narcissi in this manner, instead of flatting them up, putting them outdoors and bringing them in as needed. I am told that it is not necessary to flat them at all, but that they may be put directly in the benches. This of course would occupy the benches for a longer period of time, but where this is no consideration would the flowers be just as good as those grown in flats?"

For the information of E. W. K., I will state that I have successfully grown Paper Whites by planting them directly into the benches; the growth of the plants and the quality of the flower clusters were much better than in the case of those planted in flats. This will also apply to Spanish iris and gladioli; the winter-blooming gladioli will do far better if planted in the bench or solid bed.

I never put Paper Whites outside, but in flats of dry soil. I place them under a bench in a cool house, and water a few boxes and bring them in as needed. There is no risk in planting directly into the bench and much less work is required in caring for them and watering them. If they are to be forced for some special day, part of them, at least, should be in flats, so that they can be taken into a warmer house if necessary.

Do not put flats of bulbs flat on the bench, but raise them by means of a 3-inch pot or a brick placed under each corner; or, better still, put them on a rack. You will then notice quite a difference in the time required to bring them into bloom. Such, at least, has been my experience. I trust that these suggestions will be of some help to E. W. K. and other brother florists.

Sydney Skelcher.

In a recent issue of The Review, E. W. K. asks about forcing Paper White narcissi planted out on the benches instead of planted in flats. For several years I have grown nearly all my narcissi planted out on the benches and have found it an extremely satisfactory method. I get just as many and as good flowers as are obtained when the bulbs are planted in flats. The earliest batch I put in flats, but from December 1 to February 1 I always bench the bulbs. I select a moderately warm place with a little bottom heat, put in a little soil of any handy kind, fresh or old, insert the bulbs firmly in it and cover with about one inch of soil over the bulbs. Even if the growths have started a couple of inches and are cracked, they will run straight up and will flower in about four weeks with a temperature of 55 degrees. I put in a batch like that every week and it saves a great deal of handling. In my estimation it is far the easiest and best method of forcing Paper White narcissi.

EASTER TRADE

Mansfield, O.—The Berno Flower Shop states that Easter was ahead of last year. While pot plants sold up quickly, cut stock never was in such demand.

Meadville, Pa.—Henry Kruger could not handle the Easter rush without assistance from the veterans, August Kruger and Mrs. Kruger, who said it was like old times to get in the swim again.

Pontiac, Ill.—W. J. Miller & Son report that Easter sales footed up twenty-five per cent more than a year ago, the only shortage being good lilies. They made a great hit with sweet peas, being in full crop.

Hartford, Conn.—John Coombs opened his new store at 741 Main street, with its splendid equipment, just in time for the Easter rush, maintaining also the old store at 752 Main street to handle the business for this special day.

Oconto, Wis.—J. Sylvester says the Easter trade was better than usual, in spite of cold weather and high winds, which made deliveries difficult. Lilies were in more request than ever before, but such small plants as primroses, calceolarias and pelargoniums, which are among his specialties, were most in request with him.

Columbus, O.—J. R. Hellenthal reports that his Easter trade was double that of the early Easter last year. All the retail stores did a big business. The market was flooded with hyacinths and tulips in pots, which were sold at low prices. The better class of blooming plants sold excellently. There was a notable increase in the call for corsage bouquets, sweet peas and violets being most in demand for this purpose.

Malta, O.—W. C. Scovell says he never before had so large a stock of cut flowers, but it was not enough to meet the demand. He also sold a large quantity of pot plants. He has figured it out that his March business was twenty-eight per cent better than March of last year, which included Easter, and that the first twelve days of April gave him 320 per cent more business than the same twelve days of 1913, or seventy-five per cent more than the entire month of April last year.

Clyde, O.—Speaking for the W. E. Hall Estate, E. E. Hall says: "Easter was the first bright day in two weeks, with a chill wind blowing. Business really was better than expected. Bulbous stock was poor sale, as usual, although we think we came out better than most of those in this vicinity, for many had quantities of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths. While we had only a little bulbous stock this season, it will be handled still more lightly in the future; nothing outside of Paper Whites and daffodils, which come in handy for funeral work. Pot plants of all kinds are poor property for us during the winter months, as ninety-five per cent of our retail orders are received over the telephone and people want to see the plants before they buy them. Several business failures and an epidemic of smallpox have hurt business recently, but the prospects for spring trade never looked better."

Easter Basket from the Store of "F. T. D." Pochelon.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—The Hayman Greenhouse Co. opened a branch store on West Main street to show the Easter stock to better advantage.

Gettysburg, Pa.—A. F. Coulson reports the Easter trade as extra good, the demand exceeding the supply, both for cut flowers and pot plants.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. reports a good Easter business, notwithstanding the gloomy outlook caused by the absence of the president, W. E. Trimble, who was called to the bedside of an exceedingly sick brother in Denver, and the serious illness of the foreman's young son, which made it necessary for his wife to take the child to a specialist in Chicago.

BULBS THAT DID NOT FLOWER.

Will you kindly tell me whether it would pay to plant tulip bulbs, that have not blossomed, out in the field? I have about 4,000 that went blind this year and I thought that if they were planted out and grown on for two years they might be good for forcing again. I also have about 5,000 daffodils that went blind. Any advice will be appreciated.

C. A.

The tulips and narcissi that failed to flower were probably heated in transit from Holland, as were many more last season. If planted outdoors the majority of these would probably flower another season, but it would not pay you to attempt to force any of them again. Keep the bulbs in the flats and let them go to rest naturally; then clean out the bulbs and store them in a cool, dry room until the end of October. If preferred, you could plant them out now, but the other plan would give best results. Any attempt to force bulbs again will end in failure, even if they are grown a couple of seasons before reforcing. These bulbs can be bought so cheaply that it would never pay to try forcing a second time.

C. W.

POCHELON'S EASTER BASKET.

An Easter basket with a touch of the secular that is not common to such baskets is shown in the accompanying illustration. Lilies and roses are the chief floral components and no doubt contribute the uplifting spirit necessary to a basket for the holy day. A touch in keeping with the season of the year is the pair of hares—March hares, no doubt—which are fastened to the handle. The basket was made up in "F. T. D." Pochelon's store, the L. Bomb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich.

Mansfield, O.—The Berno Flower Shop states that Easter was ahead of last year. While pot plants sold up quickly, cut stock never was in such demand.

Meadville, Pa.—Henry Kruger could not handle the Easter rush without assistance from the veterans, August Kruger and Mrs. Kruger, who said it was like old times to get in the swim again.

Pontiac, Ill.—W. J. Miller & Son report that Easter sales footed up twenty-five per cent more than a year ago, the only shortage being good lilies. They made a great hit with sweet peas, being in full crop.

Hartford, Conn.—John Coombs opened his new store at 741 Main street, with its splendid equipment, just in time for the Easter rush, maintaining also the old store at 752 Main street to handle the business for this special day.

Oconto, Wis.—J. Sylvester says the Easter trade was better than usual, in spite of cold weather and high winds, which made deliveries difficult. Lilies were in more request than ever before, but such small plants as primroses, calceolarias and pelargoniums, which are among his specialties, were most in request with him.

Columbus, O.—J. R. Hellenthal reports that his Easter trade was double that of the early Easter last year. All the retail stores did a big business. The market was flooded with hyacinths and tulips in pots, which were sold at low prices. The better class of blooming plants sold excellently. There was a notable increase in the call for corsage bouquets, sweet peas and violets being most in demand for this purpose.

Malta, O.—W. C. Scovell says he never before had so large a stock of cut flowers, but it was not enough to meet the demand. He also sold a large quantity of pot plants. He has figured it out that his March business was twenty-eight per cent better than March of last year, which included Easter, and that the first twelve days of April gave him 320 per cent more business than the same twelve days of 1913, or seventy-five per cent more than the entire month of April last year.

Clyde, O.—Speaking for the W. E. Hall Estate, E. E. Hall says: "Easter was the first bright day in two weeks, with a chill wind blowing. Business really was better than expected. Bulbous stock was poor sale, as usual, although we think we came out better than most of those in this vicinity, for many had quantities of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths. While we had only a little bulbous stock this season, it will be handled still more lightly in the future; nothing outside of Paper Whites and daffodils, which come in handy for funeral work. Pot plants of all kinds are poor property for us during the winter months, as ninety-five per cent of our retail orders are received over the telephone and people want to see the plants before they buy them. Several business failures and an epidemic of smallpox have hurt business recently, but the prospects for spring trade never looked better."

Easter Basket from the Store of "F. T. D." Pochelon.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—The Hayman Greenhouse Co. opened a branch store on West Main street to show the Easter stock to better advantage.

Gettysburg, Pa.—A. F. Coulson reports the Easter trade as extra good, the demand exceeding the supply, both for cutflowers and pot plants.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. reports a good Easter business, notwithstanding the gloomy outlook caused by the absence of the president, W. E. Trimble, who was called to the bedside of an exceedingly sick brother in Denver, and the serious illness of the foreman's young son, which made it necessary for his wife to take the child to a specialist in Chicago.

BULBS THAT DID NOT FLOWER.

Will you kindly tell me whether it would pay to plant tulip bulbs, that have not blossomed, out in the field? I have about 4,000 that went blind this year and I thought that if they were planted out and grown on for two years they might be good for forcing again. I also have about 5,000 daffodils that went blind. Any advice will be appreciated.

C. A.

The tulips and narcissi that failed to flower were probably heated in transit from Holland, as were many more last season. If planted outdoors the majority of these would probably flower another season, but it would not pay you to attempt to force any of them again. Keep the bulbs in the flats and let them go to rest naturally; then clean out the bulbs and store them in a cool, dry room until the end of October. If preferred, you could plant them out now, but the other plan would give best results. Any attempt to force bulbs again will end in failure, even if they are grown a couple of seasons before reforcing. These bulbs can be bought so cheaply that it would never pay to try forcing a second time.

POCHELON'S EASTER BASKET.

An Easter basket with a touch of the secular that is not common to such baskets is shown in the accompanying illustration. Lilies and roses are the chief floral components and no doubt contribute the uplifting spirit necessary to a basket for the holy day. A touch in keeping with the season of the year is the pair of hares—March hares, no doubt—which are fastened to the handle. The basket was made up in "F. T. D." Pochelon's store, the L. Bomb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich.

LARGE BED AT WINONA LAKE.

At Winona Lake, Ind., the home of the largest chautauqua assembly next to the original assembly at Chautauqua, N. Y., and the meeting place of the largest Bible conference in the world, is a tract of 200 acres on the shores of Winona lake, which is made as attractive as possible for those who attend the meetings here. To this end bedding plants have been made extensive use of, and the largest piece of this kind of work here may be seen in the accompanying illustration. It was the work of Fred A. King, superintendent of the Winona Greenhouses, which are connected with the Winona Assembly and Schools. This bed, which Mr. King both designed and planted last summer, took almost 20,000 bedding plants, the number, it may be recalled, which were required to spell out the huge "welcome" in front of the convention hall at the S. A. F. meeting at Minneapolis last August.

The florists of Indiana will have an opportunity of seeing Mr. King's work this coming summer, for the Indiana State Florists' Association is planning to have its two days' outing at Winona Lake.

crops. Clay soils are fertilizer holders, and are best plowed and fallowed during the winter.

Of the artificial fertilizers, phosphate and tankage and fish fertilizers may be put on the land in early spring, for they are only slowly soluble, while nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, on account of their quick solubility, should be applied some weeks later. It must be borne in mind, too, that these latter fertilizers will not carry a crop through all its stages of growth, but, being readily available, are auxiliary aids to help a crop at critical stages of its growth. Nitrogen will not force a growth, however, unless the soil and conditions are right, and potash and phosphate be present.

Supplying the Nitrogen.

Coal will not burn without air, and a soil baked on its surface from lack of cultivation will not grow a crop, however much nitrogen is given.

There is an inexhaustible supply of nitrogen in the air, but nature has so arranged that it is not available to the plants for food. They cannot extract it, and because of the scarcity of nitrogen it is the most valuable plant food. Four-fifths of the atmosphere is nitrogen. Yet, so far as is known, no plant is able to extract an atom of it. Nor has science been able to discover any economical method of extracting it.

The clover plant and its allies, such as lupines, peas and vetches, are able by means of the nodules formed on the roots to extract nitrogen, by the aid of bacteria, from the air, but the soil must be in a condition to support the bacteria for it to do so. Putting an ounce of bacteria into the soil is not likely to produce a crop of clover or alfalfa. Lime seems to be an essential constituent for producing bacterial activity in the soil. Alfalfa will sometimes be a successful crop after a good application of land plaster, though previous to the land plaster application the alfalfa growing was a failure.

By some it has been said that corn will extract nitrogen from the air. There is, however, no proof that it does.

Stiffening the Stems.

Nitrogen imparts a green color to the leaf, and makes it larger and more luxuriant in appearance. An excess of it gives a soft growth, such as is often seen in weak carnation stems and grain crops. Salt has a checking action upon the soft growth, and when applied to grain land and plowed it stiffens the straw. The same effects of salt may be seen on carnations grown near the ocean, for the stems have a stiff, wire-like appearance. Muriate of potash in solution, applied with the liquid manure to carnation benches, will assist in

SOILS AND*PLANT FOOD*BEST SOILS FOR FLORISTS.*Use of Lime and Manure.

Manures are the substances used to make up the natural deficiency which has been caused in the soil. Manure may be divided into two classes, natural and artificial.

Lime is one of the most important natural manures; it combines with organic and other acids, and so changes an acid soil to an alkaline soil, or, as is commonly said, sweetens it. It acts as a direct plant food, and improves the mechanical condition of soils. It acts upon the inorganic substances of a soil, particularly potash and soda, making these substances available to the plant for food. It also promotes the formation of double silicates in the soil. Mixed in a compost heap, it favors the production of nitrate of potash.

Lime is exhausting to soils, as it renders available or liberates organic matters such as ammonia from fertilizers and manure, and so should be applied to land either before or after the application of manure or fertilizers. Lime is never plowed in, but sown on the surface, and either harrowed or raked in. Lime should not be left on the surface.

As a plant food, farm and stable manure occupies an important if not first place. Yet it is by no means the cheapest, if one has to buy it. Nor is it essential. In fact, the best potatoes and many crops are grown on artificial fertilizers alone. Four thousand pounds or two tons of stable manure contain, on an average, fifty pounds of plant food. Yet the remaining 3,950 pounds is not all valueless; for it supplies humus to the soil, which the artificial fertilizers do not. This straw and other organic matter tends to lighten heavy clay soils, and may serve as a holder of moisture for sandy soils. But on hilly land, or in the case of long distances, it does not pay to have so much humus, when, by growing green crops and plowing them under, the same or better results are obtained. It must be taken into account, too, that one horse will draw enough artificial fertilizers for one acre, while for the requisite amount of stable manure fifteen to twenty teams are needed.

Hungry Soils and Grateful Soils.

Some soils are known as hungry soils, others as grateful soils. The hungry soils are of a sandy character and are constantly in need of manure. Manure put on such soils in the autumn, or long before a crop needs it, is washed out before the crop can use it. But if a clover crop is on such land, and after the hay is cut a good dressing of fertilizer or manure be put on as a top-dressing, the clover will take it up and hold it until plowed under in the spring. Hungry soils should never be allowed to lie fallow over winter.

A grateful soil is a good loam, or clay loam, with abundance of double silicates, bacteria and organic matter. They yield good returns in the form of strengthening and stiffening the stems. It is well to study these different modes of action and blend the various substances, so that any bad action of one may be counteracted by the other. Special manures are prepared for particular crops. Yet all soils are not deficient in those materials.

This paper, which is continued from The Review of April 2, was prepared by W. G. Gomersall, of Nyack, N. Y., and met with such approval that it has been read before a number of horticultural societies in the east.

What is really needed is something to make up the deficiency in the soil, but this would necessitate having the soil analyzed, and even an analysis of soils, unless it showed the active part only, would not be of much use.

Sulphate of ammonia is a source of supply of nitrogen. It is largely prepared by treating the waste ammonia liquid of gas works with sulphuric acid.

TROUBLE OVER INSURANCE.

It is reported that the Hoosier Mutual Cyclone Insurance Co., of Dunkirk, Ind., has encountered trouble in doing business outside the state of Indiana. The following is from the Western Underwriter, a well known insurance authority, issue of April 2:

"The Hoosier Mutual Cyclone, of Dunkirk, Ind., has been soliciting business, apparently in good faith, in Ohio, though not licensed. It was told to stop it, as the company was not admitted, and organized as it was under the laws of another state, could not be. The Ohio department has been notified by the Dunkirk company that no insurance except cyclone and hail on greenhouses and stock had been written in Ohio, but that no more business would be done until the officers could confer with the state department."

THE OLDEST ODD FELLOW.

George Main, who for many years was a Concord resident and business man, being a florist located where Charles V. Kimball now conducts the same business, is believed to be the oldest living Odd Fellow in New Hampshire. He became affiliated with White Mountain lodge, March 22, 1844, thus having been a member for seventy years. Although in his ninety-fifth year, Mr. Main's health is remarkably good for one of so advanced years. He is nearly blind, but goes out of doors every day when the weather permits. For several years Mr. Main has made his home with his daughter in Manchester.

BLIGHT ON VINCA FOLIAGE.

Will you kindly tell us what is the matter with the enclosed vincas? They are on the front edge of a bench in a house with the temperature about 60 to 68 degrees. This blight, or whatever it is, seems to spread rapidly, but it affects only the vincas. After it is on the plant a while the leaves drop. What will cure it, if anything?

G. W. H. & S.

You are keeping your vincas much too warm. Give them a temperature of 50 degrees at night, which is ample. I would cut back the worst affected plants, pick off the worst affected leaves on the balance, and spray once a week with Bordeaux mixture, giving the plants meantime a somewhat dry atmosphere and not syringing over the foliage at all between the sprayings of Bordeaux. This trouble usually comes from keeping the plants in a too warm and moist house, especially when the plants do not get full sunlight.

TIMING THE CROPS.

C. C. Pollworth does not agree with those who say that weather conditions this year were unfavorable for plant growing; he says conditions were ideal for timing the Easter stock and he submits the photographs reproduced herewith as evidence of it. One picture shows a bench of hydrangeas and the other one of the houses of Easter lilies grown by the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee. Mr. Pollworth says the azaleas and rambler roses were equally well timed and that he does not recall a year when the stock was more nearly on the dot.

Petoskey, Mich.—E. T. Hammond, who has conducted a greenhouse business here for some years, has closed his establishment and gone to Pontiac, Mich., and will take a position in a large establishment there.

Corsicana, Tex.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clowe, proprietors of the Corsicana Greenhouses, have replaced one of their old houses with a larger new one and made a number of other changes for the improvement of the plant.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

OUTDOOR CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

I have ordered 400 early-flowering and pompon chrysanthemums, in forty different varieties. What kind of stimulant or fertilizer should I give them? It is my idea to get them as nearly perfect as possible, so that I may select the best of the forty varieties and buy them by the thousand next year, for I intend to purchase three or four acres of land in this part of Long Island and go into business for myself. I am a young man and have a good deal to learn, but all that I learn from The Review goes down in my think-box and stays there; some day it will come in handy.

Please let me know of some good, scientific stimulant for chrysanthemums that are grown outdoors; state how it should be used and how often. What proportion of well rotted horse manure should be used in the soil? What is a good spray for insects on outdoor mums? When mums are pinched off, would the slips make good plants for next year if I could make them root? G. F.

If I understand G. F. correctly, he wishes to grow mums outdoors and he wants a selection of the earliest and best kinds, to be grown afterward in quantity. Outdoor cultivation differs somewhat from indoor growing. Get a fairly good patch of soil. Give it a top-dressing of three or four inches of well decomposed stable fertilizer and bone meal, dug in, and this will carry a crop through, providing the plants receive a sufficient quantity of water.

If G. F. wishes to get his flowers particularly fine, he can water them once a week during the month of August with either nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, dissolved in the proportion of one pound of either to fifty gallons of water. Another excellent fertilizer is nitrate of potash, applied in the same proportion. It will be found that any of these stimulants will work much better if the plants have been making a strong, healthy growth, in soil previously enriched, as before stated, with bone meal and stable fertilizer.

For the insects that will be troublesome in outdoor growing, any of the numerous insecticides can be used, sprayed as directed. This in most cases will keep the plants clear of black fly and green fly, particularly when aided by copious sprayings of clear, cold water on summer evenings.

The query, "When mums are pinched off, would the slips make good plants for next year if I could make them root?" is a little indefinite. If the plants are carefully topped, as it is termed, and the cuttings are placed in the sand, in most cases they will root and produce satisfactory flowers this year, in addition to making good flowering plants for succeeding years.

If G. F. has an idea of making permanent plantings of hardy varieties, he will find it to his advantage to take up the plants every spring, break them up into individual cuttings or shoots and start them over again. Much larger flowers will result from this method than by continuing the old stools in the same place year after year. C. H. T.

RED MUMS FOR CHRISTMAS.

We should like to know something about the best late red chrysanthemum to come on for Christmas. What is the best variety and when should the plants be set out in the bench? W. G. S.

It is difficult to say what is the best late red mum. The only red I know of that will come really first-class as to size and quality, with the Chadwicks, which are the standard for lateness, is Pockett's Surprise. This variety is excellent, although somewhat difficult to procure, as it is by no means a free propagator. Growers in many sections use the old John Shrimpton as their late crimson. This is good but somewhat small. Harvard is another red of comparatively recent introduction and is highly spoken of, but I have not grown it to any extent and therefore am not in a position, personally, to say anything about it. Chas. H. Totty.

THE MRS. ROBINSON MUM.

I would appreciate receiving some information regarding Chrysanthemum Mrs. Robinson. If the terminal bud is reserved, what size of flowers will this variety produce? Is it a reflexed or an incurved variety? I understand that it is better suited for pot culture than for bench purposes. L. S.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. Robinson does much better on a medium late crown bud; that is, on a bud secured August 20 to September 1. The terminal bud produces a flower much like the type of Japanese incurved, but L. S. is in error in assuming that it is better for pot plants than for bench culture. If he is looking for pot plants, he would better procure some of the type known as Caprice mums. There is no better type of pot plant. Fourteen or fifteen years ago Mrs. Robinson was the most largely grown white, but in our section it developed a softness of texture in the petals which put it out of the running as a market flower. C. H. T.

WIRE STAKES FOR MUMS.

Heretofore we have been tying our chrysanthemums with strings. As we now desire to stake them with galvanized iron wire, please inform us what gauge of wire we should buy and in what lengths for such varieties as Wm. Turner, Chrysolora, Smith's Advance, Nonin, etc. L. S.

In staking chrysanthemums with wire, I believe the best way to do is to use what are known as rose stakes. These are ready for immediate use and have sufficient strength to stand the weight of the mum plant. As to the length, a 4-foot stake is ample for such varieties as Wm. Turner and Chrysolora; the 3-foot size will answer for Nonin and the 2-foot size for Smith's Advance, if it does not grow any taller with L. S. than I have so far seen it. You will find advertisements of these stakes in The Review. C. H. T.

Geraniums

GERANIUMS DAMPING OFF.

I am sending a geranium and should like to have you tell me what the trouble is with it. I bought about 4,000 rooted cuttings of these plants and potted them in 2½-inch pots of loam soil, with about a 3-inch pot of bone meal and a dash of sand to a bushel of soil. This was done in the latter part of November or the early part of December. About three or four weeks ago I repotted them in 4-inch pots, in good loam, with a dash of sand and a 4-inch pot of bone meal per bushel. Now a great many of the plants are getting red leaves and look like the one I am sending you. A lot of them are rotting a short distance above and just below the soil. The temperature of our houses is about 50 degrees at night and about 65 degrees in the daytime. Up to last year I always had first-class geraniums, but at that time they began to act in this way. F. & F.

It seems to me, from the appearance of the sample plant received, that the main trouble has been too deep potting; that is to say, burying the stems too much in the soil. The one received had been potted far too deeply, and, if the others were similarly potted, I am not at all surprised that a large number damped off.

Your soil seems to have been all right, but a shift from a 2½-inch to a 4-inch pot is a considerable one. I find the plants do far better when first potted into 2-inch pots, later into 3-inch pots, and finally into 4-inch pots. This entails more work, but the quality of the geraniums well repays one for the additional labor. There is always grave danger of injury to geraniums when they get a somewhat big shift, especially if water is then applied in immoderate quantities. Your temperature is all right; so, probably, is the ventilation, etc. It is safer to under-water rather than overwater geraniums, and remember that if your cuttings, when received, seem leggy, it is a suicidal policy to make them appear short by resorting to deep potting. This may not be entirely the cause of your loss, but at this distance it looks as though it might be the principal one. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

This was a wonderful Easter for the plantmen, with a complete disposal of everything salable and most of the stock perfect, the weather and the time combining to favor the growers and to make deliveries easy. There was no scarcity of anything except the small and medium sizes of azaleas. Never have I seen more beautiful plant combinations. Each artist expressed his individuality in novel and elaborate creations. The windows were made especially attractive. Everything at all reasonable in price was disposed of. A few of the expensive plants sold slowly. The day of $50 azaleas and baskets is over.

Some call it, as usual these later years, a plant Easter, but the cut flower department was again in evidence. There was no unreasonable addition to the regular prices, and the many hundreds of retailers in the two cities appreciated the fair conditions and bought heavily. A fair estimate of the average level may be gathered from the prices of the principal varieties. American Beauties, the best of them, reached 50 cents; some Brunners touched the same figure. The novelties in roses advanced to 15 cents, the older varieties selling at from 8 to 12 cents. A good deal of the short-stemmed stock brought low prices; one wholesaler made a sale at midnight as low as $15 per thousand.

Carnations were abundant and 2 to 5 cents was the regular quotation; most of the arrivals were disposed of at from $3 to $4 per hundred. The select orchids were quickly disposed of at 75 cents. I heard of a few touching the dollar mark. Violets, which were none too plentiful, made their exit for the season with flying colors, at 75 cents to $1. Of course there were plenty of violets and orchids that sold below these figures. Large quantities of violets were short-stemmed, and some had the earmarks of age.

Valley was in good demand and held at $4 per hundred for the select throughout the day. The best lilies did not go above 12 cents. The market was full of them. Prices fell to 10 cents and even to 8 cents as the night came on. Of tulips, daffodils and bulbous stock of all kinds, of hyacinths, callas, sweet peas, stocks, daisies, lilac, wallflowers and mignonette there was no lack, and in these but little advance in prices was made.

Monday the inevitable retreat began, and before the end of the present week normal and much lower levels are assured.

Club Meeting.

An attendance of over 100 greeted President Duckham at the meeting of the Florists' Club April 13. F. R. Pier-son, chairman of the flower show committee, gave an interesting address on the exhibition and said there will be a profit of over $1,000 to divide between the club and the Horticultural Society of New York. Total receipts amounted to over $27,000. Nearly $9,000 in cash premiums was paid and silver cups to the value of $1,100 were awarded. A motion to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the Horticultural Society, with a view to a flower show in 1915, was unanimously carried. Votes of thanks were given Julius Roehrs Co.

and A. H. Hews Co. for the loan of stock, and to Joseph A. Manda for his efficient management. Interesting addresses on the exhibition also were made by Messrs. O'Mara, Wallace Pier-son, Fuld, Schloss, Totty, Ebel, Irwin, Manda, Holt and Bunyard.

The following were elected to membership: John R. Baumann, Rahway, N. J.; Joachim Boehler, Locust Valley, N. Y.; H. D. Darlington, Flushing; Anthony F. Dwyer, North Bergen, N. J.; N. S. Hitchcock, New Rochelle; Thomas L. Hughes, Millbrook; John A. Kennedy, Red Bank, N. J.; Samuel H. Russin and F. A. Steinhoff, West Hoboken, N. J.; Charles H. Brown, Thomas F. Galvin, Sol. Hanfling, J. R. Kervan, A. Kottmiller and S. H. Russin. Messrs. Duncan, Bohler and Kervan, new members, were introduced and briefly expressed their appreciation. Nominations were: J. B. Deamud, Harry Ramm, Wm. H. Mallan, C. N. DuRie, L. Bonnet, Ed. C. Vick, L. Halloren, H. Mauntch, S. G. Milosy, Wm. Entermann, P. G. Josephson and Alfred H. Fisher.

Harry A. Bunyard announced the meeting of the National Sweet Pea Society at the Museum of Natural History June 27 and 28 and the club voted $50 in behalf of the premium list, which already is large.

Prof. Headly, of the New Brunswick Experiment Station, gave an interesting lecture on insect pests and the various methods of controlling them.

Various Notes.

The steamer Arcadian arrived from Bermuda last week with over 1,000 boxes of Easter lilies. The ship has brought this season over a million lilies; most of them are sold directly to the visitors who have been in Bermuda and left their orders for direct shipment. Few of the lilies seem to have reached the New York cut flower market.

The new law concerning Sunday closing and twenty-four hours a week of continuous rest from labor for employees is now in effect, and a few have reason to declare it practical. It is said one of the florists on Fifth avenue has already been subjected to three fines, of $50, $100 and $500. A third offense entitles one to a free pass to the Tombs. The law seems arbitrary, and is especially severe upon the florists' trade.

The Walter R. Siebrecht Co. announces its Baltimore interests have been purchased by the Baltimore Cut Flower Co. Mr. Siebrecht retains an interest in the new company, of which Thomas Barker is president and manager.

Mr. Dierks, of the firm of Aumer, Dierks & Arenwald, has undergone a severe operation and is still in the hospital, but at last accounts was out of danger and convalescing.

The Brooklyn Wholesale Cut Flower Market, a new enterprise, under the management of Joseph Levy, seems to give promise of success. The Easter trade, Mr. Levy says, was quite satisfactory.

Messrs. Trepel and Berstadt, who have charge of the cut flower department of Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, added a large part of the store's basement to their sales space for Easter. These gentlemen have two other stores in Brooklyn.

Mr. Abrams, manager of the flower department of Abraham & Strauss, in Brooklyn, says the firm is building a "house of flowers" for him, in the style of the one on Fifth avenue, New York, with a conservatory on top of its third story. It will be ready for occupancy before Decoration day.

All reports from Brooklyn, both wholesale and retail, indicate one of the best Easters the city has ever known.

F. Murray, manager of the Tuxedo Park Association, was in the city last week, a guest of Harry Bunyard.

Gladolus America at P. J. Smith's for Easter was as perfect as at the height of the gladolus season.

Herbert L. Jackson, formerly with L. B. Nason, has opened a store at Onderdonk and Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, which he calls the Rosery.

A $25 plant of Dendrobium nobile was the center of Wm. Kessler's window decoration Easter week. Mr. Kessler's plant business for the week was far ahead of any season in his experience.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is enjoying great success at present, its sales drawing such an attendance that there is hardly standing room in the big store. The seed department is also booming.

D. C. Howell has charge of the flower department of A. D. Matthews' Sons, Brooklyn.

Alex. M. Westwood, whose store is in the Pennsylvania Terminal, has recovered from an attack of grip. He will be married early in May.

Ed. Van Reyper, of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., is still confined to his home with rheumatism.

The Cut Flower Exchange has renewed its lease in the Coogan building.

Al. Rigo, formerly with Henshaw & Fenrich, is now with the Pennock-Meehan Co.

Most of the seedsmen did a large business in potted plants for Easter. The busy season is here, and day and night work general.

At the meeting of the executive board of the American Rose Society, held in New York April 13, the matter of awarding the Hubbard quinquennial gold medal to the raiser of the best American rose of the period was again laid on the table.

David Clarke's Sons had sixteen churches to decorate for Easter.

G. Myer has purchased the corner he has occupied for some years, at Fifty-eighth street and Madison avenue, and will make important improvements during the summer.

Visitors: Frank M. Johnson and George Husmann, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Miss Mae Carroll, of Norwood, O.

J. Austin Shaw.

Alton, Ill.—Joseph Krug, who has been confined to his home for several weeks, is well on the road to recovery, being able to get outdoors now.

Webster City, Ia.—The Curtis Floral Co. is contemplating the dismantling of the range at Hampton, Ia., and the removal of the houses to its plant here.

Port Jervis, N. Y.—Frank J. Weiss has made many improvements at the Brierley place and hopes to rebuild some, as well as to add more glass soon. Business is steadily increasing. He came here two years ago, taking hold of a business greatly neglected, and has already made an excellent impression.

OBITUARY

Theodore Ewoldt.

Theodore Ewoldt, a member of the firm of Ewoldt Bros., Davenport, Ia., and one of the best known florists of the Tri Cities, died of Bright's disease, April 8, at the home of his brother, Frank, after an illness of several months. His age was 36 years. A few days before his death there was much apparent improvement in his condition and there were hopes of his recovery, but there was a sudden change for the worse.

Mr. Ewoldt was a charter member of the Tri-City Florists' Club and had at various times served the society as president, as secretary, and in some of the minor offices. He was one of those who put life and enterprise into the club and he will be greatly missed by the other members. The funeral services were held at the Elks' club rooms, April 10, and the interment was at Pine Hill cemetery. His death was preceded only a few days by that of his father, who passed away April 4.

Edward James Brown.

Edward James Brown, 55, died April 2 from cancer, at his residence on Crescent street, East Bridgewater, Mass. He had been a resident of the town for more than sixteen years, conducting an extensive greenhouse business. He had been one of the largest producers of cucumbers and tomato plants in the section. Mr. Brown was born in Trowbridge, England, and came to this country when a young man. Mr. Brown was burned out a number of years ago and then went to Springfield, where he remained a few years, returning to East Bridgewater about three years ago. He attended the Central Methodist church. A widow and four children, Cecil, Olive, Raymond and Edward, survive him. The funeral was held Saturday, April 4, from his late home. Burial was in Elmwood cemetery.

Springfield, O.—Glenwood Greenhouse is the name of a new concern recently started on rural route No. 9.

Hamilton, O.—G. A. Beckmann, formerly with the Busy Bee Floral Co., at Middletown, O., has opened a store here at 3 Main street.

Athol, Mass.—Warren D. Lee has sold his greenhouse, dwelling and two acres of land to Clarence D. Hamilton, formerly in the grocery business here. Clifford H. Smith, also a cucumber grower, who was in partnership with Mr. Lee, will continue in the same relationship with Mr. Hamilton. Mr. Lee sold the business on account of his ill health.

Hamilton, O.—As most of the trees and other plant growths of this town were washed away in the flood last spring, the Heiser Nursery & Floral Co. is having a run of work replacing the lost stock. Karl W. Heiser, who manages the concern, was a school teacher until recently, although he grew and shipped plants and flowers, having a foreman in charge of the work. A crop of 60,000 daffodils is being cut for the Cincinnati and Dayton wholesale markets.

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

I have a house planted to Comet tomatoes, a double row on each side of a 6-foot raised bench. The rows are sixteen inches apart, and the plants are twelve inches apart in the row. The benches are ten inches deep, with two inches of well rotted cow manure in the bottom. The soil is river silt, which has raised two crops of lettuce. How shall I treat these tomatoes to get the largest possible yield before August 10? They are now twenty-four inches high, single stem, with two well formed trusses. What should the yield be? Do you advise leaf pruning?

G. D. R.

It would have been better if you had spaced your plants a little farther apart. Twelve inches in the rows is too close; sixteen to eighteen inches would have been better, with twenty to twenty-four inches between the rows. The leaves will require some cutting back, but do not head them back over half their length. Hard cutting back, while it will admit more light, will only spoil the quality of the fruit. Of course you will be planning to train the plants to single stems and to pinch out the tops after five or six bunches of fruits are set. Remove all laterals clean as they appear. Artificial pollination at this season is unnecessary. Comet tomatoes grown in this way should give six to ten pounds per plant; it all depends on how well you grow them.

A night temperature of 60 degrees, free ventilation on all possible occasions and a dry atmosphere are requirements for successful tomato culture. The plants will have ample plant food for some time yet. When they have reached their full height and all the bunches are formed you can use liquid cow manure once a week, or top-dress with sheep manure and water it in. A mulch of old manure when all fruit is set will prevent the soil from drying out so much and the plants will soon fill it with active roots. C. W.

SULPHO TOBACCO SOAP.

In a reply to N. V. C., published on page 170 of The Review for April 2, I stated that "Sulpho Tobacco soap," about which N. V. C. had inquired, "is good for mildew but not for aphids." I wish to correct the statement before somebody attacks it. I had Sulphocide in mind; this is purely a remedy for mildew and fungus. Sulpho Tobacco soap is a remedy for aphids and other insects as well as having fungicidal properties. Sulpho Tobacco soap will kill aphids. C. W.

Meadville, Pa.—R. W. Haas, of George W. Haas & Son, is clerk of Meadville Canton No. 47, I. O. O. F.

Chester, W. Va.—Mr. Fulmer, of Hookston, has leased the Colton greenhouse, on Fifth street, and will operate it during the coming year. Repairs are being made on the building at present.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE report is that the window glass trade is unable to make immediate shipment of greenhouse sizes, production having been light and demand the heaviest ever known. At this season the glass factories should be accumulating stock for summer.

NEARLY always the success of a florist who builds up a permanent business, either wholesale or retail, is based on service. The florist who makes price his chief sales argument sometimes does excellently for a time, but the man who does not charge enough so that he can give invariably good stock, do good work and do it promptly will find, in the course of time, that regular buyers would rather pay fair prices than be disappointed with the flowers.

THE EASTER BUSINESS.

It is a pleasure to see from the newsletters in this week's issue that the Easter business everywhere was good. The report is practically unanimous. From one end of the country to the other the business appears to have come up to the most sanguine expectations, while in many cases the business was better than anyone thought it would be. The late Easter appears to have been in favor of the trade. The report is general that there was a splendid business in blooming plants, practically everything selling out, probably as closely as ever can be the case now that the quantity of stock produced has become so great. There is some complaint that the cold and cloudy weather prevented flowering some of the stock on time, but no important quantities appear to have missed. There are occasional reports that the smaller sizes of azaleas were overdone, and here and there one reads that bulbous stock did not sell as satisfactorily as it does at an earlier Easter. The activities of the plantmen appear to have been fully repaid, without detracting anything from the marketability of cut flowers. Along the eastern seaboard there appear to have been enough cut flowers, especially carnations, but in the Mississippi valley the condition appears to have been reversed. Many correspondents comment on the increased demand for corsage flowers, especially Spencer sweet peas, which apparently can be sold in enormous quantities within reasonable price limits. The supply of lilies seems to have been adequate, with prices gradually working lower.

Taking the Easter business as a whole, it appears to have been the most satisfactory recorded in a number of years.

THE REGULAR THING.

In each issue of The Review there appears some little note—just a few lines—about the good success that has attended some small advertiser's efforts to move his surplus stock. The idea is to show how any member of the trade can turn a surplus into cash, for everybody has an occasional surplus. There is nothing exceptional about the letters from advertisers that are printed; two or three are kept in type for publication as opportunity presents, and many more could be shown if it would serve any useful purpose. Those used all are unsolicited expressions of the advertiser's satisfaction—merely extracts from the daily mail. Like this:

I enclose my check for $1.80 to pay for the eighteen lines of advertising in March. By this expenditure I was able to sell over $100 worth of surplus stock, and would have sold as much more if I had been able to fill all the orders; am still returning checks.—S. M. Harbison, Danville, Ky., April 8, 1914.

We are sold out for a few weeks, but you will hear from us again, as we thank you for the satisfactory results we get from The Review.—Tidewater Plant Co., Franklin, Va., April 8, 1914.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Although the early prospect was none too good, it turned out to be an excellent Easter. Nearly everyone is satisfied. There is little complaint. From the wholesale point of view prices were excellent.

How the volume of business compares with other years it is difficult to say with any degree of certainty, but the increase probably was in keeping with the steady increase in glass. A late Easter is expected to afford larger crops than an early one, but the lack of sunshine for two weeks preceding April 9, coupled with low temperatures, cut down supplies some think as much as twenty per cent. The weather turned bright April 9, and moderately warm, which helped a lot. The retailers could have asked nothing better, unless it was lower prices for cut flowers.

Taking it by and large, supply and demand were pretty evenly balanced. There was a call for more pot plants, but had these been available there would have been too many cut flowers. Some items of cut stock were short of the demand, but this only served to turn buyers to other lines and make a fair average price all around. If one's aim had been the greatest good to the greatest number, it hardly could have been better served.

The principal shortage was on carnations, and at that some wholesalers had enough so that they were able to fill all their own orders and still have considerable quantities to sell to other wholesalers. On the whole, the quality of the stock was fair. The bulk of the carnations were sold at $40 and $50 per thousand, but there were a good many tickets written at $6 per hundred.

Of roses there was an abundance in the shorter lengths, but a scarcity of the long, fancy grade. Also, Killarney was much more plentiful than White Killarney, as the growers last spring cut down on their plantings of white roses. Early in the week the color of Killarney was decidedly off, but by Saturday it had become quite good. Killarney Queen was the best pink rose, decidedly. Sunburst brought more money, length for length, than any other rose, though Milady sold excellently. Mrs. Russell, Rhea Reid, Hillingdon and Sawyer are not offered in quantity and cleared well. Ward was in demand for corsage work and Richmond, which was in good crop with one or two growers, moved better than had been expected. Beauties were not a large factor. Two or three houses had moderate supplies of good quality and did a nice business because others either were not in crop or still are cutting poor quality.

As often happens, the Easter lily situation turned out the reverse of what had been expected. Wholesalers had anticipated too many short lilies, and pushed them, with the result that the stock offered April 11 averaged fair length. There was enough. Some houses were short, but they could buy, and prices at the close were reasonable, for Saturday afternoon one grower was telephoning wholesalers offering them any part of 25,000 lilies still in the greenhouses, stating that his regular wholesaler would not need them.

Quite a few more sweet peas could have been used. There was a fairly large supply, but the new Spencers are so fine they sell splendidly. Prices ran up to $2 per hundred, but above that the buyers balked. Good single violets also sold well, but the quality of the Hudson river doubles was so poor some of the wholesalers did not dare ship them and many local retailers would not handle them; consequently these were a glut.

Bulbous stock never sold better. The supply was not so large as at many earlier Easters, but considerable quantities were offered and it was impossible to push the prices much above normal without checking the sale. All the miscellaneous flowers sold excellently, and it largely depends on the way these smaller items clean up how generally satisfactory Easter turns out to be. This year it was good.

Business in the market April 13 was better than had been expected, indicating that the retailers had cleaned up well for Easter. The out-of-town orders came stronger than the city trade, some of the local people reporting a little stock left over, but more of them being too tired to begin pushing again within a day or two. There is an abundance of stock of all kinds except carnations and single violets. The violet season is practically at an end and carnations were cut so close for Easter that a day or two passed without many being ready. Beauties at last are coming strong and roses are abundant, especially the medium lengths. There are few really short roses and not many really long stems. The market is full of lilies; there are many more than usual to be sold after Easter.

Various Notes.

It has been with pleasure that the market this week has made the acquaintance of Felix Reichling, who has succeeded D. T. Matchen as manager of Peter Reinberg's store. Mr. Reichling is a most affable gentleman. For the last twelve years he has been connected with the Great Atlantic Tea

At Niles Center April 13 the burial of the father of Chris. Blameuser and the uncle of the Blameuser brothers was attended by many florists. John Zech, of the city wholesalers, was present.

The president and secretary of the Chicago Florists' Club were on hand promptly for the meeting April 9, but it was right in the Easter rush, so that they had only a bare quorum. No business was transacted beyond electing the following new members: David Lundin, Clarendon Hills, Ill.; J. J. Grullemans, Lisse, Holland; James E. Jones, Richmond, Ind.; A. M. Sanders, 72 East Randolph street; Peter Schowbo, 5434 North Robey street.

That this has been an excellent season for the sale of young rose stock is the report of F. J. Benthley. Mrs. Sawyer has been in excellent demand.

The building in which A. L. Vaughan & Co. are located was sold recently to out-of-town investors. A number of improvements soon are to be made.

The city recently appointed a board to reinspect all electric wiring. One of the things the board did was to order all the wires in the store of Kennicott Bros. Co. placed in tubing. The work was started the morning after Easter.

That ferns will reach $5 per thousand before Memorial day is the prediction of Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel.

In blooming plants George C. Hartung, proprietor of the Kensington Greenhouse, at 11816 South Michigan avenue, had a better Easter business than ever. Bulbous stock, especially, went briskly, at good prices. Funeral work has been rather heavy the last two weeks.

Natalby's restaurant, adjournment being taken to the company's offices for a business discussion. Frank Johnson, sales manager, and George Husmann, who has charge of the artificial goods, are in New York this week. A. L. Randall says that in all his many years as a wholesaler he never has seen hardy cut ferns sell at $4 before Easter, or so scarce as now.

The Boston Store had its annual sale of lilies in pots, at 32 cents a plant, regardless of number of flowers. Thousands of plants were sold, most of them standing twelve to eighteen inches above the pot, carrying three to six flowers or large buds. Shorter plants were wholesaling on the basis of 10 cents per flower April 10, the supply of unpledged stock being small by then.

The store of the E. C. Amling Co. was open continuously from 7 a. m. April 11 to noon April 12, twenty-nine hours, the same as is the custom before Christmas.

The funeral of Fire Marshal Seyferlich, April 11, made a big run of design work right in the height of the Easter rush. There were five automobile loads of flowers.

Some excellent rambler roses were put on the market by Ernest Oechslin. He sold out to the last plant.

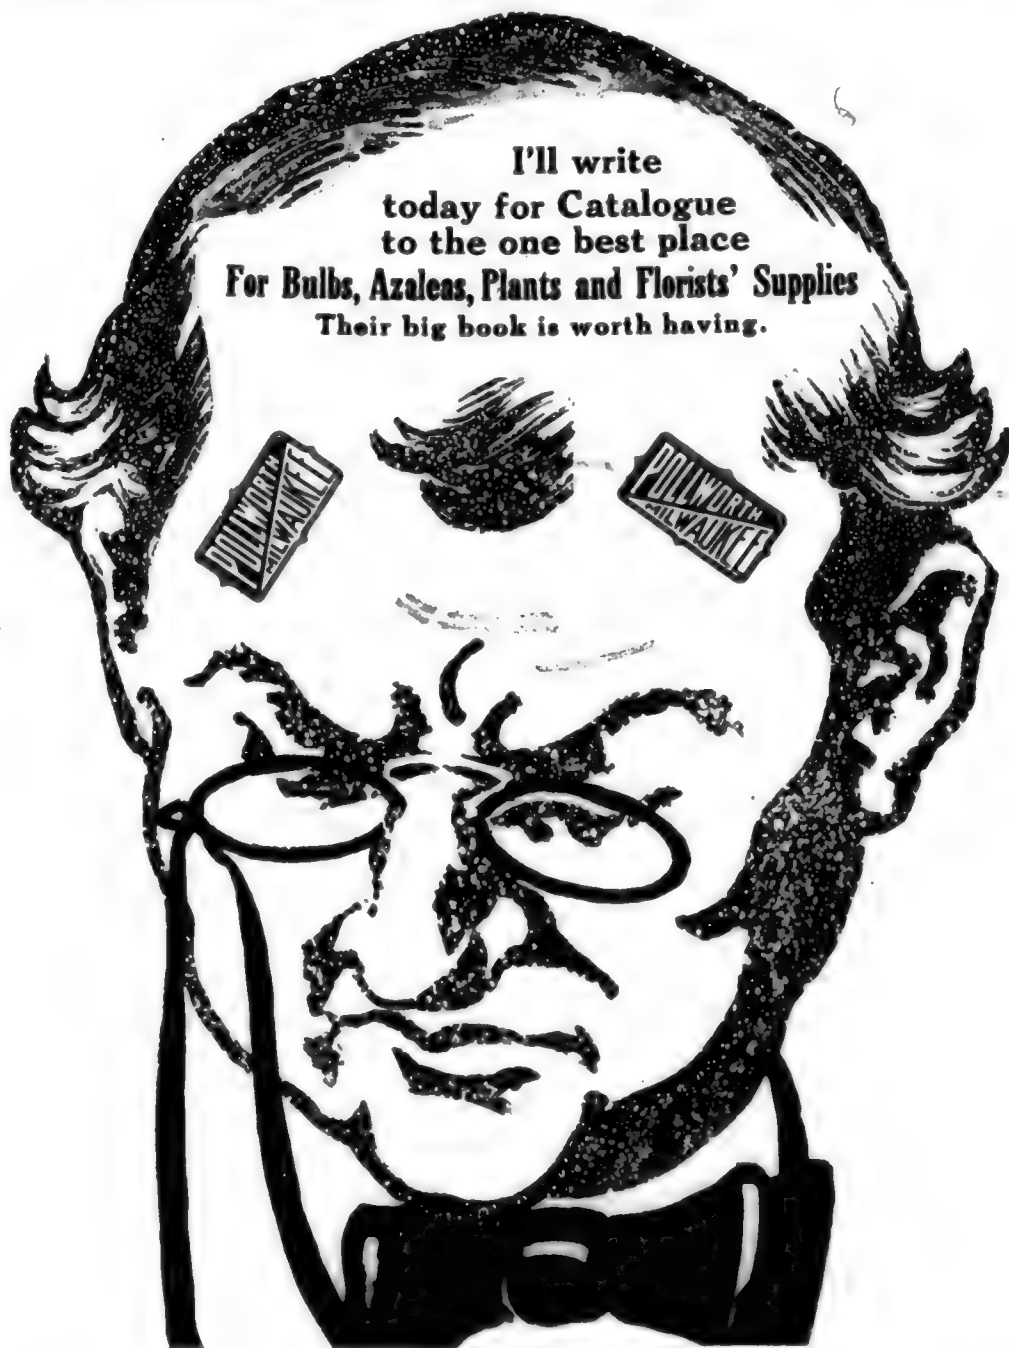

After having been in Scotland visiting his parents since early in January, Wm. M. Reid, traveler for the W. W. Barnard Co., reached home in time for Easter.

According to Guy Reburn, the finest lot of lilies in the west this year, 5,000 pots, was seen in the establishment of C. H. Frey at Lincoln, Neb. Guess who sold the bulbs.

A delft blue encrusted basket in many sizes and shapes, shown by the Fleischman Floral Co., was one of the best novelties of the season. Light blue ribbon was used with it with telling effect. George Wienhoeber says they were sold out of plants early April 11 and had to turn attention to cut flowers.

Last season Bonnaffon was one of the mums that was in special demand during the season for the sale of young stock, the plants appearing not to make cuttings with the usual freedom. Consequently Wieter Bros. saved an unusual number of stock plants of it and N. J. Wieter says he never has seen anything to equal the way they made cuttings in the last few weeks.

The Kotrasch brothers, who do business as the Deerfield Nurseries, are said to have had their most successful year. On the morning after Easter in 1913 the plant was hard hit by a cyclone and some of the houses demolished, much stock being lost. a difficult place. John Kruchten, who had been acting as their sales agent, found them the money to rebuild and the plant now is in better shape than ever. Sweet peas and gardenias are the principal crops and there have been excellent cuts of both, especially in the first three months of 1914.

That Milady has brought in more money than any other rose on the place this season is the report of Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst. Up to January 1 the return was a little over 70 cents per plant, with a little over 50 cents per plant from January 1 to April 1.

The largest plant in the Easter display of the E. Wienhoeber Co. was one of the azaleas on which Frank Oechslin won first prize for best three at the 1913 spring show; Mr. Oechslin had carried it over and flowered it again in splendid shape. The variety was Helene Theleman, double, rose pink, and E. Wienhoeber says it is about the finest color the azalea family affords.

The sodding of the new Federal league ball park, an area of about three acres, is being done by the George Wittbold Co. A small army of men and over 100 teams are at work.

When the new establishment of H. N. Bruns was completed a lot to the east was left vacant and Mr. Bruns now has his men at work converting it into a small park, filled with boxwood and bay trees.

The branch store of the George Wittbold Co., 1309 North Clark street, which has been in charge of Victor Young for the last two years, made a fine showing at Easter. Mr. Young believes in individuality as an advertisement.

One of the visitors at The Review office bright and early April 13 was E. J. Coster, proprietor of the Saskatchewan Greenhouses, Prince Albert, Sask. He said that he obtains most of his supplies from this market and had come down to look the place over. He went to Morton Grove that afternoon.

A visitor this week is Mrs. Kirby E. Boerstler, of Little Rock, Ark., who is preparing to open a flower store to be known as Kirby's Palace, at Arcade 10.

A caller at The Review office April 13 was G. A. Dennison, chief of the department of horticulture at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He is on his way home to San Francisco after a visit to the principal trade cities in the east. Six acres of gardens will surround the horticultural palace at the exposition, but Mr. Dennison says it will not suffice for all the garden exhibits. The trade has responded liberally.

parent during the week, regardless of the hustle and bustle within the stores. The buying seemed to be in the less expensive plants and flowers, the higher grades moving but slowly. One of the biggest surprises was the entire lack of call for snapdragon, which had been nursed into perfection for Easter by many of the growers and which came into the market with 4-foot and 5-foot stems. Gardenias moved but fairly well until Saturday evening, when they grew in popularity. The ruling price at wholesale was $2, and apparently the cause for the slow moving of these flowers was the fact that they could be had from the street venders at 10 cents each at retail.

Carnations brought $5 and $6 per hundred, as against $2 and $3, and even less, prior to the beginning of the week. Roses sold at from $4 to $20, the red roses bringing extremely high prices.

Various Notes.

Inquiry among the various florists proved that all were satisfied. Many found it hard to obtain the large number of additional employees the extra business demanded. Gude Bros. Co. required the services of nearly eighty delivery boys to move the individual orders, while the greenhouses sent in more than twenty-five men to help the store force. At Kramer's it was impossible to find out how many extra bicycle boys he had. "Too busy to talk," was all that could be obtained from Mr. Kramer. George Shaffer,

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The pendulum has swung back; the cut flower market was in better shape at Easter than the plant market. This is extraordinary. For a number of years the plant market at Easter has astonished everybody; year after year it has exceeded the year previous in the volume of business transacted, encouraging the growers to increase production and the dealers to lay in heavier stocks. This year the volume of business transacted is probably greater than that of any previous year, but the market is in bad shape. Prices were shattered on the days just before Easter and there is much good stock, as well as the usual poor stuff, left over, both in the hands of the growers and of the retailers. The cut flower market, on the other hand, was active on every day before Easter and cleaned up so closely that, unlike the plant market, it is now in buoyant condition. This is due to three causes: the shortage of certain varieties of flowers, the high prices charged for plants and plant combinations, and the clever work of the wholesale commission florists, who let their customers know in advance what they could furnish and the prices, keeping these prices from soaring high.

The weather was simply perfect on the days preceding Easter, cool and clear as a bell. It would be unheard of for a farmer or a florist not to make a criticism of the weather, but criticism is extremely difficult. I heard one florist say that it was too cold to induce

The lilies were the strong feature of the plant market. They sold extremely well, at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per hundred, with, of course, a few above and the poor ones below those figures. The spiræas were the weak feature of the market. There were too many of them, causing a wide range of prices. The best 6-inch stock brought $50 per hundred, and from this they ranged down to anything you could get for stock that was not worth any more in most cases. Some of the fancy spiræa was in the surplus list. Roses sold freely, particularly Tausendschon and the babies. Here, too, there was a decided surplus. The buyers frequently asked for Crimson Ramblers without success. Azaleas and hydran-geas sold well, the latter in increased numbers. Rhododendrons were in over-supply. Valley in pots went well. Ge-nistas in the basket sizes sold nicely, as did all plants, but they went slowly in the specimen size. To sum up, the volume of business was great, but not thoroughly satisfactory.

The cut flower market showed a decided increase in volume over last year.
Business was good throughout the week preceding Easter and in many cases the supply was short. Cut lilies did much to buoy the plant market, the growers filling heavy orders at better prices, labor considered, than they could receive for the potted product. The price was the same for each. Carnations were far below the market needs.
This was the serious drawback in cut flowers. Select Alma Ward brought $8 per hundred; select stock, $6, $5 and sometimes $4 per hundred. Sweet peas were received in immense numbers, although the quality of some of the stock showed that the crops were going off.

Never before were so many fine peas seen here, due, of course, to the Spencers. They brought from $2 per hundred down, short stock of ordinary varieties realizing 50 cents per hundred or less. Valley was a strong flower, the demand exceeding the supply, which was heavy. Violets proved more satisfactory than for many Easters past.
The cooler weather explains this. The local doubles were preferred at $1 per hundred. Then came the Hudson river doubles and, last, the singles, at anywhere from 30 cents per hundred up.
The demand for corsage flowers, which, besides violets, valley and peas, includes gardenias, pansies and, to a lesser extent, cattleyas and yellow daisies, was excellent, being a pronounced feature of the market.

The weak spots in the market were daffodils, oddly enough, and snapdragon, while tulips and callas were none too strong. Smilax was quite scarce at 25 cents for good strings. The buyers would not take Sprengeri to make up for the shortage in plumosus, showing that the shortage was not serious.

The quantity of roses sold was large,
Killarney leading. There was an advance in price, due quite as much to the fine quality of the stock as to the holiday. The best brought $15 and a few extra select, almost four-footers, $20; from that down to $4 per hundred.
White Killarney brought rather less.
Richmond was scarce at a little more.
The yellows sold well. All the good Beauties brought $6 per dozen, with plenty of mediums and shorts.

The feature of the market since Easter is the drop in price of Beauties. The powers-that-be decided that as an increased supply would soon lower the price, it would be better to do it now and be done with it, so that everybody would go ahead and sell Beauties. So on Easter Monday Beauties went to $3 per dozen and have remained there. It is too soon to chronicle the result. Carnations also have fallen and the fancy roses are less plentiful, good mediums and shorts predominating. Cattleyas remain high for dark colored Mosses;

lighter colored blooms and small flowers bring much less. There is lots of business about, shipping keeps up well, and prospects seem bright for an active fortnight. Lilies are, as always when too late, plentiful and cheap.

James McClain, whose main store is at Fifth and McKean streets, recently opened a branch store at Nineteenth and Snyder streets, where he had a splendid Easter, with hardly a dollar's worth of plants left over.

A. E. Pettit, late with N. W. Ayer & Son, has carried into execution a clever idea for the Henry F. Mitchell Co. This plan, though not original, is new in the seed business. It consists in having schoolboys sell seeds in their localities. Mr. Pettit has 1,000 youngsters selling seeds in a half dozen states and they are doing good work.

William H. Smith, of the Johnson Seed Co., is ill at home.

Harry Berger is greatly pleased with his firm's new quarters; he says it makes work so easy that Easter was a pleasure rather than a tax.

Robert Jamison, of Roelofs, placed the Joseph Heacock Co. to the fore with a magnificent crop of wonderfully fine roses timed to the day.

Godfrey Aschmann reports a splendid Easter, with a shortage of lilies and bulbous stock despite a strong supply.

John W. McIntyre reports a great demand for lilac.

William J. Baker has fancy snapdragon.

H. W. Jones, of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, says that Easter was extremely satisfactory at the Bellevue-Stratford. Plants and baskets went well.

The Joseph Heacock Co. will erect a propagating house 11x300, in addition to the house 55x225 previously reported. Both will be of Lord & Burnham material.

The M. Rice Co. reports that its Easter business was the largest in the history of the concern. The sale of baskets for cut flowers and plants far exceeded expectations.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

The first half of last week was discouraging, on account of the bad weather, and retailers as well as growers began to get the blues. However, Thursday the sun began to shine and everybody and everything felt the welcome change. Business for Easter, which had hardly commenced, began to pick up and soon the stores were crowded with shoppers. Retailers seem quite satisfied.

Roses of about all kinds were plentiful and good, except in American Beauty, the shortage of which was noticeable. The violet supply did not fill the bill and the same was true of sweet peas. The quality of the latter was good. Freesias, gardenias, orchids and valley all helped out in corsage work. Daffodils, jonquils, poeticus and Paper Whites still are quite plentiful. Cut Easter lilies were in great demand and the supply was large. Carnations were well to the front and sold briskly. There was quite a call for mignonette. Good spikes of pink and white snapdragon were on the market and brought fair prices.

It was interesting to note the improvement in the displays put up in the stores, in the way of baskets and potted plants. It added greatly to the sale.

Various Notes.

On account of the holiday, the next Florists' Association meeting will be held a week later, Monday evening, April 20.

George B. Hart is well satisfied with the Easter trade. The new, roomy building, which has just been completed, was none too large for the business transacted. The new refrigerating system proved to be a boon.

Henry P. Neun reports a much heavier trade than in 1913.

J. B. Keller Sons say their trade was about as usual, which at all holidays is extremely heavy.

The Rochester Floral Co., with R. W. Wilson as manager, reports business away ahead of any previous Easter. Blotters advertising the business were enclosed in the packages.

Salter Bros. say the business at the West Main street store averaged up with the previous year, while at the East Main street store it was much heavier than last Easter.

George T. Boucher put on a lot of extra help and did a record business for Easter.

H. E. Wilson, with eighteen extra clerks, made a bigger sweep than ever. The second floor was filled with stock, but Saturday night little that was salable could be found. Business was well in advance of last year.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Easter brought an increased demand for both plants and cut flowers, baskets being more in request than ever. Azaleas, lilies and hydrangeas all sold well. Bulbous stock was not in great demand, although large quantities were disposed of. In cut flowers, violets of first-class quality were scarce and in good demand, but poor stock was rather hard to dispose of. Owing to the shortage in violets, peas were bought up readily; the supply, while large, was not equal to the demand. First grade white roses were sold at a reduced price, owing to the poor demand. As a whole, the business was a decided improvement over that of former years.

Club Meeting.

The semimonthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, April 13, brought out a rather small attendance, as a good many had hardly recovered from the Easter rush. The topic was affiliation with the S. A. F. A letter from Secretary Young was read, informing the club of the appointment of a committee to devise ways and means for affiliation, but after much discussion action was deferred until after the convention at Boston in August. Two new members were elected and the club voted to continue the standing prize offer for the best display of window boxes in each of the six sections of the city. Chas. Siegwart, of Carroll, had on exhibition a seedling amaryllis which attracted much attention.

Various Notes.

The Woman's Civic League will hold its annual flower mart at Mt. Vernon place May 12 and extends an invitation to all local florists to exhibit. The committee in charge includes E. A. Seidwitz and C. M. Wagner.

I. Rosnosky, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor this week.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Easter day was bright and clear, in spite of the weather man's prediction of rain or snow. Saturday, however, was cold and rainy till late in the afternoon; so deliveries were made under difficulties. The bad weather did not appear to cause any great falling off in business, as everybody had all that could be attended to. In fact, some of the florists were short of cut flowers and were obliged to reject many orders. Some bought heavily from Chicago and still did not have enough. Considerable funeral work late on Sunday used up anything that was left over.

The local supply of cut flowers was good and the quality excellent. Plants of all kinds sold well, especially bulbous stock, of which there was an immense quantity of the finest quality.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons had a big supply of plants and cut flowers and did a big business. Their large force was kept busy from Friday till about 12 o'clock on Sunday.

Emil Niednagel is rejoicing over the arrival of a 10-pound boy, who came April 6.

firm's experience. They had fine cuts of carnations and roses and also bought largely from Chicago of roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc. They quit taking orders on Saturday for cut flowers. Their line of plants was varied and an immense number were sold. Their bulbous stock was completely sold out, as was nearly every other plant. The help worked continuously from early Friday morning till late Sunday evening. A large funeral kept them busy after the Easter rush was over.

J. C. Elspemann had one of the finest lots of bulbous stock the writer ever saw. The fine, large heads of hyacinths were especially noticeable. His daffodils, tulips, etc., were also extra good and nearly all were cleaned out. He bought heavily of roses and carnations to supply the demand.

Mrs. M. L. Doerr was exceedingly busy all day Saturday and well toward noon on Sunday. Her store at the start was full of plants and cut flowers, nearly all of which were sold.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held April 10, with a good attendance. President Williamson called the meeting to order promptly at 8 p. m. and the business of the evening was quickly dispatched. The committee appointed for the summer show made a report of progress. All indications point to a successful exhibition. The dates selected are June 19 and 20. A complete schedule will be issued. The committee on the fall show also reported progress. Here, again, the premium list was supplemented by the reading of several letters from business firms offering cash and other prizes. The date of the fall show will be announced later. Three new members were elected and five applications were read. Among the visitors present were John Shore, Maurice Fuld and John M. Brown. Mr. Shore has an experience that includes fifty years of gardening. He still is extremely active and keeps abreast of the times. The remarks he made were interesting and appreciated by the members. Mr. Fuld and Mr. Brown also addressed the meeting briefly and their remarks were listened to with close attention.

The exhibition table was well covered. Cultural certificates were awarded to Thomas Aitchison for a splendid

The Market.

The weather during the week previous to Easter was wet and cold until Friday, and this put a damper on the plant market. With bright weather on the two days preceding Easter, there was a heavy run on cut flowers, which were not in large enough supply to meet the demand, being held back by sunless weather. The general report is that, while more sales were recorded than last year, the demand was for lower priced stock, particularly among the retailers catering to the medium-class trade, as many of the large industries are running on short time.

Various Notes.

A. C. Strom, of New Britain, reports a satisfactory increase in business during the last winter. He did a good Easter business.

Francis Bros., of Southington, have opened a retail store.

The F. B. Fountain Co., of Middletown, rented the adjoining store during the Easter season and reports a good business.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, now has two light and two heavy delivery trucks and one of the latter is provided with a covered top which is handsomely decorated and should prove a good advertisement for the firm. Deliveries of plants are made by truck to towns within a distance of forty miles.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society held its regular meeting April 10. Amaryllis and callas were the plants on display.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Florists' Publishing Co.,

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders .....	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.....	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

The Southwestern Market.

Easter trade was as good as any this city ever has seen. The leading retailers say the plant trade was better than ever, but the prices of cut flowers were too high for easy selling. Many of the florists were worried, fearing they had bought too heavily, but before night they were swamped with orders for blooming plants of all kinds. Lilies, as usual, took the lead, with azaleas and hydrangeas next in order, followed by bulbous plants, but everything that looked good sold readily. Cut flowers were scarce and high in price. The large supply of stock of ten days ago had disappeared and there was a scarcity of everything except lilies and sweet peas. Naturally, prices advanced, especially on roses and carnations. Good carnations went up to $6 per hundred and for white as much as $8 per hundred was asked. Roses, too, went up in price, but these were more plentiful than carnations. For cut lilies and callas the demand was large. This stock was plentiful. Other bulbous stock held its own at about the usual prices. Violets were scarce. The growers say the dark days last week caused the shortage. The weather for Easter was all that could be asked.

Various Notes.

substitute; thus all were in a position to make a good display. In weather there was a variety, with one day of sunshine and then two of cold, rain and high winds, which made additional work in wrapping plants for delivery. In fact, the weather in general, previous to Easter, was not favorable for a large supply of Easter lilies; consequently many plants were sold with white buds. Some growers, indeed, will have a good percentage of their intended Easter crop coming in this week. Great inconvenience was suffered by those growers who had counted much on the Saturday before Easter being a good day for the outdoor market, for it rained hard all day. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils hung on well and were in good condition for sale. Narcissus was a scarce article; this, however, did not cut any figure, as there was plenty of other stock to substitute.

The pot plant trade is increasing in popularity every year, and the florists are giving greater attention to this side of the business. Though the cut flower trade was good and was quite sufficient to consume the supply, in most places it did not exceed the plant business in amount of receipts.

Various Notes.

cinths that were not quite ready for the great day.

Mrs. Ida Waters, of Eaton, O., made a hurried trip to this city last week to buy Easter stock. She says business at Eaton is highly encouraging.

George Bartholomew reports a clean-up in everything bearing any resemblance to a flower.

Warren G. Matthews had a large stock of all kinds of plants and cut flowers for the Easter trade. In addition to his Third street store, he rented for Easter week a large store room on Fifth and Main streets, which he used for the sale of his pot plants. He states that his Easter trade was "the best ever."

Much attention is being given to the beautifying of the city this spring by the Greater Dayton Association. Window boxes, vases, flower beds, etc., are to be used profusely in the business section of the city, as well as in the residence district. Last year the flood rendered it impossible to do much of this work, but this year there will be an effort to make up for lost time.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson tells us that her Easter business far exceeded that of any previous year.

W. W. Horlacher, who is greatly pleased with last week's results, says it would be hard to determine which were the better, the cut flower or the plant sales.

The members of the Heiss Co. emphatically declare that this year's Easter trade surpassed all previous records. They had a fine lot of azaleas, which sold at a good price.

Mrs. B. Haschke says it would have been impossible for her to handle more stock.

The Miami Floral Co. was well sup-

The Market.

The week before Easter was a peculiar one and hard on all kinds of outdoor vegetation. After days of spring weather, the temperature fell to 24 degrees April 10. Lilacs were in full bloom in the most protected places, but they were not entirely spoiled for cutting. The later ones will be in fine condition yet. Peonies, however, are probably cut short, especially in the early varieties.

The shortage of rainfall and the low temperature this season helped the growers to hold their crops back, so that there was never a better supply of everything than for Easter this year. The lilies were especially fine. Not for years have they been so strong and the number of blooms so large. The growers had an abundance for their own trade and plenty to wholesale. The demand was fully up to the supply, and there is little of anything desirable on hand at present.

Larger and more elaborate baskets have been the order of the day here at every holiday for some time, and it would seem that the limit had been reached, but they were better this time than ever before, sold for higher prices and were cleaned up closely.

The rambler roses in pots were of better quality than usual, while spiræas were not so good. The French hydrangeas were much in evidence and were much superior to the old varieties. I was surprised at the quantities of good bulbous stock offered. Tulips were especially good.

Various Notes.

The Mount Olivet cemetery greenhouses are doing a rushing business. Hundreds of geraniums are already bedded and some of them were killed by the freeze. In the houses I saw the best specimen of lantana I have ever seen. It was only about three feet tall, but it had thousands of bloom clusters.

Haury & Sons had a good line of plants, and their store was decorated better than I have ever seen it.

McIntyre Bros. had their place well decorated and offered a good line of plants of all kinds. They did the largest Easter business they have ever done.

The Joy Floral Co. had over 15,000 cut roses when the Easter business began; when it was over the company was cleaned out, and had disposed of one of the largest stocks of plants ever offered in the city.

Geny Bros. had their stock in early and were kept on the jump for almost a week. They had the best roses they have had this year, and their lilies were equal to the best Harrisii of the old times.

Frank Cornell disposed of about everything salable he had, from his wagons. He is in the market now for plants for spring sales. F. B.

was less of the tulips than of the daffodils and hyacinths. Carnations were excellent and brought a good price. There was an abundance of all kinds of roses. Killarney in red, pink and white were excellent; Wards were fine; Bon Silenes, somewhat scarce, and Richmonds and Milady were good, but less in quantity. Beauties were excellent. There were some good Marylands also. Harrisii and Formosa lilies were in splendid condition, but were higher priced than last year, retailing at $4 per dozen instead of $3. Potted lilies were cleaned out entirely, and some of the dealers retailed them at $1.50 per plant, regardless of the number of blossoms, which ran from four to six each. Valley was plentiful, good in quality and sold well. Cattleya orchids and orchid sprays also were plentiful, but were not in so great a demand for corsages as were other flowers. Violets held up particularly well in quality and brought good prices. Plants of all kinds sold well; lilies, tulips, hyacinths, rose bushes, spiræas, azaleas, rhododendrons, ramblers, heather, genistas, Boston ferns and palms all sold out. Lilacs alone were a drug on the market, as the people tire of paying high prices for these plants.

The weather during Easter week was most varied—from the balmy spring weather to the crispest winter weather, with snow, rain, sunshine, frost, ice and sleet all in the one week. Easter Sunday was bright and fair, but cold as any March day.

Various Notes.

baskets sold especially well. There was a clean-up on everything in general. Mrs. Harmon Clark helped out again this year.

S. A. Anderson made a specialty last week of changing his window displays each day, featuring an entirely pink window, another of red ramblers treated in various ways, and still others of combination colors, yellow and lavender, pink and blue, etc. Trade was good here, and there was little left to tell the tale of the Easter rush.

Joseph Streit's greenhouses, which have the reputation of being shipshape and in apple-pie order at all times, looked as though a cyclone had struck them Easter morning. Plants, which were only the culls, were scattered here and there, and with the palms doing their duty at churches, there was a general bareness throughout the entire range. S. A. Anderson's trade at the three stores and his big wholesale trade had been so overwhelming that Joseph Streit was literally cleaned out of everything.

Felix Alberts had some attractive window displays at the Lenox Flower Shop last week. E. A.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

A NEW seed house, the H. B. Wilbur Co., has recently opened up at James-town, N. Y., with an up-to-date equipment and good prospects. George Chambers is the manager.

THE Maryland legislature has passed the pure seed law introduced by State Senator Collier. Representative Dawkins' amendment to eliminate the germination clause was defeated.

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to the Berryman & Maupin Seed Co., of King City, Mo., with a capital stock of $30,000. The incorporators are W. H. Berryman, A. P. Maupin and Minerva Maupin.

CHARLES J. BOLGIANO announces his election as a member of the Ancient and Honorable Mechanical Company of Baltimore, organized September 23, 1763, and said to be the oldest civic organization in America.

C. S. TAIT, who owns a half interest in and is manager of the largest farm in the vicinity of Brunswick, Ga., now has 400 acres under cultivation, and is making a specialty of amaryllis, cannas, dahlias and gladioli. He plans to develop these lines on a large scale now that the property is in a good state of cultivation. There is irrigation on 225 acres, with a rise and fall of the water every twelve hours, backed up in a river by the tide.

A. BERNARD FILS, of Ollioules, report that large sizes of Romans will be scarce and dear this season. This is partly owing to the fact that, in consequence of strong demand, many bulbs were sold which in former years would have been replanted to make the finest bulbs. The frost last January cut the tops, which will probably be found to have affected the bulbs to some extent, a remark also applicable to freesias and narcissi, though the damage in these cases is more difficult to estimate.

ENFORCING THE RATES.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has directed a refund by the D. L. & W. railroad of $174 to the W. T. Raleigh Co., on account of unreasonable charges on shipments of garden seed from New York to Freeport, Ill. The commission also has directed the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad to refund $2.68 to the Page Seed Co., because of unreasonable rates on seed corn shipped from Greene, N. Y., to Susquehanna, Pa. P.

FIELD'S BIG YEAR.

"You may be interested to know," said Henry Field, of Shenandoah, Ia., "that we are having an exceptionally busy season. Up to April 1 we showed forty-two per cent increase over last year in number of orders and fifty-two per cent increase over last year in volume of business; this in spite of the fact that we had an unusually good year last year and showed heavy gains over the preceding season. The gain this year, however, has been much heavier than last year." In the year that closed March 31 the Henry Field

PROFIT

Profit is its own incentive. The desire for profit waters our stocks and the baby's milk. Nothing is more human than the greed for gain. We ourselves are human, so we have evolved a business in lily bulbs so large, and with such great care, that our profit begins before the other fellow's cost is reached. Everyone connected with this organization works hard. You can have your share of the benefit of our work if you buy Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs. They have paid larger dividends than any other brand ever known, and they will continue to pay profits, because of the constant care given them in the cultivation, from the time they are first planted until they are sent to you. If you can't grow Horseshoe Brand Lily bulbs, you can't grow any. Send for prices.

BREACH OF SEED WARRANTY.

Measure of Damages.

Probably the latest appellate court decision in regard to the measure of damages for breach of warranty of seed is that of the Mississippi Supreme Court, wherein it was decided that "where seed is sold with warranty that it is true to name, the measure of damages for a breach thereof, when it is actually sown and produces a crop, not harmful to the land, but of less value than would have been produced had the warranty not been broken, is the value of the crop, such as the seed was warranted to produce, and would ordinarily have produced, less the value of the crop actually grown from the seed purchased." (Grafton-Stamps Drug Co. vs. Williams, 62 Southern Reporter 273.) Substantially this same measure of damages has been applied in the following cases which arose in other states: Florida Supreme Court, Vaughan's Seed Store vs. Stringfellow, 48 Southern Reporter 410; Washington Supreme Court, Fuhrman vs. Interior Warehouse Co., 116 Pacific Reporter 666; Wolcott vs. Mount, 38 New Jersey Law Reports 496; Passinger vs. Thorburn, 34 New York Reports 634; Crutcher vs. Elliott, 13 Kentucky Law Reporter 592; White vs. Miller, 71 New York Reports 118; California District Court of Appeal, Moody vs. Perrano, 84 Pacific Reporter 783; Missouri Court of Appeals, Cline vs. Mock, 131 Southwestern Reporter 710.

If the seed contracted for would have produced a perennial crop, such as alfalfa, the expense of procuring and sowing new seed and of cultivating the new crop are additional items of damages which may be recovered. (New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division; Depew vs. Peck Hardware Co., 105 New York Supplement 390.)

But the Supreme Court of Tennessee has limited the measure of damages which a buyer of seed potatoes was entitled to recover because they proved to be of a later variety than that contracted for, to the amount of the excess of the value of the seed contracted for over that delivered. (Harley vs. Buchi, 10 Lea 346.)

Damages for Failure to Germinate.

When seed is expressly or impliedly represented by the seller to be of good quality and part of it fails to germinate, the buyer's measure of recoverable damage has been held by some courts to be the same as where seed fails to prove true to the name under which it is sold—the difference between the crop actually produced and the greater value the crop would have had if the seed

Replying to your inquiry as to how the stock received from you last fall has turned out, I am pleased to say I started to buy Lily bulbs from you when you first started in business five years ago. I congratulate you on the way you have handled my orders, in plants, seeds and bulbs. I grow over fifty thousand (50,000) Lilies, including cold storage, and you will note by the order given Mr. Miller this winter you have the bulk of my order. I always feel when entrusting an order to you that I am going to get the best the market can produce, and this is all the guarantee I want.

had conformed to the seller's warranty. (Nebraska Supreme Court, Dunn vs. Bushnell, 88 Northwestern Reporter 693; Flick vs. Witherbee, 20 Wisconsin Supreme Court Reports 392.) That the damages are to be computed with reference to the value of the crop that would probably have been produced, had the seed come up to the contract requirement, has been declared in the following cases: Van Wyck vs. Allen, 69 New York Reports 61; Crutcher vs. Elliott, 13 Kentucky Law Reporter 592.

A buyer was held to be entitled to recover damages from the seller for "all the loss necessarily sustained by him by reason of the worthlessness of the flaxseed furnished by the seller." (Kansas Supreme Court, Shaw vs. Smith, 25 Pacific Reporter 886.)

Recovery for Worthless Seed.

In a Connecticut case the Supreme Court of Errors decided that where onion seed failed to germinate, the customer was entitled to recover as damages the amount paid for the seed, the value of his labor in preparing the ground, after deducting any benefit to the land, and the value of his labor in planting the seed, with interest on these several items. (Ferris vs. Comstock, Ferre & Co., 33 Connecticut Reports 513.) Similar conclusions were reached by the Georgia Supreme Court in the case of Butler vs. Moore, 68 Georgia Reports 80, and by the North Carolina Supreme Court in the case of Reiger vs. Worth, 37 Southeastern Reporter 217.

According to the Florida Supreme Court, as decided in the Vaughan's Seed Store case above cited, where one sells seed under warranty and it proves to be worthless, and a crop failure results, the only damages recoverable by the purchaser are the price paid for the seed, the expense of preparing the soil and planting the seed, together with the loss sustained through having the land lie idle for the year, or for such time as the use of it is lost.

If, being worse than merely inferior, seeds contain noxious weed seeds, the injured customer is entitled to recover the amount of his actual loss, including the injury to his land, as ascertained by its depreciation in value as a direct consequence. (New York Supreme Court, Fox vs. Everson, 27 Hun 355.)

But, in accordance with the general rule applicable to the recovery of damages for any wrong, which requires an injured person to take all reasonable steps to minimize any loss to him, a buyer of seeds which prove to be inferior must make the amount of his loss as small as the circumstances permit. Thus, if it is not too late for him

Koerner's Greatest Dahlia Novelty

466. Snow Flake (Single Century). This is one of my greatest commercial novelties and money-makers that I have so far placed on the market. The bigger a patch I grow of them, the better I can see the good habits it has, and the more I see what a wonder of a money-maker it is as a cut flower. It is naturally a long-stemmed variety, and is the first one to bloom in my field and keeps up well until the end of the season. I cut more than twice as many flowers from each plant as any other standard variety can furnish. The color is purest snow white.

The above illustration shows one acre of the Snow Flake. We have been cutting 1000 to 1500 flowers each day, last fall, out of this patch; the flowers brought 2c to 5c each at the wholesale market. Here are figures that count: Take the lowest number of flowers, 1000 per day, lowest price, 2c each, and the shortest season, September and October, or still less, 50 days; that would be just $1,000.00 solid cash, but I am sure that it will come closer to the $2,000.00 mark. Tell me what else you can grow to come up to these figures per acre with such little work as the Dahlia takes? This spring I intend to plant two acres of them. This is the greatest selling Dahlia Milwaukee ever had. I am offering this wonder at a special low price, so that every up-to-date Florist can invest in it. If you cannot get them at your local dealer, I will send them on receipt of the following low prices: Field-grown clumps, 50c each; $5.00 per dozen; $40.00 per 100. Divided field-grown roots, suitable for planting, in lots of 25 for $5.00; in lots of 100, for $18.00; in lots of 250, for $40.00; in lots of 1000, for $150.00.

to do so, after discovering the inferior character of the seeds he should reduce the amount of his damage, if possible, by procuring suitable seed; the law will not allow him to stand idly by and unnecessarily permit a total or partial crop failure and then assert a claim against the seller of the seed for the amount of that loss. And if, on discovering that the seeds contain noxious weed seeds, though they have already been planted, the loss can be minimized by plowing the weeds under, or by pursuing any other reasonable course, he must do so, or shoulder the loss resulting from failure so to do. (New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division; Bell vs. Mills, 74 New York Supplement 224.)

ECONOMY MAKES LAWBREAKERS.

As a result of the refusal of the Michigan legislature last year to appropriate more than $2,000 to carry out the new pure seed law, dealers in that state are forced to be lawbreakers. Seeds cannot be sold without an analysis of them having first been made by the seed inspection department at the agricultural college. About one-fifth only of the 100 requests for analysis pouring in daily can be cared for. So if the seedsmen do not wish to wait indefinitely for a report and, in the meantime, see their market vanish, they must break the law and sell their seeds without an analysis. Such is the wise economy of lawmakers!

PASADENA, CAL.

Annual Spring Show.

The annual spring show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society was held April 9 to 11 in Central park. The park makes an ideal setting for the show, the greensward and the beautiful specimen trees being of great assistance. The show was undoubtedly the best ever held under the auspices of the society, and on entering the tent it was at once apparent that the hard work of President W. Hutchison and his able committees had borne fruit abundantly. The tent was so arranged that the center motif was the small lake in the park, and around this were grouped splendid cinerarias of the stellata type, while on the center island large plants of Nicotiana Sanderiana were arranged with fine effect.

I missed one or two of the well known trade exhibitors, but several of the old standbys were present and the private gardeners ably upheld the traditions of the show.

Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, put up a fine show of their hippeastrums and other specialties in their usual bold and striking fashion.

Theodore Payne had a good showing of native trees and shrubs in small pots, staging about ninety kinds.

Robert Pegg, of the Mentor Nursery, had a fine bank of roses, flowering and ornamental foliage shrubs and other plants, finely arranged.

Campbell's Seed Store and the Dorman-Shaw Seed Co. both put up trade groups showing their specialties in seeds and sundries. In addition the Dorman-Shaw Co. had a nice selection of foliage plants and lily of the valley.

H. Jannoch had a group of particularly fine standard or tree roses in variety, with conifers beneath.

The Clemence Nurseries made an excellent exhibit of showy bedding and foliage plants.

Tucked away in one corner of the tent, the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, was responsible for a small but choice group of flowering and foliage plants. The center was a panel of lily of the valley of splendid quality and timed to the minute. Small, well grown and well finished plants of Cocos Weddelliana, Pandanus Veitchii, various dracaenas and a number of small ferns, including the pretty Pteris Victorae and others not often seen, finished up the arrangement.

Close by, Laurie's had a beautiful booth, the front of which was fixed up with fresh green shoots of Arundo Donax. In the center a big pile of dahlia roots gave promise of what would occur later, when the flowering season arrived—quite an original idea and a good one.

The cut flowers were fine indeed. In the basket classes Miss Sadie Thomas simply romped away with the prizes. Her first-prize effort was superb and showed that this clever little lady is just as adept in arranging flowers as in growing chrysanthemums.

The cut herbaceous flowers were finely arranged and good, making a splendid showing, and the judges had considerable difficulty in making their awards.

Jacob Dieterich, of Los Angeles, showed several fine wistarias and a peculiar crested or fasciated form of Cryptomeria Japonica that appeared in one of his importations.

Charles Miller made an excellent showing of cut roses in all the popular varieties and several new ones. His Prince d'Arenberg and Milady were particularly good.

The date was a little late for bulbous stock, but the Darwin tulips were of fine quality.

I did not get a full list of the judges and these notes were written before their adjudications were made public, but among them I noticed Mr. Retcher, of the ostrich farm; Jacob Dieterich and James Taylor, of Los Angeles.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Just on the eve of the Easter business, it is not easy to prophesy as to the result of the preparations made for the occasion, but at least the retailers have made a bold bid for success. The windows never looked better. Although, as anticipated, a good deal of the stock is past its best, there is still plenty.

Easter lilies are everywhere, but the quality in many cases leaves much to be desired. The local-grown stock is far better than that shipped in from the north, as the latter shows in the yellow foliage the effect of overcrowding while growing. There are also some excellent local-grown rhododendrons, though the palm must be given in this instance to the splendid Pearls sent here from San Francisco. They are a little overdeveloped and would have been better a week ago, but they are grand stock just the same. Lily of the valley in pots is popular and good, most of the stock being timed to the minute. About the azaleas the less said the better, as most of those now in bloom are hold-overs from last season, pale of foliage and scantily flowered. There are some elegant little plants of Lady Gay, White Baby Rambler and others of this class, but as yet our local growers do not seem to have caught on to the value of larger stock.

Cut flowers are not too plentiful and prices for the better class of stock are likely to be higher. Of the cheaper grades there are plenty. Greens are also abundant in all lines.

Various Notes.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, San Francisco, was in the city a few days this week, buying large palms and other choice nursery stock.

Howard & Smith are going heavily into advertising in the local papers, using large spreads for Easter business. The young rose stock planted on the recently acquired land on the Whittier road has a good hold and there is a splendid stand. Careful preparation of the soil and showery weather have helped materially to this end.

At the trial grounds of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. the pansies continue to be a great attraction to people passing along the Whittier road. Mr. Goner's tests of vegetables have also proved of great interest and value, showing what careful selections of high-grade varieties will do. Quality, the true test of cheapness, is the order of the day in the selections sent out by this old-established firm.

The store windows of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson were among the greatest attractions in town this week.

Darling's Flower Shop is full of fine stock for Easter and Manager Walter Garbett has been fortunate in securing a large store between Fifth and Sixth streets, on Broadway, as an overflow store. This is filled with choice offerings in Easter lilies and other plants.

Staiger & Mundwiler report an excellent demand for Easter stock of all kinds and also for vegetable plants in variety. G. Prechtel has returned from Oregon and is now with Mr. Staiger at the home place, on Twenty-second street.

The H. N. Gage Co. has choice offerings in bulbous stock from the Montebello grounds, where L. Gage is now in full charge. H. N. Gage says prospects for Easter are fine.

James Russell, until recently in charge of the Gage nursery at Montebello, has bought land and gone into business for himself.

The April meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society was fairly well attended. The matter of supplying speakers for schools was gone into and such able men as J. Reeves, P. D. Barnhart and others were asked to serve in this capacity. Secretary Kruckeberg made a strong point of the fact that the society should be sought by the schools rather than that the opposite condition should exist, a sentiment that met with general approval. An arrangement was made for all the members who could be got together to visit the Pasadena show on the night of April 10.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

This letter is written in the height of the Easter rush. The stores are well arranged, with a fine lot of stock. There are quantities of cut flowers and an excellent showing of both potted and cut lilies. Rambler roses are good. The Pink Pearl rhododendron is the most attractive plant presented, and it is a wonderfully fine seller; in fact there has never been anything placed on the San Francisco market that has so quickly won the public favor. Rhododendron Catawbiense and a few of the other leading varieties also make an excellent showing and sell well.

We are short of spiræas this year, and there are few azaleas of merit. Those that we have are poorly flowered and not the most desirable varieties. Primulas, as usual at Easter, are one of the drawing cards. They make up nicely in basket work and we see more large primula basket arrangements than in other years. We have some genistas, but could use more.

Of the multiflorum lilies there are few compared with the number of tion between the growers and retailers in San Francisco has stood in the way of correcting the evil.

There is an excellent supply of Cecile Brunner roses, eastern shipments having ceased, and they have dropped to a normal price, retailing at 25 cents for a fine large bunch. We see a great many gardenias around town and they seem to be selling well. Cattleya Mossiae is beginning to put in an appearance, but not in sufficient quantities to supply the demands. We see more Schroederae and Trianae.

Various Notes.

Mr. Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., showed us a new store arrangement by opening several bales of hay in his show windows and on his shop floors. Over these he scattered empty can covers, giving an additional touch of the barn effect. The effect was unique, to say the least.

The Fairmont Floral Co. features baskets in the Easter window. This store showed more cut lilies than any other downtown.

The Julius Eppstein Co. has as a special attraction a plant of Cypripedium caudatum. Mr. Eppstein's windows always contain something unique and his Easter stock is above the average.

Podesta & Baldocchi massed rambler roses intertwined with delicately shaded ribbons in one window and in the other a profusion of Pink Pearl rhododendrons and spray orchids. The effect was striking.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. show many skillful creations typical of the season, among others a dexterously constructed hat with ranunculus as the main flower; also a flower nest of Easter eggs, the eggs being highly colored tulips.

Albert O. Stein set in his spacious show window a full sized figure of a model entirely garbed in floral array. Every detail of the costume was carried out to perfection and it proved to be a wonderfully interesting piece.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held April 4 and the society was favored with an instructive lecture by Ralph T. Stevens, professor of landscape gardening and floriculture at the University of California. May 2 Prof. J. W. Greeg will handle the subject of "Soils and Fertilizers." A fine specimen of Phalaenopsis Stuartiana was exhibited at the meeting and awarded ninety-eight points. The Ramona rose also was exhibited, but the flowers did not show the deep red which is supposed to be characteristic of them. It is possible that the bay climate is not as well adapted for this creation as the climate in the southern part of the state, where the rose had its origin. Members of the society are looking forward to a banquet and dance to be held at the Fairmont hotel May 9. W. H. H.

Writing on the eve of Easter, conditions are excellent. The growers seem to have plenty of stock to take care of the demand. Lilies are plentiful and are in a much healthier condition than in former years. There will be plenty of cut flowers to meet the demand, carnations being especially abundant. Owing to a late Easter, violets are practically gone, and are being supplanted by sweet peas, which are having an active call. Bulbous stock is plentiful, but there is little call and it is moving slowly. The advanced season has caused much early planting and the retail dealers report an active business in nursery stock, although there is much late planting of rose bushes yet to be done.

Various Notes.

A surprise party was given April 3 in honor of Fred Smith, the occasion being the celebration of his twenty-first birthday. About twenty-five of the local florists and their families were present.

The Florists' Club's regular business meeting was well attended despite the fact of its being so near Easter. It was decided to cooperate with the Rose Society on their annual rose show.

Van Slyke & Seamons rented a store downtown, from which to distribute their Easter orders.

Henry Benthien, the popular local florist, was candidate for port commissioner in the recent city election.

J. L. S.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

At this writing we are in the midst of the Easter rush, so that it is hard to determine the results, although indications are for a general clean-up. There seem to be plenty of roses and carnations. Violets are scarce, but sweet peas will be equal to the demand. Lilies are plentiful, retailing at $3 per dozen. The supply of potted stock will be short, with wholesale prices ranging from 12½ to 15 cents per flower. Azaleas, rhododendrons, ramblers and hydrangeas are in good form and are moving well. Window displays are especially worthy of note and are exceptionally attractive, with lily arrangements and baskets predominating.

Funeral work is plentiful and comes in well to move the surplus and lower grade stock.

Various Notes.

The Lipman & Wolfe Co. department store has the most commendable window displays in the city. With the general merchandise tulips are used profusely, with Easter lilies in the background and an aquarium of goldfish in the foreground. This is an outlet that is sadly overlooked by the florists. There should be a system of encouraging business houses to use more flowers in window decoration.

Donis & Spomer have opened a store at 368 Union avenue north, specializing landscape work and window boxes. Their greenhouses are located at Twenty-fifth and Dekum avenue.

Lewis Scott returned this week from his honeymoon trip, visiting the cities along the sound.

The Market.

The prospects for Easter business were none of the brightest, but in anticipation of good trade the stores loaded up with all possible flowers. Stock was mostly fairly plentiful and Easter lilies more so than in past years. Roses in pots and cut roses were plentiful and of first-class quality. Azaleas were good and in fair supply. Carna-

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you
for sale to the trade?
Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast
Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.

CHICAGO

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A CHARTER has been issued to the Holland-American Nursery Co., of East Orange, N. J., with a capital stock of $10,000.

J. H. ROSENGRENE, of Redland, Fla., has bought a large tract of land at Labelle, Fla., where he will start a nursery, putting out 100,000 trees to start with.

JOHN TROUT, an agent for the John Siebenthaler Nurseries, at Dayton, O., dropped dead at the nursery April 4 shortly after complaining of rheumatism. He was 55 years old and lived at Midway, Ohio.

MICHIGAN nurserymen find a heavy demand for fruit trees and berry plants this spring. It is thought the high price of fruits has led many homeowners with small pieces of ground to set out their own berry patches.

It is reported that C. C. Mayhew, proprietor of the Texas Nursery Co., at Sherman, Tex., is planning to establish a nursery at Macon, Ga. He laid his project before the mayor, city council and some of the business men of the town at a banquet April 1.

J. P. NOLAND, of Peninsula, O., is turning his attention more to the growing of evergreens, as the climate and soil of the region seem quite well adapted to this line. The fruit crop was damaged to a certain extent in his section by the extremely cold weather in February.

THE lateness of the season has delayed the spring shipments and the Earl Ferris Nursery, of Hampton, Ia., is one of many that are working overtime to keep up with orders. Earl Ferris, manager, finds it difficult to keep to his custom of shipping all orders the day received.

DURING the absence of A. H. Lake, president of the Henry Lake Sons Co., of Black River Falls, Wis., who has been in the hospital since March 2, the business has been successfully conducted by N. M. Lake. The firm has the rare distinction of being completely sold out of apple and plum trees for this spring.

PROMPT action on the part of the fire departments prevented the fire which destroyed a large shed of the company from spreading to other buildings at the plant of the American Nursery Co., at Springfield, N. J., formerly known as the F. & F. Nurseries. William Flemer, manager of the concern, gave checks of $50 to the Springfield and Milburn fire departments in recognition of their work. The work of rebuilding is already started.

We have always found The Review a top notcher as to results received from wholesale advertising of nursery stock.—Atlantic Nursery Co., per D. W. Babcock, Mgr., Berlin, Md., January 16, 1914.

A TRACT of 120 acres of the Parker Whitney estate, near Loomis, Cal., has been leased by the Citrus Heights Nursery Co., which will establish there one of the largest citrus nurseries in northern California.

PROBABLY the tree peddler never will go out of fashion, but the success of certain nurseries that depend wholly on mail orders is attracting the attention of some of those who have had their troubles with agents

A LOCATION for the plant of the newly organized Delaware County Orchard & Nursery Co., of Delaware, O., is being selected by C. C. Cowgill and Wesley Gross, with the authority of the directors. J. C. Swickheimer has been chosen superintendent of the new establishment.

HEDGE PLANTS FOR MINNESOTA.

Which is the best plant for a hedge here in Minnesota, where the temperature is liable to drop to about 20 to 30 degrees below zero? How would California privet do? Would it make a nice hedge and would it stand this climate? How far apart should these shrubs be planted, if eighteen to twenty-four inches high, to make a good hedge? When is the best time to plant them? F. S.

California privet is pretty, but unreliable in cold climates. Where the temperature will fall to 5 or 10 degrees below zero for even an occasional night, it is of no use whatever. During the present winter it has been cut to the ground in many places, in a minimum temperature of 10 to 15 degrees below zero. On the other hand, the Japanese privet, Ligustrum Ibota, generally comes through unscathed and will withstand your lower temperatures. The Amoor river privet is another fine and hardy variety. For making a dense hedge, set the plants a foot apart. Plant them somewhat deeply and cut back hard in order to get a thick bottom. Cut back severely the first two or three years. The hedge should be clipped in June and August each year. C. W.

GARDENERS FOR CO-OPERATION.

The spring meeting of the executive board of the National Association of Gardeners was held in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Tuesday, April 7. There were present John W. Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; James MacMachan, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; Robert Bottomley, New Canaan, Conn.; Arthur Smith, Reading, Pa.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Logan, Jenkintown, Pa.; William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., and John Dodds, Wyncote, Pa. In the absence of President Waite, Vice-president Everitt occupied the chair.

The revised by-laws of the association, submitted by the by-laws committee appointed at the 1913 convention, were adopted and will be printed in book form immediately and distributed among the members.

The many letters received from local horticultural societies all over the country favoring coöperation with the

lution providing "that the secretary be instructed to invite the local societies interested in our endeavor to appoint committees of three, to be known as the coöperative committees of the societies of which they are appointed.
These committees will act with the cooperative committee of the National Association of Gardeners, to be composed of the president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary of the National Association and to be known as the national coöperative committee.

"The national committee shall inform itself through the local coöpera-tive committees of the workings and doings of the different local organizations and gather such information as may be of interest and value to local horticultural bodies and shall disseminate such information as it may acquire among the societies coöperating with it.

"The national committee is further empowered to enter into coöperation with local horticultural societies, in the broadest sense that the word coöperation may imply, to spread the interest in horticulture, and to devise ways and means by which the various local societies shall have actual representation at the annual conventions of the National Association of Gardeners, where they may come together and work out the problems which confront the pro-

It was decided to continue the campaign in behalf of the association's class of so-called gardeners entirely unqualified by experience or knowledge to is proving so detrimental to the profes-

The report of the financial secretary showed the association to be in fine financial condition, with a substantial surplus in the bank. Messrs. T. A. Havemeyer and F. R. Newbold, of New York, were elected to honorary membership in the association in recognition of their valuable services rendered in the management of the recent successful New York flower show. Following a general discussion, the board adjourned, to meet in Boston during the month of August. Before adjournment a vote of thanks was tendered the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society for the use of its offices. The visiting members later became the guests of the local members of the board at one of the neighboring hotels.

The Market.

The Easter business in Detroit this year was the greatest on record. Stock in all lines cleaned up in fine shape. Roses were in heavy supply and moved out without any trouble. Sunburst, Mrs. Ward, Lady Hillingdon and Bon Silene were eagerly sought by all buyers. These were the only roses of which there was any shortage. Beauties were in good supply and of fine quality. Carnations, which usually are plentiful at this season of the year, were rather scarce and a strong, steady market was the result. Violets were better this year than ever before and the demand was heavy. Valley was of fine quality and the demand was about even with the supply. Sweet peas more than made good this Easter, as the demand for them was something wonderful. The Spencer type had the call and brought the best price. In bulbous stock tulips and daffodils sold the best. Dutch hyacinths did not sell well, although they were to be had in quantity. Cut Easter lilies had a steady call and callas also were bought heavily. The retailers did not seem to pick up snapdragon in the quantities that the wholesalers expected them to. A reason for this is thought to be that the long-stemmed stock is hard to handle during a rush. The stock was beautiful and should have sold better than it did. Smaller flowers, such as yellow and white daisies, lupines, forget-me-nots, etc., were good property and were largely used in making corsage bouquets. There was a shortage of cattleyas. Green goods, such as fancy ferns, plumosus and adiantum, had a phenomenal run.

In the plant line the growers were all sold out about Thursday and along towards the last there was great hustling for stock.

Various Notes.

Albert Stahelin, of Redford, had a large cut of fancy carnations and Spencer peas. Snapdragons from his establishment also were fine.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The general verdict is that if Easter business did not equal the best previous record, it came near it. There was less call for high-priced plants, but the volume of business surprised everyone. Fortunately we had clear skies on Good Friday and Holy Saturday, although on the latter day the wind blew almost a gale.

Plant business again broke all records. Easter, of all the holidays, is recognized as one when plants easily lead cut flowers in popularity, and this year's Easter made this fact doubly certain. Lilies sold out clean and many more could have been disposed of. Prices varied from $8 to $12.50 per hundred buds, according to quality. There were complaints from many purchasers that plants had few flowers expanded; the cold spring made it difficult to flower the laggards. Rambler and other roses came next in popularity. Tausendschon was the leader, followed by Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Hiawatha, White Dorothy, American Pillar and Excelsa. Few Crimson Ramblers were seen, but a lot of baby ramblers, Clothilde Soupert and hybrid perennials were sold. Azaleas sold well, but Van der Cruyssen was overdone, as usual. People who have seen it since Thanksgiving tire of it by Easter. French hydrangeas sold well; Otaksas, indifferently. Bougainvilleas, metrosideros, acacias, genistas, lilacs and ericas all had a good sale; also such rhododendrons as Pink Pearl and White Pearl. In more expensive plants, Queen Alexandra spiraea sold better than Gladstone or astilboides. Dutch bulbs in pans had a large sale. There was a fine sale for English primroses. Few marguerites appeared, and no one seemed to want any but the yellow. There was a fair sale for table ferns, palms and other foliage plants.

Coming to cut flowers, roses had a somewhat better market than at Easter 1913. The best American Beauty made $50 per hundred. There was an ample supply. Richmond was fine and sold well. Milady was not popular, but Cardinal, Radiance, Killarney Queen, Taft, Sunburst, Hadley, Russell and Ward were in excellent demand. Killarney, White Killarney and Hillingdon also cleaned up well, short stems making $3 per hundred. Carnations lacked their old-time popularity and rather dragged. The ruling rates were $3 to $5, with many good white at $2. Single violets made their final bow. These easily realized $1.25 and $1.50 per hundred; doubles, $1 and $1.25.

Sweet peas sold at from 60 cents to $1.50 and cleaned up well, as did valley. Snapdragon, strange to say, hung fire, even the pink being hard to move. Average prices were $6 to $12 per hundred. Dutch bulbous stock sold remarkably well. There was a good number of Spanish iris. Cut lilies made $8 to $10 per hundred, and candidums $5 and $6. Gardenias of the best quality made $3 and $4 per dozen and cattleyas averaged $6 per dozen. Asparagus plumosus sold much better than Sprengeri. Smilax moved well. Hardy ferns were decidedly scarce. There was a good sale for mountain laurel.

Trade since Easter has held up well, and will, no doubt, keep so unless a hot wave knocks the bottom out of business. Up to this time we have had a decidedly cold spring.

Various Notes.

B. K. Farr, of Stoneham, had a fine pick of Spencer sweet peas for Easter. His Pink Delight, Beacon, Fenn, White Wonder and other carnations are fine. The old Queen here produces flowers three and one-half inches across. Pink snapdragons also are found a paying crop. A King construction house 45x275 never caused a moment's uneasiness during the heavy snowstorms in March, not a square of glass being broken.

Welch Bros. Co. had a banner Easter trade in cut flowers. Roses led in popularity. Carnations and snapdragons went more slowly than other flowers. Laurel, plumosus and hardy ferns sold well.

The Montrose Greenhouses had a good cut of Killarney, Ward, Richmond, Russell and Killarney Queen for Easter. Milady is not liked here.

Otto Range, salesman for the West Street Greenhouses, Reading, cleaned out all the firm's giganteum lilies. Their bachelor's buttons, calendulas, double stocks and White Wonder carnations were of the best quality.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, sold an immense number of bulbous flowers for Easter, chiefly Golden Spur, Von Sion, Emperor, Victoria and ornatus narcissi, and Murillo, Rose Luisante and Couleur Cardinal tulips.

Oswald Ralph, of South Weymouth, has his carnations in fine shape this season. Enchantress, White Enchantress, Beacon and Fenn are his leaders.

The full force of H. M. Robinson & Co. worked all night April 10 getting Easter orders put up. They report business as being splendid in every department.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, had a splendid pick of Gloriosa, Rosette, Benora, Pink Delight, Yellow Prince and Beacon carnations for Easter, and his usual big lot of double cornflowers.

McAlpine & McDonald were fairly swamped with orders Easter week and had to work with but little sleep the whole week. They had a superb lot of Beauty, Taft, Sunburst and Killarney Queen roses. In cut Easter lilies they did a tremendous business.

The finest white snapdragon noted in the local market is that coming from John A. Nelson, of Framingham; his Nelrose also is good. In carnations I noted fine Pink Delight, White Wonder, White Enchantress, White Perfection, Beacon and Fenn.

Frank J. Dolansky, in addition to a heavy cut of gardenias and cattleyas, had an elegant lot of large azaleas and other pot plants. A. G. Pembroke now is selling for him at his new stand in the Boston Coöperative Flower Market.

Thomas Roland sold practically every salable flowering plant at his Nahant establishment. From Revere he had a fine cut of Killarney and White Killarney, Russell, Sunburst, Shawyer and Richmond roses.

P. J. Donahoe, for the Boston Rose Co., showed some magnificent Hadley roses April 11, from the plant of the Montgomery Co.; also splendid Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond.

Everett E. Cummings had 25,000 single violets April 11, which was practically the wind-up of the season for them.

William A. Riggs had a fire in his auto truck April 11, due to the carburetor getting out of order. He sold out practically all of his flowering plants.

Mann Bros. had 5,000 Lilium candidum in April 11. These were of fine quality and sold quickly.

N. E. Boyle, of Malden, never had so good an Easter. Every lily sold, and roses all cleaned up at good prices.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, had no trouble in cleaning up all their Easter lilies. They also had splendid pink snapdragons, yellow marguerites, Kil-Carbone's store for Easter was, as usual, beautifully arranged. Business was brisk, not only in plants and flowers, but in the imported ware in which this firm specializes so heavily.

F. H. Houghton was a busy man. His store always looks charming, but this Easter it was particularly pleasing.

The Waban Conservatories outdid themselves in the magnificent shipments of Russell, Hillingdon, Richmond and Killarney. No finer flowers surely ever came from this firm, and that is saying a great deal.

The fine snapdragon grown by A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, which has been mentioned in The Review, Mr. Koch states is his own strain. It certainly is a beauty. W. N. Craig.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Henry C. Anthony, seedsman at Portsmouth, lost a large barn, with a horse and twenty-five hogs, by fire recently.

William Allan has resigned as head gardener on the Dr. Barton Jacob estate after thirty years' service. John McGowan, for several years gardener at the L. S. Bruguere estate here, has succeeded Mr. Allan. W. H. M.

SEATTLE NOTES.

tions were not extra plentiful and the supply of narcissi was about exhausted. Tulips were fairly plentiful, the outside late-flowering ones beginning to make their appearance. All in the flower business are thankful that Lent is over and are hoping for a revival of trade.

Various Notes.

The new market, opened last week at Third avenue and Washington street, will mean another outlet for the flower business. The Puget Sound Seed Co. has taken a stand there, and others are selling flowers.

G. G. Barker, of Bellingham, was a visitor Saturday, April 4. He has lately taken an additional three acres of ground for growing perennial and bulbous stock.

H. B. Burdett is making improvements on his ground at Meadowdale. His brother Percy is now back there in charge and planting is being done on an extensive scale.

A visit to the greenhouses of Carl Melby, at Madison Park, showed that the recent fire destroyed practically all the Easter stock.

The Story of "Easter Greeting"

THIS photo was taken April 1, and sent us by J. N. Spanabel, a satisfied customer of East Palestine, Ohio, and certainly tells the story of "Easter Greeting." He writes: "What do you think of this? Notice size of our heads and the flower heads, and then say it takes an expert to grow 'Easter Greeting' pelargoniums. Why doesn't every florist grow some 75c 'Easter Greeting' instead of so many 12c geraniums. It's easier to grow, ready to sell sooner and longer; sells on sight—in short, it's a hummer. If we wish to hold plants for stock, we have to either keep blooms off or guard with wire fence. It's the only sort worth growing. You ought to sell a million." That's the story of "Easter Greeting" in a nutshell. What more can we say or do to induce you to send $2.00 for a trial 25, or a full hundred at regular prices—2½-inch, $10.00 per 100; 3-inch, $12.00 per 100; 4-inch, $20.00 per 100, all in bud and bloom. Our stock is in finest possible condition, and you should have some of them. Write at once.

New Rose, Killarney Brilliant
THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

Ready for delivery

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade was heavy here during the Easter season and stock, as a rule, was cleaned up in good shape, especially in the cut flower line. The most popular flowers were violets, sweet peas, valley and orchids, all of which were largely used in corsage work, and they were all sold early in the day. Other flowers came in for their turn later, as Beauties and other roses, carnations and bulbous stock were in great demand after the other stock was cleaned up. Sweet peas were the most popular of all, judging by the looks of the ladies when out walking Sunday afternoon. Never before were any such quantities of flowers worn; it seemed that nearly every lady had flowers of some kind and some elaborate bunches were seen.

There was a good supply of stock in general, but of certain items there were not nearly enough to go the rounds. Roses were of good quality and about sufficient in quantity. Beauties were in fair supply and sold well. Carnations were rather scarce, but the demand was comparatively light on these till late in the day. Snapdragons were fairly plentiful and sold well at good prices. There was a good supply of bulbous flowers. The stock of Easter lilies was large and they were about all cleaned up. In potted plants an enormous quantity was sold, as the market was filled with blooming plants of all kinds. Potted lilies were in great demand.

On the whole, trade was about all that could be expected, though on Saturday before Easter there was a steady rain, which made deliveries difficult and helped to keep a great many would-be buyers at home. J. M.

JOY!

This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as "a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem." That should be good enough for anybody.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Rainy and cold weather prevailed throughout Easter week. Local growers had a fair cut of flowers and stock of all kinds was good. The wholesale houses all seemed to do a large business; in fact, they all cleaned up nicely on everything. The retail stores all went in strongly for plants and the shows they made certainly attracted the buyers. That part of the business is increasing much faster than the cut flower end and is in fact being pushed more. The cut flower end was up to, and with some of us, better than preceding years. All in all it was reported a splendid Easter.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club held its meeting April 7 with a fairly large attendance. P. S. Randolph & Sons showed hydrangeas in colors. Mr. Armstrong had a fine collection of orchids and the city conservatories had exhibits of plants and cut flowers. The meeting proved quite interesting.

John Sisley, with the McCallum Co., thought he could run a motorcycle, but collided with an automobile, took the wheel off the auto and suffered a painful if not serious injury.

Walter Mott is in the city selling paint and putty. Clarke.

NEW ORLEANS.

A detailed description in the Times-Democrat of April 1 of the work of U. J. Virgin and City Electrician Foster Olroyd in restoring to life a cypress tree which had been placed in Lafayette Square last Christmas, without its roots, drew many interested horticulturists and others to the square that day, to learn that they were the victims of an April Fool's day joke.

R. E.

A tract of land about two city squares in size, on Labarre road near Metairie road, has been purchased by Paul Cononne & Sons, who will erect a greenhouse plant on it. The price paid for the land was $6,500.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

Easter proved a tiresome week, the dull weather militating against the stock coming on in anything like the quantities demanded by the florists throughout the Dominion. The trade in Easter lilies was abnormal, probably owing to the fact that the plants were the best that have ever been grown here. Many florists were disappointed in not being able to get their orders filled, as the stock was all exhausted by Monday evening.

There were no American Beauties for the holiday trade, and the result was that the orchid section was taxed to its limits. Cattleya Schroederae was in great demand at 25 cents for select blooms, and 20 cents for No. 1. The slightly lower prices on roses meant that most orders had to be cut down to allow the stock to go around. Carnations suffered considerably from the dull weather, orders being filled to the extent of thirty-five per cent only.

Valley met with a fine sale and sweet peas were much called for. About 160,000 fine Princess of Wales violets were cut during the week, thus clearing up all the stock in this section.

Various Notes.

There will be no building at the Dale Estate this year, but a great amount of repairing, etc., will be done during the spring and summer months. Many of the benches erected about eight years ago will be replaced by the old-fashioned wooden benches, and the method of rose growing that obtained ten years ago will be reverted to. Propagating is being carried on extensively in the carnation and mum sections, and throwing out last season's stock will begin immediately after the holidays. Spring is backward, the frost not even yet having gone out of the ground. The labor market is therefore dull in this vicinity and men are anxiously awaiting a change in climatic conditions.

W. G. P.

Cantril, Ia.—Albert Troth says he has been sending out numerous shipments of plants since the trade commodities were included in the parcel post zone routes and finds the new rates a great saving and convenience.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be potted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000. Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

CLASS ARTICLES.

Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver ordered 5000 Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, and 20,000 in March.

Samples, postage paid. Prompt shipment.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

TROUBLESOME AIR VALVES.

My greenhouses are heated with steam. The air valves in the return pipes are about six feet or more lower than the flow pipe and I could easily connect the returns with the flows with a 1/2-inch pipe. Would that do away with the air valves, which are troublesome? I have seen such a plan carried out with hot water, but will it do for steam? G. O. K.

For use with steam, the air valves must be placed near the lower ends of the coils, so that the air will be able to escape before the steam reaches the valves and closes them automatically, thus preventing the further escape of the air. If the returns were connected with the flow mains, it would be necessary to have air valves on the flow pipes and these would be closed by the heat of the steam, thus preventing the escape of the air. I do not know of any practical way of connecting the flows and returns by which the use of air valves can be done away with. Cheap air valves are an abomination, but with good valves there should be no difficulty.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The following description of the recent rather perplexing situation as regards Pocahontas and New River coals at Chicago is from the Black Diamond: "Even the smokeless coal market has been enduring rather severe trials for the last week or ten days. The major operators, who are the principal dependence of the retail dealers for their supply of high grade coal, have been in the last ten days or two weeks trying to place contracts with retail dealers for the supply of coal for next year. They have in the meantime encountered a couple of reactions of the spot market which had a tendency to put a damper upon contracting. This last week, the situation was thrown still further into confusion. Small jobbing companies and one or two selling agencies were disposed to speculate on the market for smokeless as the result of closing down of the mines in the four states comprising the competitive fields. One concern alone shipped in an almost unprecedented amount of consignment coal and was hit hard. Some other companies and some small jobbers speculated on a lesser scale, but still speculated. The result is that while the major producers are holding firmly at $1.25 for mine run, the market is flooded with that kind of coal at a very much lower price. Within the last week first class mine run coal has sold at $1 a ton as common figure. A great deal of coal has been bought and sold at 80 cents, and in a few instances we hear of some coal changing hands at 75 cents. This, of course, is purely a temporary situation which is the direct outcome of speculation on the part of the producers and jobbers. feet, with a space seventy-two feet wide to be covered. I would suggest that three houses, each twenty-four feet wide, be erected. To heat these houses to 52 degrees, about 500 square feet of radiation will be required in each, except in the north house, where an exposed wall will necessitate additional radiation, especially if the wall contains glass.

For each of the houses two 2½-inch flow pipes should be run on the plates to the farther end, and four 2-inch returns should be brought back on one wall and five returns on the other, with one additional return in the north house. For main flow and return pipes run four 4-inch pipes, using one as the flow and another as the return to take care of two houses.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The Easter trade was a record breaker in many ways. Almost continuous rain, snow and cold throughout the week made the outlook discouraging, but Sunday was ushered in with made-to-order weather, bright, clear and warm. The displays this year were without doubt the finest Cleveland ever has seen. Azaleas, ramblers, hydrangeas, lilies, pots and pans of bulbous stock all were done to a turn and kept in excellent condition. The retailers were more than pleased with the pot stock sent in by the various growers, many of them expressing the opinion that it was by far the cleanest stock ever handled in their stores. There are reports that business increased from ten to thirty-five per cent. The crush of customers at the last minute was terrific and, owing to the weather, much of the business was transacted over the telephone. Cut flowers sold well, but it was plainly a plant Easter. Basket arrangements were popular, combinations of hydrangeas, azaleas, heather, etc., being the best sellers.

Various Notes.

Knoble Bros. had the misfortune to have their auto truck smashed up when the driver tried to avoid a man who ran in front of the machine. Thomas Reif was badly hurt when the horse and wagon which he was driving was hit by a street car and the James Eadie Co. lost half a load of lilies when the curtain at the rear of the wagon caught fire from the wagon heater, all of which went to make up a glorious Easter.

The Market.

Though Easter itself was a beautiful day, the Saturday before was miserable. The day began with a cold, dreary rain, which continued until late in the night. Many people who otherwise would have been out and buying stayed at home. Local florists are satisfied, however, and their stock was about cleaned up by Saturday night. There was a scarcity of good bulbous stock, on account of the late season, and much that was shown had suffered from being held too long. Spiraea plants were much in demand, with not enough to go around.

Various Notes.

Jacob Schulz showed some fine tree-shaped azaleas. Some of them were trimmed in pyramid shape and were from two to three feet tall.

Mrs. M. D. Reimers attracted much attention by her window display of a beautiful white cross. This cross was about five feet long and consisted of white chiffon, in which several electric lights were buried.

Henry Fuchs' store was so crowded with stock that he had to rent a vacant store next door, in which to keep his surplus. He reported everything sold by Saturday.

Local nurserymen and seedsmen report an unusually good season. The many new residences going up in the suburbs, with the reviving popularity of the old-fashioned garden, have added to the sale of nursery stock and seed.

Simon Pontrich, the Parkland florist and nurseryman, is kept pretty busy these days in putting in hedges. He is in a good suburban district and is well patronized.

The Louisville Jockey Club is making some extensive improvements about the grounds. The club has its own greenhouse now, and Mr. Young, formerly with Mrs. M. D. Reimers, is superintendent. The club's park is one of the finest and best kept of the private parks of America. R. J. S.

Bloomfield, N. J.—J. J. Brozat, proprietor of the large greenhouses on Montgomery street, has opened a store at 554 Bloomfield avenue, where he will conduct a wholesale and retail business.

The Market.

The Easter trade this year was better than we have had in a number of years. Almost everyone cleaned up everything in sight, both in plants and cut stock. Plants and made-up plant baskets were much in favor this year, and probably had a better call than the cut flowers.

The supply of cut flowers was not equal to the demand, owing to the many cloudy days which we have had in the last three weeks. The most noticeable shortage was in Easter lilies, which were not nearly enough to go around, most of them having short stems also. There was also a great shortage in carnations and in the fancy varieties of sweet peas. Prices were firm, owing to the shortage and the heavy demand. First-class roses brought from $2.50 to $4 per dozen retail, $8 to $12 per hundred wholesale; carnations $1 to $1.50 retail and $4 to $5 per hundred wholesale. Orchid-flowering sweet peas were cleaned up at 50 cents per bunch retail. Violets retailed at $1.50 per hundred; valley $1 per dozen; Easter lilies $3 per dozen; callas $3 per dozen, and snapdragon $1.50 and $2 per dozen.

In plants there was a big variety to choose from, and made-up arrangements, ranging in price from $3 to $6, sold in large quantities. In the better class shops, the day for plants from 35 cents to 75 cents is over. There were some fine rhododendrons, azaleas and crimson ramblers to be had, and these sold well. There were a large number of lilies to be had, and these were all sold. However, the majority of florists would be glad if there were none, as they are most unsatisfactory plants to deliver. Bulbous stock was plentiful, and in most instances was cleaned up.

Various Notes.

The Pahud Floral Co. was well satisfied with the Easter trade at the downtown store. This firm had a new Ford delivery car in service for the rush.

The Hill Floral Co. reports a good Easter trade. The company showed a fine lot of blooming plants and lilies, which sold well.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. reports the best Easter trade that the firm has had

MANUFACTURER OF

GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed, it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

in years. They had a fine line of blooming stock, which was cleaned up. This firm added another Pathfinder delivery car to its service, and is now well equipped to make prompt deliveries.

Bertermann Bros. Co. reports an excellent Easter trade. This firm had its usual fine lot of blooming stock.

Henry Rieman enjoyed a quite satisfactory trade for Easter. Mr. Rieman has had a good deal of bad luck with his bulbous stock this year, owing to so much of it coming blind. H. L. W.

The Market.

The Easter season has been a busy one, and florists are all pleased with the volume of business done. The weather on the Saturday preceding Easter was fine and helped the retail business considerably.

Various Notes.

T. R. Fries had two stores during the Easter rush and handled a fine lot of plants.

H. A. Schroyer had a fine showing of cut flowers and plants.

George Goldbach was especially strong on callas, besides having a full line of seasonable stock.

The Rosery showed a good line of stock.

W. A. Hammond, in his new store on North Prince street, handled quantities of fine stock.

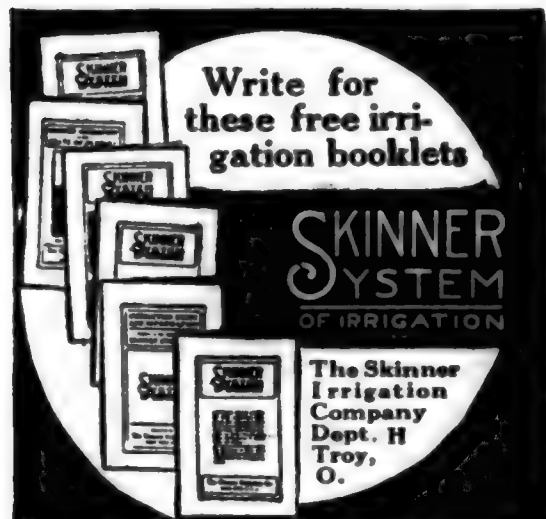

F. A. Suter had an annex on Center Square during the Easter rush.

B. F. Barr & Co. had an exceptionally fine showing. C. F. Edgar, manager, showed some new baskets filled with dainty spring cut flowers that sold on sight. Some large basket arrangements of plants were money-makers. To help out during the rush they had a large store room on Center Square, filled with popular priced plants.

Among the best selling flowers were the new orchid peas, which sold on sight at a price which warranted their growing. H. K. R.

Hattiesburg, Miss.—Henry Meyer, formerly proprietor of the Long View Floral Co., at Rock Island, Ill., has opened an establishment here.

Port Richey, Fla.—Herms & Snyder are building a greenhouse, in which they will grow cut flowers, shrubs and bedding plants. Mr. Herms was for many years in business at Portsmouth, O., and under his management the firm will undoubtedly make a success.

IF YOU ONLY KNEW what a good eave the METROPOLITAN PATENTED is, you would use no other. It is made of cast iron and will not rust. That part of your greenhouse which in other constructions is the weakest becomes the strongest. Not this alone, it is ice-clearing and carries all the water of condensation from the inside, and it is so constructed that almost the entire end of the bar is exposed to the air, thereby preventing decay. Only one screw, about two inches from the end, is all that is necessary to secure the bars. For side stationary glass, wood headers are absolutely unnecessary, thereby causing no shade. Zinc glass stops are not necessary—the eave is made with a lug to prevent the glass from slipping. Let your next house be built with a Metropolitan Patented Iron Wall Construction. ### ANOTHER ADVANCED IDEA BY THE ADVANCE CO., OF RICHMOND, IND.

An Arm for operating Ventilator Sash with many merits has been designed by the above company. It is all-steel construction and is non-breakable. One bolt firmly attaches it to Shaft line. Much time in erection will be saved by using this Arm.

The accompanying illustration shows the Arm very clearly. Take a good long look at it, so you will become acquainted with the many points of convenience and merit.

The Arm has been thoroughly tested and has given perfect satisfaction. Thousands are in use right now. This announcement was delayed, to be absolutely correct.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Morton Grove, Ill., are using this new Arm throughout the new range they are building.

It is just as good as the ADVANCE Ventilating apparatus, which has an established reputation that is unequalled. The same concern that places the IRONCLAD GUARANTEE on Ventilators places a like guarantee on these Arms.

You can't go wrong if you will consult the ADVANCE CO. concerning your requirements for Ventilating apparatus or Greenhouse Fittings.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Easter proved to be good for the local florists, both wholesale and retail. The wholesalers cleaned up on everything but a few lilies, valley, snapdragon and some rather poor bulbous stock. Few of the retail stores had anything left after the close of the holiday's business. Plants sold well. Roses were in good supply and cleaned up readily. Killarney and White Killarney composed the bulk of the offerings. Beauties were in short supply, but a much better crop is promised for the immediate future. Carnations were rather short of the demand and as a result prices were higher than is usual for Easter. It is needless to say that all sold readily. Bulbous offerings consisted principally of white and red tulips, jonquils and a few Dutch hyacinths. All the good stock sold nicely. Both Easter lilies and callas sold well. Sweet peas and violets were all taken up. Green goods sold well.

Various Notes.

The florists about town must have been all in after the Easter rush, for there was not a quorum at the club meeting April 13.

Wm. Gardner, manager of P. J. Olinger's greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., was in the city last week.

For Easter C. E. Critchell disposed of a fine lot of lilies from the Hoffmeister Floral Co., at Lick Run.

Peter Weiland had an excellent lot of bulbous stock for the rush last week.

Visitors: Jacob Guenther, of Piqua, O., and P. O. Mumma, of Leesburg, O. C. H. H.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

Lawrence Cotter, manager of the Lake View Rose Gardens, says that rambler roses and azaleas are two of the most unsatisfactory plants for the wholesaler to grow, and hydrangeas one of the most profitable. He had some fine stock grown from cuttings made in April last year; plants with ten to a dozen heads were common. Easter business is reported as being fully up to former records and will help pay the coal bill, which calls for 9,000 tons of mine-run. Charlie Cotter has charge of the shipping department.

Eliot Worden is adding to his plant a house for chrysanthemums. Sweet peas will be grown for a June crop. Thomas Savage has charge.

F. A. Dorman says he never had a better season and predicts a good spring business. His son is now associated with him.

The Market.

Easter is over and the florists are all busy putting their stores in order and determining the extent of their business and especially their profit for the last week. Everyone seems to agree that it has been a banner Easter and stock moved exceedingly well.

Roses were plentiful and the stock was in fine shape. The few days of sunshine the latter part of last week helped the stock materially. Carnations were in great demand, and although the stock was fine, the supply was not large enough to meet the demands of the trade. Had there been enough of this stock, the sales for the week would have shown a still greater increase.

Violets held up wonderfully and sold to good advantage. The supply was large and the trade bought heavily. Sweet peas moved exceptionally well, although the supply was not nearly large enough to meet the demand. The Butterfly sweet peas were especially fine and brought top-notch prices. Bulbous stock, of course, made up a great part of the sales for the week. The stock was fine and sold exceedingly well.

Plants were the greatest factor in the Easter business, as usual. The stock was just about right, and the sales were enormous. Lilies were exceptionally fine and brought good prices. The supply of these was large enough to meet all demands of the trade. Azaleas, spiræas, baby ramblers and other blooming plants also were in good supply and moved exceedingly well.

President Talks About "Getting Out" the Cypress

THE last talk we had together, you went away fully convinced that if any one put sap-free cypress in their houses we were that one—now a word about the way we "get out" our materials.

There's a lot of talk (that's only talk), about "everything being cut and fitted before it leaves the factory."

We will tell you the plain truth: there are some things it's next to impossible to cut and fit satisfactorily except right on the job. You know that as well as we do. But one thing is certain—those materials which it is practical to cut and fit at our factory, are cut and fitted so they do fit without cutting and fitting on the job.

I am not saying that everything always fits just so, but I do say doing things the systematic, careful way we do, that our materials come nearer to always being right than any concern you can mention. This may sound to you like blowing, but it's not. I am simply telling it to you as our customers have told us who used to be others' customers before they were customers of ours.

To boil it down to a few words, you can depend on depending on Hitchings. "We go anywhere for business"—keep that in mind.

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. # FORGET THE WHITE CARNATION; SELL 'EM "FLOWERS"

The trade "made" Mothers' Day by advertising; now let's make it really pay by pushing "flowers," instead of just one kind of flower

HE time has come for dropping the carnation, especially the white carnation, from the advertising for Mothers' day, the second Sunday in May.

The suggestion will not meet with the approval of the gentle lady whose warm heart and fertile imagination are responsible for the day, but it can not be helped—there are not enough carnations to go around, and there are plenty of other flowers.

So let's advertise this year just "flowers"—cut flowers and plants—for Mothers' day. Let's let the business grow; not choke it to death now we've got it going.

History of Mothers' Day.

The story of Mothers' day has been told so often that it might be supposed everybody would know it by now, but, as a reader of Kipling said, "'Lest you forget' we say it yet," we florists made the day. To Miss Jarvis, who conceived the idea, we are indebted for just that—and nothing more. You know what happens to a match lighted in a gale of wind! Unless some big, strong, rough hands shelter it the blaze flares up and is whiffed out before it can do good to anybody. It's the same way with many a bright idea—no go unless somebody sees a profit in it and gets after it.

Miss Jarvis decries the "commercializing" of the idea, and occasionally somebody who lives off donations declines to recognize the day because florists are making money out of it—but that is no reason why we should stop advertising it to those who are interested, which means practically everybody.

Mothers' day broke out all over the United States in 1908, for Miss Jarvis had written to a Philadelphia newspaper a letter about it that was clipped and reprinted in many other places. It created a sporadic demand that took florists by surprise, as they had not heard of it. Many wrote The Review for information, the first letter coming from Chapin Bros., Lincoln, Neb. In the last issue of April, 1909, The Review brought Mothers' day for the first time conspicuously to the attention of the whole trade, with suggestions for exploiting it—and you know the rest; it has put thousands upon thousands of dollars into the pockets of the trade.

Getting Away from White.

Luckily, Miss Jarvis, choosing the day her mother died, the second Sunday in May, hit on a date when there are plenty of indoor flowers, but not many outdoors. She suggested the white carnation as the Mothers' day flower par excellence. "Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, beauty; its fragrance, love; its wide field of growth, charity;

Six Years' Work!

Writing at Lincoln, Neb., May 11, 1913, Chapin Bros., who first called Mothers' day to the attention of the trade by writing about it to The Review, had this to say:

"Well, in this, the first city to observe Mothers' day, this one was the best yet, even though we had bad weather. Every flower in the city was sold, and of every color. There was as much call for colored as for white flowers and it was the easiest big day of the year. Saturday's sales this year were seventy-five per cent of the total Easter Saturday sales.

"All we have to do now is to see that the governor and mayor issue their proclamations, and have the ministers announce it in the churches, and publish a little advertisement, and the crowds come—and it does one's heart and pocketbook good to see them come, whole storefuls at a time, from 8 a. m. until 11:30 p. m., and carry their own packages away, in most cases, so that only the regular delivery help is needed.

"Now that colored flowers go, and we have got it fixed in people's minds, all we have to do is to hold the price reasonable and do the business. We wrote you years ago, 'Push it!' We want to say The Review has pushed it, and done wonders. Thanks to The Review; long may it live!"

Advertising Did It.

Advertising, and nothing but advertising, has made Mothers' day.

Every florist can, and should, help push along the Mothers' day observance. It can be done in many ways, some of which are described briefly in the articles that follow this one. These will suggest many other methods, although they are all advertising of one kind or another.

Flowers for Mother.

But this year let's drop the carnation out of all the ads; let's advertise just "flowers"—the carnations, and especially the white carnations, will take care of themselves no matter how strongly other flowers are pushed. Let's its lasting qualities, faithfulness—all a true mother's attributes," she wrote. But the way the sentiment appealed to the people when florists began to advertise the day was too strong for the supply of white carnations—there were not enough to go around—and The Review suggested:

For Mother at home, flowers bright.
In Mother's memory, a flower white.

This did not meet with the approval of Miss Jarvis, who does not like to have her ideas tinkered with, but the trade took up the phrase and practically everybody used it last year. It worked splendidly. This is how:

make the day pay big by selling boxes, and baskets, and bouquets of flowers, to be sent to Mother, not just one flower to be worn in Mother's memory. Let's not be content with selling boutonnières; let's sell corsage bouquets; let's sell flowers FOR Mother—she likes them.

HOW CLEVELAND WORKS IT.

The Cleveland Florists' Club was one of the first organizations to take up The Review's suggestions for the exploitation of Mothers' day. It has been handled by the club officers and with increasing success. In ample season the secretary of the club sends to every florist in Cleveland a circular that reads as follows:

YOU CANNOT DENY
the good that Co-operative advertising on MOTHERS' DAY
has done for YOU and
OTHER FLORISTS
of this City.
CONTRIBUTE to the Mothers' Day Fund AND GET RESULTS.

Your share of this fund is estimated at $..... but the exact amount you give is left to your own judgment.

We must have this money in hand before we commence to advertise.

A final statement of all receipts and expenditures will be mailed to you.

Also banners for wagons and store cards. Let me know how many you want. Make checks payable to FRANK A. FRIEDLEY, Sec'y.

The blank is filled in with the amount the florist is requested to contribute. A good many send a smaller amount than they are asked for, but last year the circular and a little telephoning resulted in a fund of $350. This was used for exploiting Mothers' day and flowers; the advertising of any special flower was carefully avoided and no firm names appeared in any of the advertising. But let Secretary Friedley tell it:

"Cleveland florists' efforts this year, in putting Mothers' day before the public, were practically the same that we have used the last three years; namely, banners for our wagons, and others, all the wagons we could get to carry them; cards for store windows, and cards 16x16 in every street car in the city. The street car cards were hung in the middle of the car, where 'he who runs can read.' All the above bore the same wording:

Mothers' Day
Sunday, May 11, 1913.
Remember her by wearing or sending Flowers.

"In addition to this we carried an ad in each of the five leading dailies, three times in each, during the week before the second Sunday in May, all of which cost us for a city of over a half million, $350. The fund is made up by each florist and grower subscribing his share according to the size of his business, the amounts ranging from $2 from small growers who consign to commission houses, to the wholesalers who gave $20.

"We noticed a marked increase this year in the call for colored flowers. Many buyers have awakened to the fact that 'for mothers living a flower bright, etc.' Of course the call is for white carnations, but with judicious advertising on the lines of colored flowers for mothers living we have the opportunity of making Easter and Christmas take second and third place respectively as flower days. Retailers report increases this year on Mothers' day over last year running from ten per cent to fifty per cent."

WHERE NEWSPAPERS HELP.

There are a good many cities in which there is at least one live newspaper—a newspaper that will help those who are willing to help themselves. Columbus is such a town. The Ohio State Journal is published there. It numbers several florists among its regular advertisers, and the newspaper's advertising men work with and for the florists. On a number of occasions the Columbus florists and the State Journal have worked together to develop flower sales out of suggestions printed in The Review. Reproduced, reduced in size, on this page, is a full-page Mothers' day advertisement printed in the State Journal Friday morning before Mothers' day last year. In sending a copy of it to The Review, J. R. Hague, advertising manager of the State Journal, wrote as follows:

"I am enclosing the Mothers' day page we put on for our issue of Friday, May 9. Needless to say, it proved a great thing for the florists whom we asked for a representation. We preferred not to have more than the eight, because we wanted each to have a sufficiently large space for a good display and an attractive ad.

"You reproduced our page on the St. Valentine's day advertising, which idea we frankly admit we procured from your valued columns. The idea for the Mothers' day stunt also came from the same source, and I felt that you would be glad to see how it worked out. We were the only local paper that put over the full page, possibly because we were willing to put our money in it with the florists; in other words, not charging them for the big heading or the big editorial. We gave them a run for their money and they paid only for the actual space their ad occupied.

"Retail florists are essentially, from long habit, no doubt, non-advertisers. When a newspaper is willing to go half-way to get them started in the publicity game it can not be otherwise than mutually profitable for paper and advertisers—frankly, that is the position we have taken here on the Journal and it needs but a glance at our files to tell the story—we are carrying more florists' advertising than either of the other two local dailies.

"Having obtained several rattling good ideas from The Review, which has meant additional space to the paper, I really feel that this word of acknowledgment is due you. I only hope that the rank and file of florists are appreciating what you are doing for them."

Perhaps the idea may not be as clear to everyone as it is to Mr. Hague and The Review. The newspaper planned the page advertisement, dividing it into eight equal spaces, which were offered to florists, each one paying one-eighth of the total cost of the page. The newspaper did all the work of planning and writing. No doubt papers in other towns will be glad to take up the idea if a florist calls their attention to this and offers to be one of the advertisers and to speak a word to the others. It's

OBSERVING MOTHERS' DAY

No day in all the year set apart for observance has been so generally acknowledged and enthusiastically accepted nationally as May 11th. The sentiment originated with Miss Annie Jarvis of Philadelphia. The happy thought occurred to her that all mothers, whether living or dead, should be honored some day and the second Sunday in May was set aside as Mothers' Day.

Commemorate the memory of your dearest and best friend, "Your Mother." The sentiment expressed in the wearing of your mother's favorite flower is more grand and noble than words of tongue or pen.

A white flower for mother's memory, a bright-colored flower for mothers living. In the former case the wearing of a flower will mean the outward sign of respect and honor to her memory. In the latter it is a cheering and loving thought to send your mother a tribute of flowers on Mothers' Day. Just a simple effort on your part, amid the busy swirl of life, to make her know you still remember all her gentle, careful watching, and her patience when you caused her sorrow. The popular florists represented on this page have made special preparation to deliver promptly flower orders in any quantity to all parts of the city and to supply the public with fresh and choice flowers.

a case where the competitive idea should be forgotten—the more Mothers' day advertising the local paper carries, the more flowers will be sold in that city. Get to it now. Mothers' day is May 10. The ad should appear May 9 at the latest; May 8 if the paper used is an evening edition.

THE THREE ESSENTIALS.

It has been said that some florists make a good living working only with their hands, that some get along all right working only with their heads, but that when you find a man working with both his head and his hands you have someone whose progress is worth watching. W. F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, is one of those who looks for the essentials. He has found three things necessary to make Mothers' day business boom. They are: "Good stock, reasonable prices, wide publicity."

It was in 1912 that the florists of Washington combined for Mothers' day advertising along lines suggested by The Review. They were so well pleased that eight retailers and one wholesaler last season contributed the funds for the purchase of a full page for Mothers' day. It appeared Friday morning and is reproduced on this page, much reduced in size. The illustration in the center came out poorly; it is a coarse screen halftone of Whistler's famous portrait of his mother, probably the most widely known "Mother" picture in the world. Commenting on the results of the full-page advertisement a few days after Mothers' day, Mr. Gude said:

"The day was particularly successful. While we had an enormous stock of carnations, it was necessary to stop selling at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, as we could not supply the demands. True, we only charged $1 per dozen; in a few instances $1.50 for extra fine selected stock.

"As for the future, the florists can do a great deal toward putting one more Easter day business on the calendar by properly advertising Mothers' day, but above all things we all should be reasonable in charging for flowers for such an occasion. We are not in sympathy with the policy of getting all that one can for flowers for Mothers' day, particularly for white carnations. We believe it is far better to sell them at a reasonable price, tell your customers frankly when you are sold out and induce them to buy other flowers. With us it worked well this year. It is one thing to do a big business and another to have it eminently satisfactory, and we believe our Mothers' day business was satisfactory in every particular to every one of our customers as well as to our firm. This was largely due to reasonable prices and extra delivery, for we had five automobiles to deliver the flowers on time wherever wanted.

"From a retailer's point of view, we believe the wholesalers and the growers can do much toward making this day much more profitable to themselves as well as to the retailers by timing stock a little for the second Sunday in May. To be sure, it will be impossible to grow flowers enough to go around at reasonable prices for the one day, but above all things, the florists as a whole should not raise the prices so high as to kill all the sentiment that goes with this beautiful custom. Good stock, reasonable prices and wide publicity will make

MAILING CARDS.

Within the last few months many florists have had excellent results through the use of handsomely printed mailing cards or folders, now offered by publicity specialists, and such a one already is in the hands of hundreds of florists, ready to be sent out just before Mothers' day.

Advertising folders or mailing cards enable the florist to reach just the people he wants. If he is located at one side of a big town, where he thinks a large part of a newspaper's circulation would be more or less waste, they are a splendid means of covering his own little section at comparatively small cost. And a number of florists located downtown, who are among the largest users of newspapers space, are supplementing their newspaper advertising by using mailing cards. The people who make these cards and folders know the advertising specialty business; the folders are handsomely printed and the text is good. For instance, a Mothers' day folder reads as follows:

"The second Sunday in May has been set apart everywhere as the day upon which we honor Mother. A bouquet of beautiful flowers sent to your mother, or an appropriate plant that she can watch grow and care for as only mothers know how, will make this day happier and bring back to her thoughts memories she holds most dear.

"We deliver flowers anywhere, by telegraph, in a few hours' time."

Nothing about white carnations in that. The illustration in colors shows Mother with an armful of flowers. The title is "Sweet Memories." These cards are comparatively inexpensive because they are printed in quantities, the name and address of the florist being the only part that is not the same on the entire edition. The florist can, of course, print something of the kind for himself, but the cost of anything equally good usually is considered prohibitive. The folders are safe to use, because, while they are printed and sold in quantities, only one florist in a town can get them. The Review believes strongly in display advertising in the daily paper read by the most flower buyers, as being the best means of increasing the use of flowers—but for those who think differently or who want to use something in addition to the newspaper, mailing cards are excellent. This is not an advertisement of mailing cards; it merely is an expression of the hope that the least any florist will do to boost the Mothers' day business is to mail to every well-to-do man in his town some nicely printed reminder of the day.

"IT'S JUST AS EASY."

To exploit Mothers' day in 1913 the W. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, used two different kinds of advertising. One advertisement, reproduced in this issue, one-fourth the original size, showed mother in her armchair, seated beneath a tree, enjoying the bright spring day and feasting her eyes on the basket of flowers from Rock's. In addition to the florist's name and the words "Mother's day, Sunday," the only text in the advertisement was:

Bright flowers for mothers living.
White flowers for Mother's memory.

Where the first advertisement was general, the second was direct and specific—it offered a basket of spring flowers, complete with ribbon bow and water retainer, for 95 cents; also fresh carnations, any color, $1 per dozen. In sending copies of the advertisements to The Review with a report of excellent business the Rock Flower Co. wrote: "The Review has shown that Mothers' day business need not be confined to the sale of boutonnieres or white carnations; it is just as easy to sell something better worth while to the advertiser."

"HAPPY THIS NOON."

It was Joseph Haube, of Charleroi, Pa., who wrote the following at closing hour last Mothers' day: "Happy this noon; sold out completely. Took up the idea suggested by The Review and advertised by show windows and in the newspaper, recommending 'bright flowers' for mothers living. Sold 4,000 blooms, all kinds, at good prices in a town of 10,000 inhabitants."

Shown on a Movie Screen.

Mr. Haube used a quarter page in his local paper for the advertisement reproduced on this page much reduced in size. At the same time that he gave the editor the advertisement he told him the story of Mothers' day and the difficulty of getting enough flowers of any one kind or color. So the editor printed the following sensible notice:

Florists are trying to encourage the movement that is becoming somewhat general to get away from the use of the white carnation for certain holiday occasions. At this season of the year there is a greater demand for white carnations than at any other, owing to the observance of Mothers' day, which occurs Sunday. It has been the custom in the past, regardless of what was commonly termed florists' whims, to wear the white carnation. This has sent the cost of these flowers to the top notch and there are never enough to supply the demand. In the observance of Mothers' day local florists state that any flower is appropriate. For the mother living a bright flower should be worn, preferable above all others her favorite variety. The same would apply to the mother dead excepting that for her a white flower is regarded as proper.

WINDOW ADVERTISING.

The window decorators are up against it when it comes to Mothers' day. It is difficult to devise a scheme of decoration that carries the idea and that will be different from what has been done before. The stock decoration for a Mothers' day window is a portrait of Mother, usually framed, on an easel and decorated with flowers. There also must be a card stating the date of Mothers' day and suggesting the sending of flowers.

One of the enterprising publicity specialists early devised a Mothers' day hanger for display in store and window. A reproduction of it is shown on this page. It is better than the average flower store sign writer can do for himself.

FLASH IT ON THE SCREEN.

REMEMBER MOTHERS' DAY.
Let every heart today remember Mother,
The sweetest word yet learned by human tongue;
A truer lover yet than any other
Beneath the skies, since this old world was young.
The fondest memories of our lives enshrine her;
Her breast—our fount of life, our throne of state;
Ah! If today our arms may not entwine her,
At least we'll wear a flower for Mother's sake.
Though far from Mother's arms you may have wandered,
Yea, though the skies may curtain her from view,
Let not her wealth of love be thankless squandered;
Her fondest, latest prayer was still for you;
And, if today a flower you may not send her,
Token of love, her joy to consummate,
Let memory still its loyalty extend her,
And wear a flower today for Mother's sake.
Then with blossoms tell Mother the story
That her memory we cherish most dear;
White flowers for the mothers in glory,
Bright flowers for the mothers still here.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Henry Smith opened a branch store on Division avenue to handle his Easter sales more easily. The business was up to all anticipations.

Great Falls, Mont.—Easter business was the best ever this year, according to the Electric City Conservatory. Cut flowers, aside from carnations and roses, were plentiful and cleaned up well. Potted Easter lilies also sold out, and other plants had a good demand.

Jackson, Tenn.—Murray Sands is planning to add a house, 26x70 feet, to his range of three Moninger houses, and will put in a large sectional boiler to heat his entire plant. He reports a good Easter trade in spite of a heavy rainfall the Saturday before the holy day.

Youngstown, O.—H. H. Cade was well pleased with his first Easter business since taking over John Walker's retail place. Mr. Walker was on hand to give assistance during the rush. His trip to the Isle of Pines did him a great deal of good and it would not surprise his friends to see him turning his greenhouses into a pineapple range.

Beaver, Pa.—Thos. M. Fitzgerald says all hands were kept hustling to take care of the best Easter business on record. He has a good-sized family and the fact that they are all graduates in floriculture is a source of satisfaction at such strenuous times. An additional auto delivery car will be purchased and another greenhouse will be added shortly after Memorial day.

Zanesville, O.—The Imlay Co. ran short of stock at Easter, which was the best on record. The lateness of the planting season gave an opportunity to get in line for the seed business, which is an important branch. The landscape work is taken care of by the founder, James D. Imlay, who finds outdoor work especially congenial, while at the same time a valuable asset to the business. Floral work for sixty-nine funerals was the record for last month.

Meadville, Pa.—Geo. W. Haas & Son report that the Saturday preceding Easter was one of the most disagreeable spring days ever experienced; it rained all day and until late at night, making deliveries difficult. In spite of this handicap, however, the Easter business was the best on record. Though the firm had a heavy stock of both plants and cut flowers, everything salable was disposed of and still the demand was not fully satisfied.

Steubenville, O.—Geo. L. Huseroff says his staff had just pulled through the Easter rush when they accepted a big wedding decoration at Columbus, requiring a carload of stock. The car was furnished by his patron, a railroad magnate. Owing to his locating a good line of roses and carnations, he kept the price normal, with the result that he was favored with extraordinary sales and a general clean-up. He notes a steadily increasing call for pot plants of medium size and price, and predicts that before many seasons the sales of plants will be enormous.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—To gather in his full share of the Easter business, Caspar Henkel, whose greenhouse is on Plainfield avenue, opened a temporary store at 207 Monroe avenue, northwest.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Boston, Mass.—Zinn's Flower Shop, Inc., 34 West street, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court April 17. The liabilities are $9,350.37, most of which is unsecured. Assets are given at $1,500, mostly debts due. The largest of about fifty unsecured creditors is Mrs. Olivia F. Zinn, of Medford, treasurer of the company, who filed the report. Mrs. Zinn was defendant in an action by her husband, Julius A. Zinn, proprietor of Zinn's Flower Shop, on Park street, several months ago, in which he was granted an injunction against the West street shop for using a name similar to that of his own firm.

FLOWER CONQUESTS.

[Editorial in the Cleveland Leader.]

Florists report the biggest Easter trade in the history of Cleveland. Other cities undoubtedly had the same experience. The cold statistics of the United States census show that few kinds of business are growing in this country at such a rate as the expansion of the trade of the flower producers and flower sellers.

In this respect the evidence of all observers is corroborated by the records of business. The facts are what might be expected by anyone who watches the multiplication of the flower stores and the growth of their patronage. The love of flowers and their use are making a more complete conquest of the country every year.

In time this change will affect all social levels, all conditions of living. It will make little window boxes common where there is no room for flower beds in yards. It will multiply flower pots where only a few of the simplest plants can be kept. It will brighten business buildings as well as apartment houses and dwellings of all sizes and grades.

There was a period when the care and love of flowers was considered in some measure an impeachment of the manliness and capacity for men's work of Americans who had to take life seriously. That time is fast passing. It is impossible to question the efficiency and the valor of those who are responsive to the appeal of flowers, after the object lessons the Germans and the Japanese have given the world.

The flower conquests of the times are one of many steps toward finer and more beautiful life. They will go on until the country is greatly enriched on the side of art and charm and rational joy in living.

Danbury, Conn.—Fire started by an overheated chimney destroyed the office and boiler house at the plant of E. E. Mathewson, on North street, April 14, and caused a total damage of almost $1,500, with no insurance. Mr. Mathewson says he will rebuild at once.

Gloversville, N. Y.—The contents of the greenhouse and the adjoining shop of William J. Larcombe, at East Main street and Jansen avenue, which were destroyed by fire April 7, were a total loss, as no insurance was carried on these. The shop was insured to the extent of $300.

cards; it merely is an expression of the hope that the least any florist will do to boost the Mothers' day business is to mail to every well-to-do man in his town some nicely printed reminder of the day.

"IT'S JUST AS EASY."

To exploit Mothers' day in 1913 the W. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, used two different kinds of advertising. One advertisement, reproduced in this issue, one-fourth the original size, showed mother in her armchair, seated beneath a tree, enjoying the bright spring day and feasting her eyes on the basket of flowers from Rock's. In addition to the florist's name and the words "Mother's day, Sunday," the only text in the advertisement was:

Bright flowers for mothers living.
White flowers for Mother's memory.

Where the first advertisement was general, the second was direct and specific—it offered a basket of spring flowers, complete with ribbon bow and water retainer, for 95 cents; also fresh carnations, any color, $1 per dozen. In sending copies of the advertisements to The Review with a report of excellent business the Rock Flower Co. wrote: "The Review has shown that Mothers' day business need not be confined to the sale of boutonnieres or white carnations; it is just as easy to sell something better worth while to the advertiser."

"HAPPY THIS NOON."

It was Joseph Haube, of Charleroi, Pa., who wrote the following at closing hour last Mothers' day: "Happy this noon; sold out completely. Took up the idea suggested by The Review and advertised by show windows and in the newspaper, recommending 'bright flowers' for mothers living. Sold 4,000 blooms, all kinds, at good prices in a town of 10,000 inhabitants."

Shown on a Movie Screen.

Mr. Haube used a quarter page in his local paper for the advertisement reproduced on this page much reduced in size. At the same time that he gave the editor the advertisement he told him the story of Mothers' day and the difficulty of getting enough flowers of any one kind or color. So the editor printed the following sensible notice:

Florists are trying to encourage the movement that is becoming somewhat general to get away from the use of the white carnation for certain holiday occasions. At this season of the year there is a greater demand for white carnations than at any other, owing to the observance of Mothers' day, which occurs Sunday. It has been the custom in the past, regardless of what was commonly termed florists' whims, to wear the white carnation. This has sent the cost of these flowers to the top notch and there are never enough to supply the demand. In the observance of Mothers' day local florists state that any flower is appropriate. For the mother living a bright flower should be worn, preferable above all others her favorite variety. The same would apply to the mother dead excepting that for her a white flower is regarded as proper.

WINDOW ADVERTISING.

The window decorators are up against it when it comes to Mothers' day. It is difficult to devise a scheme of decoration that carries the idea and that will be different from what has been done before. The stock decoration for a Mothers' day window is a portrait of Mother, usually framed, on an easel and decorated with flowers. There also must be a card stating the date of Mothers' day and suggesting the sending of flowers.

One of the enterprising publicity specialists early devised a Mothers' day hanger for display in store and window. A reproduction of it is shown on this page. It is better than the average flower store sign writer can do for himself.

FLASH IT ON THE SCREEN.

REMEMBER MOTHERS' DAY.
Let every heart today remember Mother,
The sweetest word yet learned by human tongue;
A truer lover yet than any other
Beneath the skies, since this old world was young.
The fondest memories of our lives enshrine her;
Her breast—our fount of life, our throne of state;
Ah! If today our arms may not entwine her,
At least we'll wear a flower for Mother's sake.
Though far from Mother's arms you may have wandered,
Yea, though the skies may curtain her from view,
Let not her wealth of love be thankless squandered;
Her fondest, latest prayer was still for you;
And, if today a flower you may not send her,
Token of love, her joy to consummate,
Let memory still its loyalty extend her,
And wear a flower today for Mother's sake.
Then with blossoms tell Mother the story
That her memory we cherish most dear;
White flowers for the mothers in glory,
Bright flowers for the mothers still here.

EASTER TRADE

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Henry Smith opened a branch store on Division avenue to handle his Easter sales more easily. The business was up to all anticipations.

Great Falls, Mont.—Easter business was the best ever this year, according to the Electric City Conservatory. Cut flowers, aside from carnations and roses, were plentiful and cleaned up well. Potted Easter lilies also sold out, and other plants had a good demand.

Jackson, Tenn.—Murray Sands is planning to add a house, 26x70 feet, to his range of three Moninger houses, and will put in a large sectional boiler to heat his entire plant. He reports a good Easter trade in spite of a heavy rainfall the Saturday before the holy day.

Youngstown, O.—H. H. Cade was well pleased with his first Easter business since taking over John Walker's retail place. Mr. Walker was on hand to give assistance during the rush. His trip to the Isle of Pines did him a great deal of good and it would not surprise his friends to see him turning his greenhouses into a pineapple range.

Beaver, Pa.—Thos. M. Fitzgerald says all hands were kept hustling to take care of the best Easter business on record. He has a good-sized family and the fact that they are all graduates in floriculture is a source of satisfaction at such strenuous times. An additional auto delivery car will be purchased and another greenhouse will be added shortly after Memorial day.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cyclamens.

With Easter stock out of the way, giving much valuable bench space, it is possible to do a little more justice to the cyclamens. Neglect of these, or, for that matter, any other plants, spells, if not failure, at least something approaching it. Cyclamens are beautiful and popular winter-flowering plants and to succeed with them they must be kept moving nicely all the time. The place for them for some time yet will be in a greenhouse where they are close to the light. Give a light shading as the power of the sun increases and keep a minimum temperature of 52 to 55 degrees. The larger plants should now be in 4-inch pots, some probably in a size larger. Be sure to use a light compost, one containing a good deal of leaf-mold not too much decayed, with some old cow manure and loam. Equal parts of the three make an ideal compost. When potting, firm the plants well, leave a liberal basin for water and be sure not to bury the corms.

Of nearly all plants there is more or less surplus yearly, but there is probably less surplus of cyclamens than almost any other plant. The earliest flowered plants sell well for Thanksgiving. At Christmas they are in greatest demand, but they can be held until March or later in a cold, shaded house. The house or houses containing them should be freely ventilated, but always avoid cold draughts. Early in the afternoons of clear days a light spraying overhead will be much appreciated.

Nerines.

Those bulbous plants, the nerines, commonly called Guernsey lilies, among the brightest and most charming of fall flowers, which come in season at a time when greenhouse flowers are far from plentiful, are not much grown commercially. For one thing, the bulbs are rather too costly. Although the high-class stores are glad to get them during October and November, they cannot be retailed at a price which would commend them to the average country florist. These nerines, which have been wintered in a cool greenhouse, will show by their yellowing foliage that they are nearing their resting period. Remove them to a coldframe, air freely and give the plants plenty of sun. Do not withhold water suddenly, but gradually decrease the supply so that by the third week in May all the foliage will have ripened off and after that the plants can be laid on their sides for the summer in a hot, dry location where they can have a thorough baking and where they can remain until the flower spikes appear, which is usually toward the end of September.

Canterbury Bells.

In order to get good sized plants of Canterbury bells for the spring or early summer of 1915, sow the seeds now in a coldframe, which should be kept quite close until the seeds germinate, after which give more air. Transplant, when of sufficient size, into flats, and from these set the plants out in nursery rows two feet apart, with fifteen inches between the plants. Any wanted for indoor culture can be potted in October. Others either may be planted out where they are to flower, or, in the colder states, kept over winter in coldframes. Single white, delicate pink and mauve are the best for pot culture. Many people like the Calycanthema or hose in hose variety, but doubles are too heavy to be pleasing.

Plants in pots, which are wanted for flowering in May, should be grown in a cool, airy house. Several stakes will be needed in each pot. If these are not placed in the pots early the stems will become badly twisted or may be broken. For Memorial day, Canterbury bells are not half so much grown as their merit warrants. Either as pot plants or for cutting, they are splendid and anyone who succeeds in timing a batch for this holiday, not at all a difficult feat, will make a big hit with them.

Memorial Day Crops.

There is a shorter period than usual between Easter and Memorial day this year, which makes it more difficult to get crops for the latter holiday on time. Weather conditions, over a large part of the country, up to the middle of April, were decidedly cool and plants under glass lacked the solar heat which sends them along at such a rate in spring. Of course climatic conditions change quickly and often too severely. One hot week will send along at a surprising rate crops of which one has almost despaired.

The crops of ten weeks' stocks, double feverfew, candytuft and other flowers which are always so useful for May 30 should now be well looked after. Keep the soil free from weeds, stirred and carefully watered. Don't coddle any of them; it will not pay. All these crops want the fullest sun until they are in flower, and if they reach this stage a little early it will be an easy matter to give the glass a light shading to assist in keeping them cooler.

Asters.

Now that we have at last got settled weather the ground on which asters are to be planted should be thoroughly harrowed and later pulverized well with a smoothing harrow. This is presuming that the ground was manured and plowed last fall. If the ground was not broken up at that time, manure it liberally, plow and pulverize it well at once. Such early sorts as Early Wonder and Queen of the Market should be gradually hardened off and planted out early in May, by which time danger from frost will have disappeared in all but the more northerly states. Place the plants ten to twelve inches apart in the rows. The distance between the rows may be two feet where hand cultivating is done, and three feet where a horse is used.

ORCHIDS

THE DUTY ON ORCHID PLANTS.

Officers of the United States government do not feel that the public treasury has received everything that was coming to it by reason of the importation of orchid plants. There has been a lot of friction over the valuation of importations.

Because of the unpleasant features of administering the old tariff law, the orchid importers got together and went to Washington with a request that the duty on orchid plants be made specific instead of ad valorem in the new democratic tariff. But they were too late; the bill had progressed too far toward the president's signature for the orchid men to get the change asked. In the new law the duty on orchid plants is the same as under the old law, twenty-five per cent ad valorem.

The customs authorities read in the newspapers about some multimillionaire having paid a fabulous sum (usually overstated in print) for some rare orchid plant and they try to trace the plant in the customs house record. Of course, it cannot be done. The importer declares his entries at no more than the plants cost him in the country whence they came; he pockets the profit that comes with the discovery of an occasional valuable plant.

But the fact is that the methods by which the orchid importing business is handled are undergoing more or less change which justifies the government in demanding higher invoice values. When the industry was small the collector went into the woods and brought out his plants. There was no market in the country of origin by which the import valuation could be established. As the business has developed, however, there are natives who make a business of collecting orchids and selling them for export. They gradually have established a market and, if the American importer is paying more for his stock, he is getting it with less personal effort. Many varieties are advancing in price because of increased demand, the exhaustion of the regularly hunted localities, and because of the number of hands through which the stock now passes. The customs authorities are becoming more or less familiar with the situation and they are seeking to add the government's quota to the cost. There is little doubt that the importer will have to submit to increased duty, which he promptly will pass on to the man in the greenhouse.

A FEW PHALAENOPSIS.

In a talk before the Chicago Florists' Club a few weeks ago, George L. Freeman, Fall River, Mass., widely known as an orchid expert, and then on his way home from a visit to the principal orchid growers as far west as the Pacific, made the statement that San Francisco not only uses more orchids than any other city of equal size in America, but that spray orchids have a greater vogue at San Francisco than anywhere else in the United States. The remark is recalled by news that a San Francisco grower and dealer has just received from the Philippines the largest shipment of phalaenopsis that ever came to this country. It consisted of a solid carload of plants, over 15,000 of them. One of the accompanying illustrations shows the packing shed of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., at San Mateo, when the cases were being opened up and the other picture shows one of the company's houses of phalaenopsis in bloom.

THRIPS ON CALLAS.

I am enclosing a sample lily leaf to show what has happened to my bed of callas. Some little black insects seem to be spreading all through the geraniums and other plants. I have tried using nicotine and a heavy solution of soap suds, but neither has any effect on them. The leaves are all turning yellow. Would you kindly inform me just what should be used? H. A. B.

The plants have a bad dose of thrips. Fumigate twice a week, continue spraying with vigor and you should get the better of these pests, though they are not easy to dislodge. A mixture of Paris green and sugar has been used successfully as a remedy by some growers. C. W.

TUBEROSES FAILING TO GROW.

I should like to get some information in regard to growing tuberoses. Part of my bulbs were potted and part put in flats. They were then put in a cool cellar where I start my Formosa lilies, freesias, etc. They were put there about January 20 and left there until about March 15, when they were placed under a bench in a house which is run at about 58 degrees. At the present time there is scarcely a sign of growth. What is the trouble? The bulbs looked fine. I want these to bloom for Memorial day.

B. A. R.

If you wanted tuberoses to flower for Memorial day, which is not at all an easy feat, your cultural methods could hardly have been more radically wrong. If you had given your flats a brisk bottom heat in January to encourage root formation, then potted your bulbs singly, if too crowded in the flats, and given them a really warm, moist house, kept at 65 to 75 degrees at night, with a corresponding rise in the daytime, some few might have flowered on time, but these early, hard-forced tuberoses are at best an uncertain proposition. You must give your bulbs considerably more heat if you want them to make any move, but you cannot possibly flower any of these for Memorial day.

C. W.

CINERARIAS FOR EASTER.

When should I sow cineraria seed to get blooming plants for Easter?

W. E. H.

Cineraria seeds to produce plants for Easter, 1915, which will come April 4, need not be sown before August 1. The seeds germinate poorly in hot weather and the plants do not make much growth until the arrival of cool nights.

THE ANGEL LILY.

A subscriber asks The Review to tell him where he can procure bulbs of Criminum fimbriatum, the angel lily, and to state at what date they should be planted in Texas. The variety is not listed in the catalogues at hand. Anyone who wants to make an offer can have it forwarded to the subscriber.

All these crops want the fullest sun until they are in flower, and if they reach this stage a little early it will be an easy matter to give the glass a light shading to assist in keeping them cooler.

Asters.

Now that we have at last got settled weather the ground on which asters are to be planted should be thoroughly harrowed and later pulverized well with a smoothing harrow. This is presuming that the ground was manured and plowed last fall. If the ground was not broken up at that time, manure it liberally, plow and pulverize it well at once. Such early sorts as Early Wonder and Queen of the Market should be gradually hardened off and planted out early in May, by which time danger from frost will have disappeared in all but the more northerly states. Place the plants ten to twelve inches apart in the rows. The distance between the rows may be two feet where hand cultivating is done, and three feet where a horse is used.

THE DUTY ON ORCHID PLANTS.

Officers of the United States government do not feel that the public treasury has received everything that was coming to it by reason of the importation of orchid plants. There has been a lot of friction over the valuation of importations.

Because of the unpleasant features of administering the old tariff law, the orchid importers got together and went to Washington with a request that the duty on orchid plants be made specific instead of ad valorem in the new democratic tariff. But they were too late; the bill had progressed too far toward the president's signature for the orchid men to get the change asked. In the new law the duty on orchid plants is the same as under the old law, twenty-five per cent ad valorem.

The customs authorities read in the newspapers about some multimillionaire having paid a fabulous sum (usually overstated in print) for some rare orchid plant and they try to trace the plant in the customs house record. Of course, it cannot be done. The importer declares his entries at no more than the plants cost him in the country whence they came; he pockets the profit that comes with the discovery of an occasional valuable plant.

But the fact is that the methods by which the orchid importing business is handled are undergoing more or less change which justifies the government in demanding higher invoice values. When the industry was small the collector went into the woods and brought out his plants. There was no market in the country of origin by which the import valuation could be established. As the business has developed, however, there are natives who make a business of collecting orchids and selling them for export. They gradually have established a market and, if the American importer is paying more for his stock, he is getting it with less personal effort. Many varieties are advancing in price because of increased demand, the exhaustion of the regularly hunted localities, and because of the number of hands through which the stock now passes. The customs authorities are becoming more or less familiar with the situation and they are seeking to add the government's quota to the cost. There is little doubt that the importer will have to submit to increased duty, which he promptly will pass on to the man in the greenhouse.

A FEW PHALÆNOPSIS.

In a talk before the Chicago Florists' Club a few weeks ago, George L. Freeman, Fall River, Mass., widely known as an orchid expert, and then on his way home from a visit to the principal orchid growers as far west as the Pacific, made the statement that San Francisco not only uses more orchids than any other city of equal size in America, but that spray orchids have a greater vogue at San Francisco than anywhere else in the United States. The remark is recalled by news that a San Francisco grower and dealer has just received from the Philippines the largest shipment of phalaenopsis that ever came to this country. It consisted of a solid carload of plants, over 15,000 of them. One of the accompanying illustrations shows the packing shed of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., at San Mateo, when the cases were being opened up and the other picture shows one of the company's houses of phalaenopsis in bloom.

THRIPS ON CALLAS.

I am enclosing a sample lily leaf to show what has happened to my bed of callas. Some little black insects seem to be spreading all through the geraniums and other plants. I have tried using nicotine and a heavy solution of soap suds, but neither has any effect on them. The leaves are all turning yellow. Would you kindly inform me just what should be used? H. A. B.

The plants have a bad dose of thrips. Fumigate twice a week, continue spraying with vigor and you should get the better of these pests, though they are not easy to dislodge. A mixture of Paris green and sugar has been used successfully as a remedy by some growers. C. W.

TUBEROSES FAILING TO GROW.

I should like to get some information in regard to growing tuberoses. Part of my bulbs were potted and part put in flats. They were then put in a cool cellar where I start my Formosa lilies, freesias, etc. They were put there about January 20 and left there until about March 15, when they were placed under a bench in a house which is run at about 58 degrees. At the present time there is scarcely a sign of growth. What is the trouble? The bulbs looked fine. I want these to bloom for Memorial day.

B. A. R.

If you wanted tuberoses to flower for Memorial day, which is not at all an easy feat, your cultural methods could hardly have been more radically wrong. If you had given your flats a brisk bottom heat in January to encourage root formation, then potted your bulbs singly, if too crowded in the flats, and given them a really warm, moist house, kept at 65 to 75 degrees at night, with a corresponding rise in the daytime, some few might have flowered on time, but these early, hard-forced tuberoses are at best an uncertain proposition. You must give your bulbs considerably more heat if you want them to make any move, but you cannot possibly flower any of these for Memorial day.

CINERARIAS FOR EASTER.

When should I sow cineraria seed to get blooming plants for Easter?

W. E. H.

Cineraria seeds to produce plants for Easter, 1915, which will come April 4, need not be sown before August 1. The seeds germinate poorly in hot weather and the plants do not make much growth until the arrival of cool nights.

THE ANGEL LILY.

A subscriber asks The Review to tell him where he can procure bulbs of Criminum fimbriatum, the angel lily, and to state at what date they should be planted in Texas. The variety is not listed in the catalogues at hand. Anyone who wants to make an offer can have it forwarded to the subscriber.

PLANTING IN THE FIELD.

The Weather's Uncertainties.

The extraordinary weather, which started nearly a year ago and has continued almost steadily till now, has kept the growers guessing in regard to their plans for planting out the young stock. Usually about the latter part of April we have a raw spell of weather. We have been in the habit of waiting for that spell to come and pass, thus beginning operations in the field about May 1. This year, the cold, cloudy weather held on until early April, when it cleared up into real spring, so mild that one could hardly resist the temptation to get at least a part of the stock into the field. Last year we waited for that same period, but the ensuing weeks, instead of bringing good gardening weather, brought a drought that did serious injury to the newly planted stock, so that those who planted in late April fared better than those who waited for the milder weather.

Taking Chances.

We are taking our chances with a part of our stock this year and started to plant in the field April 16. Unless a spell of bad weather sets in, we will continue right through, finishing up early in May. We do not recommend this early planting for those who have only a few thousands to set out and can do it in a couple of days, as we believe that a plant set out about May 1 will usually stand the best chance of making first-class stock for benching about August 1. After May 1 there is little danger of severe freezing in this latitude and, while a few degrees of frost will not kill carnation plants, it does them no good and a plant that will be able to move right off into growth after being set out should surely do better than one that is subjected to unfavorable conditions in which to start off. So, as already stated, we feel that we are taking a chance with the stock we are putting out now, and it will be interesting to see which plants will be in the best condition at benching time.

Preparing the Field.

Another change we are making from our usual method is in the plowing. We plowed the fields unusually late last fall, as deeply as the plow would go, leaving the ground rough. A good coat of long manure, previously applied, has helped to prevent its settling down with the winter rains. This spring we are using only the disk harrow on it, instead of plowing it first. In this way we do not turn up the wet soil from underneath and there is not the usual packing down from the tramping incidental to the planting. We follow the disk harrow with the drag. That smoothes over the surface and prevents drying out. If the field does remain in that condition a few days before being planted, there will be only a thin crust of dry soil on top, which can be easily broken up with the trowels, or, if necessary, the disk can be run over the ground again just before planting.

If you still have cuttings in the sand, get them potted up as soon as they are ready. In our latitude, we figure that anything that is set out in the field by May 10 will stand an excellent chance of making first-class stock, but as you will have to give the young cuttings at least three weeks in the pots to get them established, you can see that they ought to be already potted.

Topping the Young Stock.

Your earliest potted plants have no doubt been topped, but if you have others that are ready to top now, do not wait until planting time, thinking to do it all in one operation. It will be far better for the plants if they are topped a couple of weeks before the planting, providing they are not too potbound. No plant should be topped while it is being starved, or while it is undergoing any severe check. The time to top is while the plant is in full growth, so that a large number of eyes will start and a bushy plant result. A good lot of breaks from the first topping is the making of a bushy plant.

It is a pleasure to note the splendid lot of breaks the new varieties are making. Not one of the several varieties we have bought this year seems at all backward in this respect.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Just as was anticipated, the slump in prices that followed Easter was enormous, greater than in any previous year in the memory of the wholesale cut flower veterans. Prices fell with discouraging rapidity. Every variety of cut flower shared in the depression. There were no exceptions.

With the exception of lilies, everything held firmly and profitably up to noon Easter Sunday. But lilies dropped on Holy Saturday to half their value and all last week they continued to decline, until last Saturday the prevailing quotation was $25 to $30 per thousand, and even at this figure many thousands remained unsold. Aside from the April weddings there was no uplift nor any outlet for the surplus.

American Beauties are arriving in unlimited numbers now, and the rose crop generally is at high tide. Warm, bright, sunny weather continues, and spring seems to have come to stay. The supply of tea roses in almost every variety is enormous, and values have steadily fallen for all of them. A few of the selected novelties bring a fair price and Brunners hold at about the level of the best Beauties. Prospects for the prices of the present week are not exhilarating for the growers, and the retail trade seems to be at a general standstill.

Carnations are abundant; the quality is perfect, and yet, apart from the novelties, $15 per thousand will buy the best of them. Even lower figures are looked for this week. Gardenias, fine stock, are down to $5 per hundred. Even the best of them can be had for 12 cents, and there are plenty of them. Valley has been firm and in moderate supply. It was one of the best money-makers at Easter. Only the best and largest orchids are selling at encouraging prices. The supply is limited. Of the smaller grades and less popular varieties there are more than the legitimate market can digest. Violets are practically "down and out," and the street merchants are their outlet. Of tulips, daffodils, sweet peas, lilac, pansies and spring flowers of every kind there is a great abundance. Many wholesalers are handling plants, and the demand for these is general.

Various Notes.

A visit to the Anton Schultheis establishment, at College Point, found a splendid promise for Decoration day. There is no lack of supply and the roses are especially numerous and perfect. The supply of rhododendrons and azaleas will also be abundant and in fact, notwithstanding the immense Easter trade, there will be no shortage of any kind. The call for flowering plants since the holiday has been encouraging and several loads have been sent to the city daily.

At Astoria the Siebrecht range is constantly turning out great quantities of bulbous stock, valley, daffodils and tulips predominating. "Valley every day in the year" is the watchword here. There is still some acacia remaining; this is the longest season this specialty has known. Mr. Siebrecht, who now resides at Chappaqua, attends the Astoria Club's bowling practice every Thursday evening.

Edouard H. Roehrs, of Rutherford, N. J., is now in charge of the orchid department of the Julius Roehrs Co. Mr. Roehrs is now a happy benedict and the trade's congratulations are general. April 16 was the date and Miss Edith Marshall is the bride.

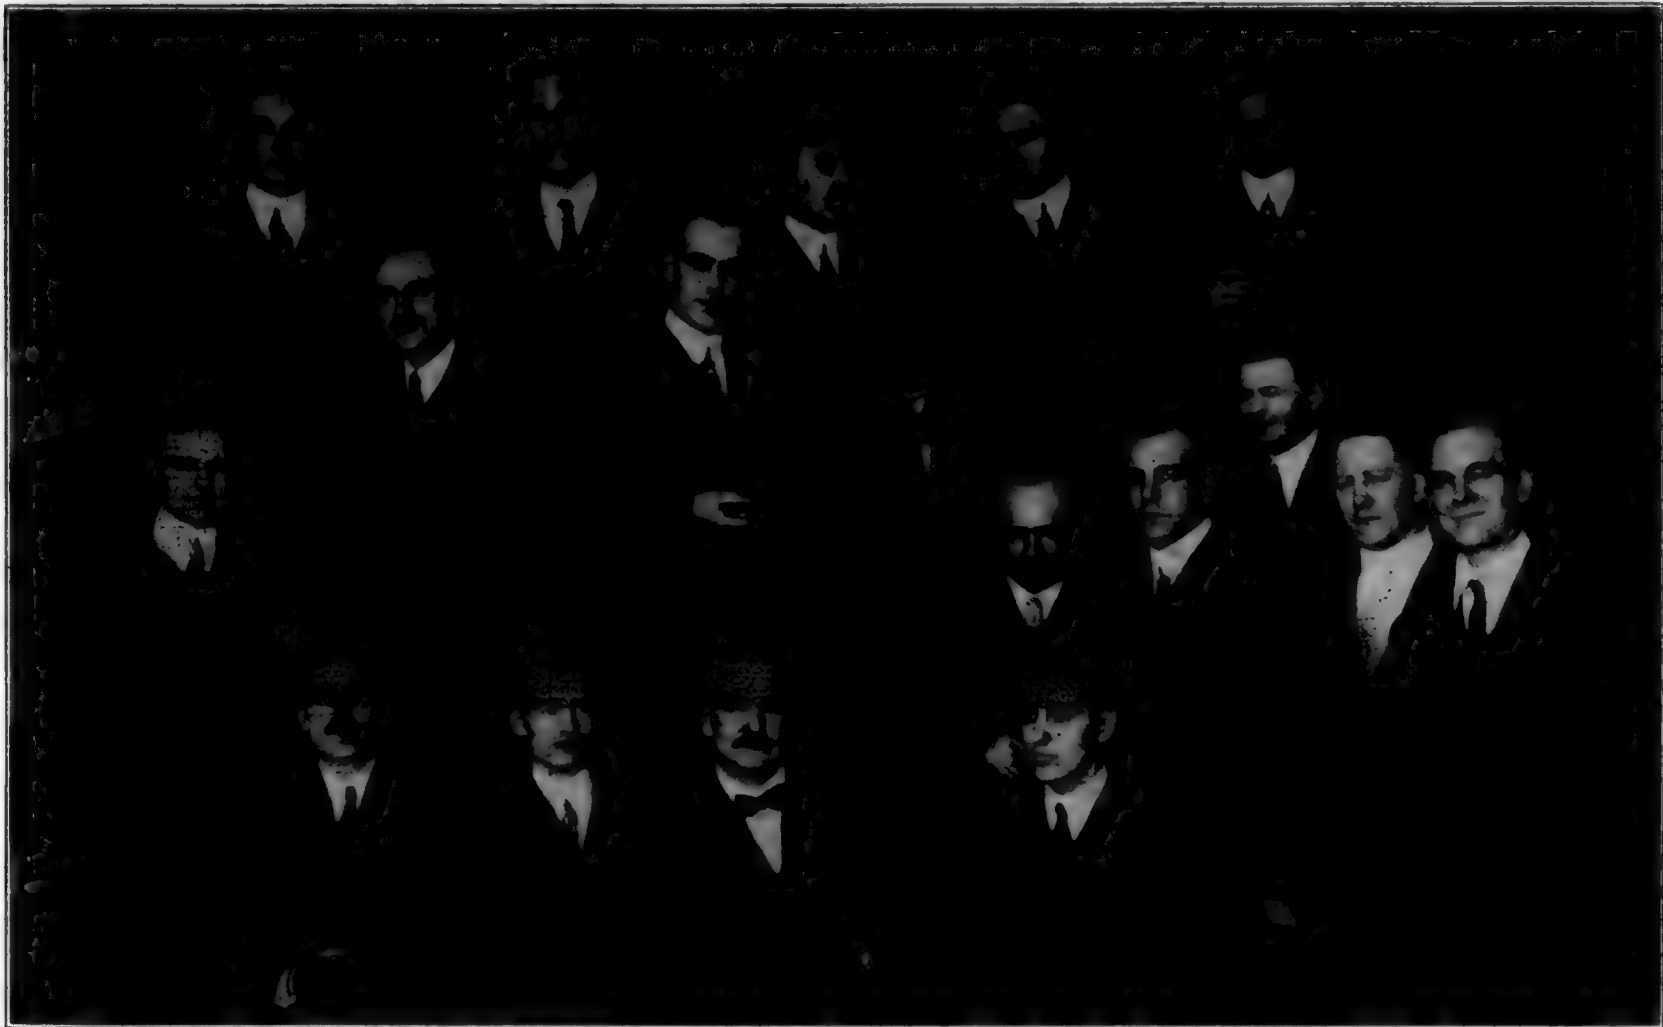

Florists are already planning for Mothers' day, May 10. There will be a great deal of judicious advertising by the retail florists, and the growers of white carnations will be on easy street.

The filling of window boxes has begun in earnest. Geraniums are arriving in great numbers, and the demand absorbs them.

The auction houses are busy. At the establishment of the MacNiff Horticultural Co. there is hardly room for the crowds that attend.

The seedsmen are overwhelmed. Spring, so long delayed, has come upon them with a rush. The stores are crowded. It promises to be a rapid and profitable season.

Bowling.

A bowling match for members of the Florists' Club took place at the Coogan alleys, April 20. An enthusiastic crowd, including several ladies, attended. A tournament that will insure weekly practice is being arranged by Messrs. Riedel, Meconi and Verona. The scores Monday evening were:

THE RANDALL STAFF.

The evening before the travelers of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, took the road after Easter, the selling staff of the florists' supplies department had a little dinner and business talk. One of the staff, Edward Galavan, brought along a camera and a can of flashlight powder. The accompanying illustration is the result. The sales force is complete, as shown in the picture, except for the gentleman who was operating the camera and Frank McCabe, J. E. Quallich and Edward Ahles, who were too far afield to spend Easter in the house.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

This year's Easter business can be recorded as fair, but it must be stated that it fell back with some of the retailers, in comparison with the record-breaking sales of last year. Not all of the flowering stock was in bloom at the right time, owing mainly to the unfavorable weather during March. The Saturday before Easter was threatening and nearly all day on Easter a cold, drizzling rain fell, keeping many buyers from making their customary Easter purchases. The sale of plants and made-up baskets suffered the most under those conditions. Cut flowers sold well all over town and few of these were left. The Chicago shipments arrived in good condition. While some growers catering to the market trade reported a fine business, others complained about it.

Now that the Lenten season is over, spring weddings and other social functions will help the trade along until summer. We had a dry spell of some length, but it was broken on the night of April 18, when a heavy thunder storm was followed by a torrential rain which lasted all night.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting April 16, at the Chamber of Commerce building. President P. A. Chopin and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their places. The attendance was good and the meeting was animated.

A motion in favor of the awarding of three prizes for plants and cut flowers, to be exhibited at the regular meetings and judged according to points, was carried by unanimous vote. Each firm will be entitled to one entry only. The prizes will be awarded at the end of the year. The president appointed the following committee on awards of prizes: Ed. Baker, Harry Dresel and Richard Eichling.

The place for this year's annual outing will be discussed at the next meeting. All the members are requested to be on deck that night, and those who wish to add ginger to the discussions should come prepared with some new ideas as to how and where to celebrate.

P. A. Chopin exhibited a vase of fine Gladiolus Baron Hulot, indigo blue, the first shown this season.

Richard Eichling, foreman of U. J. Virgin's nursery, showed some fine Iris Hispanica, blue and yellow.

Various Notes.

U. J. Virgin left April 14 for New York and Chicago, on a business trip. He expected to be back by the end of this week.

Albert Verlinde, of the firm of Verlinde & Vander Eecken, will leave about the end of April for his native town, Ghent, Belgium, for business purposes. The pleasurable part of the trip will be meeting Mrs. Verlinde, who has been staying there with relatives. They will make the return trip together. The members of the trade here wish him a pleasant trip and a happy return.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Then, of Chicago, during a recent stay here were the guests of Harry Dresel, foreman for the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. Their program while here included visits to the various florists, sightseeing, a boat ride on the Father of Waters, and last, but not least, a breakfast at the old French restaurant, Begues. Mr. and Mrs. Then expect to come back for next year's carnival.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The Market.

Florists in this locality have nothing but the weather to complain of with regard to Easter week. The usual "if" stood in the way of a general increase in the business of all the retailers. With only one clear day to boast of during the entire week, the florists all did a good business. During the rush of Friday and Saturday, the weather, although rainy at times, was not so cold that it necessitated the extra labor of wrapping the plants more than is customary. The department stores and 5 and 10-cent stores sold a large quantity of plants and cut flowers during the week. There was a stronger call for plants this year than before, and while there was enough to supply the demand under the conditions prevailing this year, there would have been a big shortage if the weather had been bright and warm on the Saturday preceding Easter. Prices were maintained at the usual Easter figures in all lines, with the one exception of carnations. While the best flowers were wholesaled at $6 per hundred locally, a large quantity was shipped into Syracuse from other places and retailed at the department stores for 60 cents per dozen, and perhaps they were worth it.

Various Notes.

Mr. Bard, of Bard & Davis, reports that their business exceeded that of last year in total. There was a big loss in the transient cash trade, but the book accounts were greatly increased. He was greatly pleased with his stock of lilies, which were nicely timed for Easter and were the best in this vicinity.

The Pierce-Christian Co. did a quite satisfactory business. As Mr. Christian said, they hardly had enough left to make their places look like flower shops. They are anticipating the arrival of their new refrigerator, which will be installed this week.

The Baker Floral Co. placed in commission a new one-ton Brockway truck on the Monday preceding Easter, and they report that it gave good service during the entire week. The body was especially built for their needs, being much larger than that of the ordinary truck, with the sides about twenty-four inches in height. With special racks, made to fit over the top of the side boards, they are able to carry a double load. There is enough room beneath the racks for azaleas, spiræas, hydrangeas, baby ramblers and other plants of that height. They were entirely sold out of all plants and cut flowers. The material for the new house, 40x200, has arrived, and building operations will be commenced during the coming week.

Miles S. Henckle increased his sales over last year's to a considerable degree. This he attributes to the natural increase he has enjoyed, along with the change in location.

The W. E. Day Co. made a remarkable showing of roses in the window for Easter. The entire window was beautifully arranged with large Tausendschon roses, about five feet in height, for a center, with other kinds, such as Hiawatha, Dorothy Perkins, Crimson Rambler, baby ramblers, Orleans and Jessie, in pretty groups around the window, and during the daytime, when the weather would permit, the sidewalk in front of this window was banked with American Beauties and Magna Charta in pots. The effect was most attractive and is responsible for the good business this firm enjoyed.

L. R. Bell, of Manlius, reports that business has increased materially with him and that he finds it necessary to plan a large addition to his present range.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

After the forty days of Lent, society emerged from its seclusion on Easter Monday, and the succeeding afternoons and nights have been filled with a round of dances, bridge parties, dinners and weddings that have made a constant demand for palms and decorative plants and a big call for cut flowers. On all sides the reports of the Easter trade indicate one of the largest ever, and the returns from the first week following exceed all previous years.

Various Notes.

Cornelius C. Sullivan, for sixteen years head gardener for Timothy O'Connor, resigned last week.

Max Villiers, who has been with Johnston Bros. for several years, has left to take up selling automobiles.

Eugene Seymour, of Warren, cut 40,000 violets for the Easter trade.

Elmer King, of Attleboro, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Edward Baker, who has been with Swan Peterson, of East Providence, is now in the employ of Richard Higgins, who has a dozen men on outside work.

Eugene A. Appleton, of William Appleton & Son, had the extensive decorations at Narragansett hotel Friday evening, April 17, for the annual reception and ball of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus.

James Nelson, formerly with the Mineral Spring Greenhouses, at Pawtucket, is now with William Hoff, Pawtucket.

A large chimney of Richard Higgins' boiler room, on Academy avenue, was blown down in the recent heavy wind storm and caused considerable damage in his carnation house.

F. W. Willard, of the Taunton Greenhouses, has purchased the interest of his partner, W. Williams, and will continue alone.

John Macrae, of Smith street, had two large house decorations last week and a church decoration another day. The latter was of palms and several hundred Easter lily blooms.

Saunders & Co. cut 3,000 valley for Easter. They have a fine lot of pips and will devote an entire house to them next season.

Otto Hassert and Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, have recently purchased Ford automobiles.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Garden Co., was reelected president of the Bank Clerks' Mutual Benefit Association at the annual meeting last week.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The weather last week was cold, but now looks a little more like spring, although there is little sunshine. There is little bulbous stock left. Daffodils and tulips are selling at a low figure. Roses of all kinds are plentiful, necessitating week-end sales. Easter lilies are excellent and the supply is strong. Carnations have stiffened up again with the cool weather and are in splendid condition. There is no oversupply. Valley is good for this time of the year and is offered in large quantities. Snapdragons in pink, yellow and variegated varieties are seen everywhere in the leading stores and bring fancy prices. Gardenias are good, but the demand for them is limited. Cattleyas are not in great demand. There are a few good azaleas on the market, but mostly large ones. Lilacs, Japanese maples, hydrangeas, spiræas and rhododendrons are still on the market. Asparagus, hardy ferns, smilax and galax are all abundant and in fine condition.

Various Notes.

L. H. Neubeck had a fine Easter trade, better than ever. He sold a large number of rustic logs filled with crocus, scilla and growing valley pips. Tausendschon roses were big sellers.

The Wm. Scott Co. reports a big trade. Azaleas seemed to sell best, but there was a call for all kinds of plants.

Jacob Wiese had a good clean-up on everything during the Easter rush.

Peter Hoffman did a fine business in his market stand. Ramblers sold best, but there was little demand for bulb stock.

Felix Alberts had a fine window display, and a rose sale April 18. Arthur Kowalski is again with Mr. Alberts at the Lenox Flower Shop.

Joseph Sangster is going on a trip soon with the Ismailia Temple lodge.

At Palmer's branch store the Easter trade was good. Large baskets were a special feature and sold well. They are showing some good English hawthorn shrubs and Japanese variegated maples.

J. Benson Stafford had a unique Easter feature. With every $1.50 plant he gave a split bamboo basket, which proved to be quite a drawing card. In his corsage work he used wheat, in various harmonizing or contrasting colors. Since wheat is being used extensively in millinery, it found favor with quite a few customers. Mr. Stafford is noted for his unique and exclusive creations.

S. A. Anderson's new cellar was quite a boon during the Easter rush. It gave much needed floor space and furnished a place for plant and cut flower storage. Benches there were convenient for papering pots and wrapping plants.

R. E. Boettger, of Eggertsville, had a fine crop of carnations and lilies, which were disposed of for Easter.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club met April 16, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with a good attendance. The question was as to whether a chrysanthemum show shall be held in Lancaster this autumn. It was decided to hold a show November 5 to 7, in the Auditorium. This will be the first real show held in Lancaster. The amateurs will make a fine showing and a large number of florists are preparing to grow stock especially for the show.

The report of the cooperative buying committee showed progress and it was interesting to hear the expressions of many of the members of the actual saving to themselves brought about by the cooperative committee.

A committee was appointed by President B. F. Barr to arrange for our annual picnic in July: Elmer J. Weaver, J. F. Moore and Frank L. Kohr.

The exhibition table was covered with a fine display. H. D. Rohrer showed twelve varieties of Zvolanek's new orchid-flowered sweet peas, which received much attention. J. P. Siebold showed specimen plants of American Beauty, Pres. Neumann and Bright Eyes geraniums. Carl Brackbill staged an extraordinary bunch of Enchantress. B. F. Barr showed some blue French hydrangeas which looked good. A geranium cluster from Ira Landis was shown for a name, but none of the members knew the variety. It measured twenty inches in circumference and the individual florets were nearly two inches in diameter; color a brilliant carmine.

Previous to the meeting a fair-sized representation of the members visited the establishments of Ira H. Landis, Paradise, and Messrs. Elmer and Charles Weaver, on the Philadelphia pike. At the Landis place we saw beds of White Wonder that have been giving a record cut this season; also Gloriosa, Enchantress Supreme and Mrs. Ward. Eureka, red, looked well and is a particularly good variety at this place. Pink lupines, gorgeous Mme. Perret pansies, calendulas, yellow marguerites, mignonette and myosotis, all for cutting, were in good form. Outdoor Spencer peas were about a foot high and gave good promise. Mr. Landis also has large plantings of gladioli, some under sash, with a 6-inch growth showing their lead over those just planted.

We next went to visit the Weaver brothers, at whose place we saw fine peas. A light blue variety and a soft pink shade, both their own selection, were beautiful. A row of Blanche Ferry winter-blooming Spencer originating with them was well thought of. The carnation stock looked well. A large block of mum cuttings are rooting. Calendulas and mignonette were exceptionally fine. A large house of Comfort and Alma Ward carnations was as fine as we have ever seen carnations at this time of year.

Leaving the Weavers, H. D. Rohrer's place was next visited, to see the new winter-blooming Spencer peas.

The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, May 21. H. K. R.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

The eleven students now registered in floriculture at the University of Illinois, at a recent meeting, organized a club to be known as the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois. The object of the club is "to advance floricultural knowledge and interests by means of papers, talks and discussions; and to promote good fellowship." August Hecht, a senior, was elected president, E. G. Lauterbach, vice-president, and Horace Ingalls, secretary-treasurer.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. L. Miller.

Mrs. J. L. Miller, of Newark, O., passed away Sunday morning, April 19, after only a few hours' illness. She had been in the florists' trade for years and had conducted a large business successfully. She went to market Saturday night, but, on returning, was suddenly stricken with illness and became unconscious in a few minutes, only lingering until early the following morning. She leaves a host of friends, not only in her own city, but in Columbus, O., where she had been well known for years. She is survived by a son, George L., who has been associated with his mother in the Newark business and also runs the Miller Flower Shop, in Columbus. The funeral occurred at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, April 21.

The Market.

Florists in this locality have nothing but the weather to complain of with regard to Easter week. The usual "if" stood in the way of a general increase in the business of all the retailers. With only one clear day to boast of during the entire week, the florists all did a good business. During the rush of Friday and Saturday, the weather, although rainy at times, was not so cold that it necessitated the extra labor of wrapping the plants more than is customary. The department stores and 5 and 10-cent stores sold a large quantity of plants and cut flowers during the week. There was a stronger call for plants this year than before, and while there was enough to supply the demand under the conditions prevailing this year, there would have been a big shortage if the weather had been bright and warm on the Saturday preceding Easter. Prices were maintained at the usual Easter figures in all lines, with the one exception of carnations. While the best flowers were wholesaled at $6 per hundred locally, a large quantity was shipped into Syracuse from other places and retailed at the department stores for 60 cents per dozen, and perhaps they were worth it.

Various Notes.

Mr. Bard, of Bard & Davis, reports that their business exceeded that of last year in total. There was a big loss in the transient cash trade, but the book accounts were greatly increased. He was greatly pleased with his stock of lilies, which were nicely timed for Easter and were the best in this vicinity.

The Pierce-Christian Co. did a quite satisfactory business. As Mr. Christian said, they hardly had enough left to make their places look like flower shops. They are anticipating the arrival of their new refrigerator, which will be installed this week.

The Baker Floral Co. placed in commission a new one-ton Brockway truck on the Monday preceding Easter, and they report that it gave good service during the entire week. The body was especially built for their needs, being much larger than that of the ordinary truck, with the sides about twenty-four inches in height. With special racks, made to fit over the top of the side boards, they are able to carry a double load. There is enough room beneath the racks for azaleas, spiræas, hydrangeas, baby ramblers and other plants of that height. They were entirely sold out of all plants and cut flowers. The material for the new house, 40x200, has arrived, and building operations will be commenced during the coming week.

Miles S. Henckle increased his sales over last year's to a considerable degree. This he attributes to the natural increase he has enjoyed, along with the change in location.

The W. E. Day Co. made a remarkable showing of roses in the window for Easter. The entire window was beautifully arranged with large Tausendschon roses, about five feet in height, for a center, with other kinds, such as Hiawatha, Dorothy Perkins, Crimson Rambler, baby ramblers, Orleans and Jessie, in pretty groups around the window, and during the daytime, when the weather would permit, the sidewalk in front of this window was banked with American Beauties and Magna Charta in pots. The effect was most attractive and is responsible for the good business this firm enjoyed.

L. R. Bell, of Manlius, reports that business has increased materially with him and that he finds it necessary to plan a large addition to his present range. B. F. C.

The Market.

After the forty days of Lent, society emerged from its seclusion on Easter Monday, and the succeeding afternoons and nights have been filled with a round of dances, bridge parties, dinners and weddings that have made a constant demand for palms and decorative plants and a big call for cut flowers. On all sides the reports of the Easter trade indicate one of the largest ever, and the returns from the first week following exceed all previous years.

Various Notes.

Cornelius C. Sullivan, for sixteen years head gardener for Timothy O'Connor, resigned last week.

Max Villiers, who has been with Johnston Bros. for several years, has left to take up selling automobiles.

Eugene Seymour, of Warren, cut 40,000 violets for the Easter trade.

Elmer King, of Attleboro, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Edward Baker, who has been with Swan Peterson, of East Providence, is now in the employ of Richard Higgins, who has a dozen men on outside work.

Eugene A. Appleton, of William Appleton & Son, had the extensive decorations at Narragansett hotel Friday evening, April 17, for the annual reception and ball of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus.

James Nelson, formerly with the Mineral Spring Greenhouses, at Pawtucket, is now with William Hoff, Pawtucket.

A large chimney of Richard Higgins' boiler room, on Academy avenue, was blown down in the recent heavy wind storm and caused considerable damage in his carnation house.

F. W. Willard, of the Taunton Greenhouses, has purchased the interest of his partner, W. Williams, and will continue alone.

John Macrae, of Smith street, had two large house decorations last week and a church decoration another day. The latter was of palms and several hundred Easter lily blooms.

Saunders & Co. cut 3,000 valley for Easter. They have a fine lot of pips and will devote an entire house to them next season.

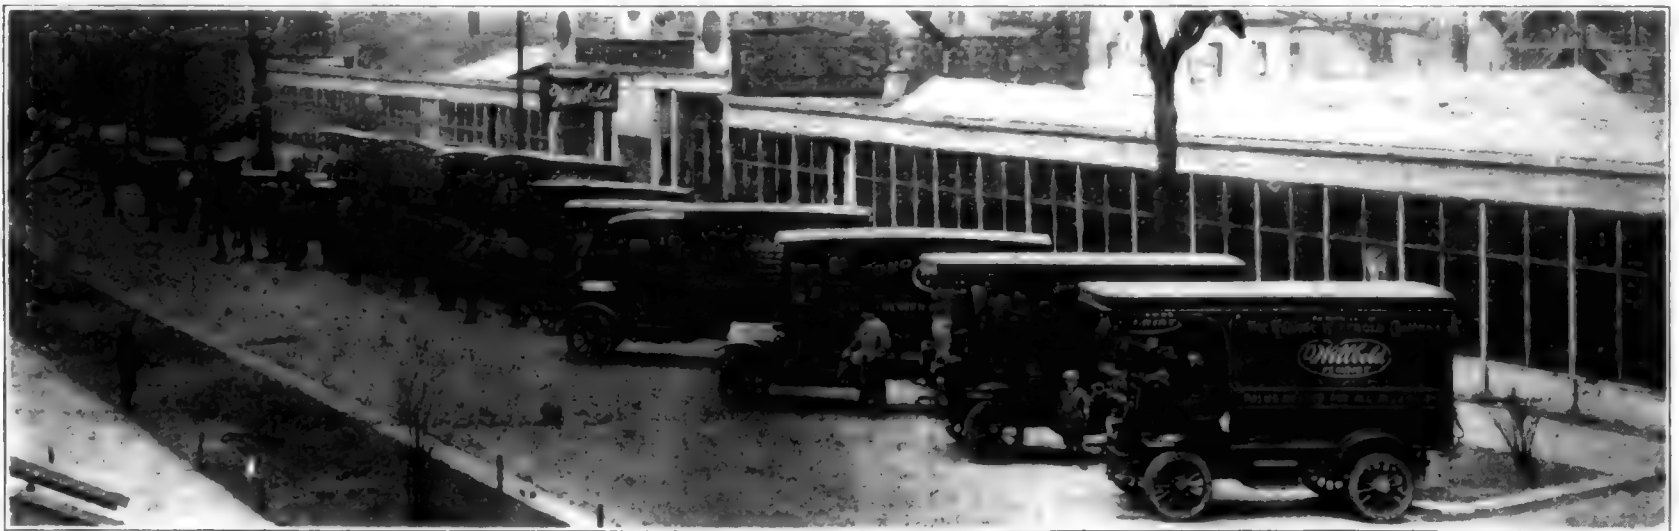

Otto Hassert and Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, have recently purchased Ford automobiles.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Garden Co., was reelected president of the Bank Clerks' Mutual Benefit Association at the annual meeting last week. W. H. M.

The Market.

The weather last week was cold, but now looks a little more like spring, although there is little sunshine. There is little bulbous stock left. Daffodils and tulips are selling at a low figure. Roses of all kinds are plentiful, necessitating week-end sales. Easter lilies are excellent and the supply is strong. Carnations have stiffened up again with the cool weather and are in splendid condition. There is no oversupply. Valley is good for this time of the year and is offered in large quantities. Snapdragons in pink, yellow and variegated varieties are seen everywhere in the leading stores and bring fancy prices. Gardenias are good, but the demand for them is limited. Cattleyas are not in great demand. There are a few good azaleas on the market, but mostly large ones. Lilacs, Japanese maples, hydrangeas, spiræas and rhododendrons are still on the market. Asparagus, hardy ferns, smilax and galax are all abundant and in fine condition.

Various Notes.

L. H. Neubeck had a fine Easter trade, better than ever. He sold a large number of rustic logs filled with crocus, scilla and growing valley pips. Tausendschon roses were big sellers.

The Wm. Scott Co. reports a big trade. Azaleas seemed to sell best, but there was a call for all kinds of plants.

The opening of E. M. Buehl's grocery on Washington street called for a large number of baskets, plants and cut flowers.

Jacob Wiese had a good clean-up on everything during the Easter rush.

Peter Hoffman did a fine business in his market stand. Ramblers sold best, but there was little demand for bulb stock.

Felix Alberts had a fine window display, and a rose sale April 18. Arthur Kowalski is again with Mr. Alberts at the Lenox Flower Shop.

Joseph Sangster is going on a trip soon with the Ismalia Temple lodge.

At Palmer's branch store the Easter trade was good. Large baskets were a special feature and sold well. They are showing some good English hawthorn shrubs and Japanese variegated maples.

J. Benson Stafford had a unique Easter feature. With every $1.50 plant he gave a split bamboo basket, which proved to be quite a drawing card. In his corsage work he used wheat, in various harmonizing or contrasting colors. Since wheat is being used extensively in millinery, it found favor with quite a few customers. Mr. Stafford is noted for his unique and exclusive creations.

S. A. Anderson's new cellar was quite a boon during the Easter rush. It gave much needed floor space and furnished a place for plant and cut flower storage. Benches there were convenient for papering pots and wrapping plants.

R. E. Boettger, of Eggertsville, had a fine crop of carnations and lilies, which were disposed of for Easter.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club met April 16, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with a good attendance. The question was as to whether a chrysanthemum show shall be held in Lancaster this autumn. It was decided to hold a show November 5 to 7, in the Auditorium. This will be the first real show held in Lancaster. The amateurs will make a fine showing and a large number of florists are preparing to grow stock especially for the show.

The report of the coöperative buying committee showed progress and it was interesting to hear the expressions of many of the members of the actual saving to themselves brought about by the coöperative committee.

A committee was appointed by President B. F. Barr to arrange for our annual picnic in July: Elmer J. Weaver, J. F. Moore and Frank L. Kohr.

The exhibition table was covered with a fine display. H. D. Rohrer showed twelve varieties of Zvolanek's new orchid-flowered sweet peas, which received much attention. J. P. Siebold showed specimen plants of American Beauty, Pres. Neumann and Bright Eyes geraniums. Carl Brackbill staged an extraordinary bunch of Enchantress. B. F. Barr showed some blue French hydrangeas which looked good. A geranium cluster from Ira Landis was shown for a name, but none of the members knew the variety. It measured twenty inches in circumference and the individual florets were nearly two inches in diameter; color a brilliant carmine.

Previous to the meeting a fair-sized representation of the members visited the establishments of Ira H. Landis, Paradise, and Messrs. Elmer and Charles Weaver, on the Philadelphia pike. At the Landis place we saw beds of White Wonder that have been giving a record cut this season; also Gloriosa, Enchantress Supreme and Mrs. Ward. Eureka, red, looked well and is a particularly good variety at this place. Pink lupines, gorgeous Mme. Perret pansies, calendulas, yellow marguerites, mignonette and myosotis, all for cutting, were in good form. Outdoor Spencer peas were about a foot high and gave good promise. Mr. Landis also has large plantings of gladioli, some under sash, with a 6-inch growth showing their lead over those just planted.

We next went to visit the Weaver brothers, at whose place we saw fine peas. A light blue variety and a soft pink shade, both their own selection, were beautiful. A row of Blanche Ferry winter-blooming Spencer originating with them was well thought of. The carnation stock looked well. A large block of mum cuttings are rooting. Calendulas and mignonette were exceptionally fine. A large house of Comfort and Alma Ward carnations was as fine as we have ever seen carnations at this time of year.

Leaving the Weavers, H. D. Rohrer's place was next visited, to see the new winter-blooming Spencer peas.

The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, May 21. H. K. R.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. L. Miller.

Mrs. J. L. Miller, of Newark, O., passed away Sunday morning, April 19, after only a few hours' illness. She had been in the florists' trade for years and had conducted a large business successfully. She went to market Saturday night, but, on returning, was suddenly stricken with illness and became unconscious in a few minutes, only lingering until early the following morning. She leaves a host of friends, not only in her own city, but in Columbus, O., where she had been well known for years. She is survived by a son, George L., who has been associated with his mother in the Newark business and also runs the Miller Flower Shop, in Columbus. The funeral occurred at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, April 21.

poses. The pleasurable part of the trip will be meeting Mrs. Verlinde, who has been staying there with relatives. They will make the return trip together. The members of the trade here wish him a pleasant trip and a happy return.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Then, of Chicago, during a recent stay here were the guests of Harry Dresel, foreman for the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. Their program while here included visits to the various florists, sightseeing, a boat ride on the Father of Waters, and last, but not least, a breakfast at the old French restaurant, Begues. Mr. and Mrs. Then expect to come back for next year's carnival.

S. A. Anderson's new cellar was quite a boon during the Easter rush. It gave much needed floor space and furnished a place for plant and cut flower storage. Benches there were convenient for papering pots and wrapping plants.

R. E. Boettger, of Eggertsville, had a fine crop of carnations and lilies, which were disposed of for Easter.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club met April 16, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with a good attendance. The question was as to whether a chrysanthemum show shall be held in Lancaster this autumn. It was decided to hold a show November 5 to 7, in the Auditorium. This will be the first real show held in Lancaster. The amateurs will make a fine showing and a large number of florists are preparing to grow stock especially for the show.

The report of the cooperative buying committee showed progress and it was interesting to hear the expressions of many of the members of the actual saving to themselves brought about by the cooperative committee.

A committee was appointed by President B. F. Barr to arrange for our annual picnic in July: Elmer J. Weaver, J. F. Moore and Frank L. Kohr.

The exhibition table was covered with a fine display. H. D. Rohrer showed twelve varieties of Zvolanek's new orchid-flowered sweet peas, which received much attention. J. P. Siebold showed specimen plants of American Beauty, Pres. Neumann and Bright Eyes geraniums. Carl Brackbill staged an extraordinary bunch of Enchantress. B. F. Barr showed some blue French hydrangeas which looked good. A geranium cluster from Ira Landis was shown for a name, but none of the members knew the variety. It measured twenty inches in circumference and the individual florets were nearly two inches in diameter; color a brilliant carmine.

Previous to the meeting a fair-sized representation of the members visited the establishments of Ira H. Landis, Paradise, and Messrs. Elmer and Charles Weaver, on the Philadelphia pike. At the Landis place we saw beds of White Wonder that have been giving a record cut this season; also Gloriosa, Enchantress Supreme and Mrs. Ward. Eureka, red, looked well and is a particularly good variety at this place. Pink lupines, gorgeous Mme. Perret pansies, calendulas, yellow marguerites, mignonette and myosotis, all for cutting, were in good form. Outdoor Spencer peas were about a foot high and gave good promise. Mr. Landis also has large plantings of gladioli, some under sash, with a 6-inch growth showing their lead over those just planted.

We next went to visit the Weaver brothers, at whose place we saw fine peas. A light blue variety and a soft pink shade, both their own selection, were beautiful. A row of Blanche Ferry winter-blooming Spencer originating with them was well thought of. The carnation stock looked well. A large block of mum cuttings are rooting. Calendulas and mignonette were exceptionally fine. A large house of Comfort and Alma Ward carnations was as fine as we have ever seen carnations at this time of year.

Leaving the Weavers, H. D. Rohrer's place was next visited, to see the new winter-blooming Spencer peas.

The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, May 21. H. K. R.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

The eleven students now registered in floriculture at the University of Illinois, at a recent meeting, organized a club to be known as the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois. The object of the club is "to advance floricultural knowledge and interests by means of papers, talks and discussions; and to promote good fellowship." August Hecht, a senior, was elected president, E. G. Lauterbach, vice-president, and Horace Ingalls, secretary-treasurer.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. L. Miller.

Mrs. J. L. Miller, of Newark, O., passed away Sunday morning, April 19, after only a few hours' illness. She had been in the florists' trade for years and had conducted a large business successfully. She went to market Saturday night, but, on returning, was suddenly stricken with illness and became unconscious in a few minutes, only lingering until early the following morning. She leaves a host of friends, not only in her own city, but in Columbus, O., where she had been well known for years. She is survived by a son, George L., who has been associated with his mother in the Newark business and also runs the Miller Flower Shop, in Columbus. The funeral occurred at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, April 21.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE Western Union has borrowed Flowergrams, coined by Charles Henry Fox and now in general use in the trade, making it read Moneygrams, referring to the transfer of money by telegraph.

It is worth while noting that the average florist's real progress dates from the time he began to make prompt collection of the money due him. Up to that stage he most likely had his nose on the grindstone.

ONE of the troubles the wholesalers have is the frequency with which a man will open an account in his own name and then use some other and unknown title, like the name of greenhouses, when telegraphing orders.

If you have printed letter-heads, by all means use them; if you haven't any, get some at once. It is extremely expensive to send out business letters on "any old kind" of paper—raises a question as to your connection with the trade and—makes the man you write to look you up.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Charles L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., offers for registration the carnation described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description: A pure carnation. Parentage, Boston Market x Lady Bountiful. Fuller than Bountiful and larger, two and one-half to three inches. Well and high-built flowers. Exceedingly fragrant. Extra good substance, and a long keeper. Bushy growth. No surplus grass. Every shoot gives a bloom. Height is eighteen to twenty-four inches. Healthy grower. Easy propagator. Color, pure snow white at all times. Full, round flower with perfect calyx. Never splits. Will bloom ten months in the year. The most prolific variety we have ever grown. Name, Dr. Sam.

John Young, Sec'y.

ONE of the notable features of the Easter business was the increase in the sale of corsage bouquets.

APPARENTLY there were a great many lilies late for Easter—many more than was at first thought. The excuse is that the growers had not anticipated such unfavorable weather as handicapped them the weeks before Easter.

HARDY cut ferns never have been so scarce in April as in the case this year. With ferns costing the florist half a cent apiece, as will be the case before Memorial day, those who sell carnations at 12 cents per dozen will not feel like giving much green.

"LOTS OF PEP."

That's the cry with which managers are stirring up their baseball players at this time of the year, realizing that it is snap and vigor that win the pennant. The Review, too, realizes that these are necessary to the success of any business, and is pleased to find its efforts in this direction well appreciated by its readers. For instance:

I have yet to find a florists' paper which can in any way compare with The Review for good, snappy editorials and articles, which prove such a benefit to the trade.—William Robertson, Saginaw, Mich., April 6, 1914.

Probably the condition of the market in the closing days of last week can not be better described than by quoting the weather reports. It was a weather market. There was nothing out of the ordinary in the circumstances except that the unusual heat came on the heels of a fortnight of unseasonably cool, dark weather. It merely accentuated and made more apparent a market condition that always accompanies the first warm days of the season.

Of course stock was abundant; overabundant would more accurately describe the condition except for the fact that there seemed to be buyers enough to take up practically everything at a price. Those who handle the largest quantities at wholesale say the increased supply turned in more than the usual sum of money in spite of the cheap sales and the impossibility of a daily clean-up.

The principal increase in supply and the sharpest decrease in average prices was on Beauties and roses. Where nobody was cutting Beauties a month ago, everybody was cutting them last week. There were all kinds, but most of them had good heads, even if the stems were weak and devoid of foliage. There were so many good Beauties that the quantity buyers were in control of the market and the stock that was not strictly up to grade had little value. It is worth while noting here, however, that there never is much loss in Beauties; they always can be sold at some price, even when other flowers are being lost in considerable quantities. The buyer of roses who could not be suited last week was extremely difficult to please. The quality of all roses was beyond reproach and the quantity

FANCY CARNATIONS

In the soft spring days it is important to order the best carnations—but practically all our carnations will ship satisfactorily. A good cut on.

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

We continue to handle larger quantities than any other house in the west. They are great sellers.

BULBOUS STOCK

so great that buyers' ideas as to price could be met. All varieties were available.

The foretaste of summer of course stimulated the production of carnations, but these were so far short of the demand at the opening of the week that they continued to clean out fairly well even after the receipts had risen on the flood tide.

The summer heat practically finished the single violets, nor could the eastern doubles stand the heat on their long journey. Probably there will be a few violets until well into May, but as a market factor they are out until October.

Sweet peas went down grade rapidly last week. The old winter-blooming varieties were about out and the winter Spencers showed the heat in shortened stems and smaller flowers. The older, spring-blooming Spencer varieties are beginning to come in.

Lilies were a glut last week and there was considerable loss of stock that was held over from Easter. The heat brought out the late lilies with a rush, so that there was far more good stock than would be sold at profitable prices, with no sale at all for soft, overripe lilies. Indoor bulbous stock was practically finished at Easter, but there has been a flood of southern jonquils, which, under the circumstances, returned the shippers little. Spanish iris is plentiful, as are stocks and snapdragon. There is no special call as yet for valley and neither cattleyas nor gardenias are in oversupply.

The big tumble in temperature at the opening of the present week did not change conditions, as it was not sufficiently long continued. April 20, with frost in the air in the morning, the market was full of poor stock, the summer heat of Saturday having done great damage. April 21 summer returned and the hope of a check to crops was dissipated. There are signs that the Beauty crops will be quickly cut, while rose growers will now prosecute in earnest the work of replanting, although this is not the market factor it was before it became the custom to run the Killarneys three or four years without replanting. If the warm weather and bright sun continue the only relief will come through the running out of crops.

Association Meeting.

At the meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association, April 16, H. E. Smith, of Danville, Ill., was elected to membership. Letters from J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, regarding express rates, and from John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., regarding affiliation, were received without action. President N. P. Miller appointed the following standing committees: Good of the club—Paul R. Klingsporn, chairman; Walter Scott, H. N. Bruns, W. J. Keimel. Membership—J. L. Raske, chairman; Max Awizzus, John Swanson, G. Swenson. Sports—Peter Olsem, chairman; A. J. Zech, Wm. Lohrman, Walter Amling. Transportation—A. C. Kohlbrand, chairman; A. T. Pyfer, E. A. Olinger.

Poehlmannville Notes.

April 20 was village election day. A. F. Poehlmann is president of the village and holds over. Richard Salm was reelected as one of the three trustees. At the school election held April 18 Guy French, an eleventh-hour candidate for trustee to please his friends, ran a good race but failed to beat the banker who was up for reelection, Adolph Poehlmann and Louis Fickenger, outside foreman for Poehlmann Bros. Co., being the other members of the board.

acres. The range is open for the entire width of 351 feet from wall to wall, except for the 8-foot iron gutter posts. The truss that strengthens the roof was designed by the company engineer and is manufactured in the company machine shop. Garland gutters are used, Foley supplied the roof material and the Advance ventilator was bought, but the houses are practically built on the place. There is not a nail in this year's addition, 351x250, everything fastened with screws.

Adolph Poehlmann has not of late failed to lead every visitor down to the middle of Plant B for a look at a bench of 800 Russell. Earlier in the season 30,000 grafts were taken from these plants, but lately they have come into crop. When one stands on the bench, so as to be able to see over the top of the plants, the sight is one not soon forgotten. It is planned to plant perhaps 20,000 Russell for next season.

Just by way of a trial, Harry Balsley was given an order, in 1911, for a few thousand 2½-inch pots that are three inches deep inside. For carrying carnations from the cutting stage to the field the deep pot proved so good that last season 165,000 were used and for this season 175,000 more were bought. Guy French says the benefit of the extra inch or so of soil below the top of the root ball is apparent even when the plants come to be lifted from the field.

The plant section now occupies approximately 125,000 square feet of space and steadily expands. For instance, C. G. Anderson says that the cyclamens for next Christmas number 15,000, as against 3,000 last year. The increase in begonias is nearly as great, but he already has sold one customer 5,000 begonias in 2½-inch pots. Every Easter plant was sold except a couple of dozen hydrangeas that waited for last week's warm sun before blooming.

Because his shoulder stiffened as the result of the fracture caused by a fall on the ice last winter, Guy French has been going to town three times a week for an hour's massage. It is painful but helpful.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The depression was as marked this week as the Easter activity. While there was a large volume of business, the supply of flowers was so heavy that it was impossible to move them all, even at sacrifice prices. Many flowers brought fair prices, but the average was extremely low. Easter lilies, callas and much of the snapdragon were hard to move at any price. Sweet peas and roses were received in enormous quantities. To add to this, the tropical heat of a single day brought in much over-ripe stock, which nobody wanted.

There are several causes that have made conditions rather worse than usual after Easter. The cool weather experienced during the most of this month has kept up the quality of some varieties of flowers that are often over by now: lilac, violets, daffodils and tulips. Then, too, the plants left over in the stores are a drawback to the cut flower demand, as the retailers naturally try to work off this surplus before buying fresh stock. It is believed that the market will recover as these conditions disappear, and return to a state of normal buoyancy.

Retail Florists' Association.

The third Thursday in the month, the date of the Retail Florists' Association's meeting, brought out much that was of interest. The meeting was well attended. The applications for new memberships were most encouraging. The discussion centered on those things that would benefit the members. Steps was discussed and tested. It is hoped this plan may prove effective in relieving the market in times of oversupply.

The principal discussion of the evening was devoted to the sale of plants by the growers on the City hall plaza at Easter. This the members of the association condemned vigorously. They believe that it is unfair for the growers to compete with their own customers.

They think that for a grower to sell a retail florist in the center of the city a large stock of plants and then go down to City hall and offer plants at any price is not only discourteous but unbusinesslike. The association leaders propose to put this before the growers in a friendly way; there is to be no threat of outlawry, no boycott, no I. W. W. methods; just a friendly "Do you think this is the right thing to do?" sort of talk.

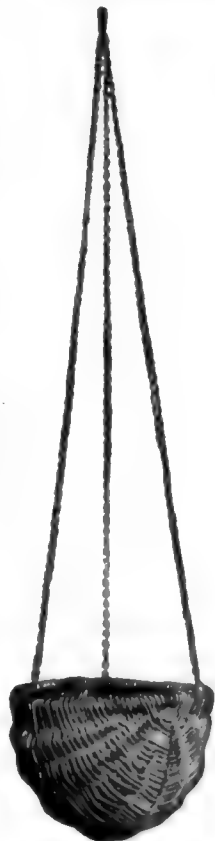

The growers, in discussing the retail meeting, claim that they will be only too glad to meet their brethren in any fair arrangement that can be made. They think that the stock offered on City hall plaza on the day before Easter is of the leftover character, something that the retailers do not want at any price and which can be turned to account in this way only.

Easter Echoes.

There were features of the Easter business that are too interesting to omit, although not of prime importance. The most striking was the City hall market. The authorities decided to charge 50 cents a square foot for the space occupied, and up to midnight on Easter even the pavement surrounding the City hall was a flower mart. The regular street dealers and the growers with stock left over were stationed around the hall. They did a thriving business, the purchasers paying for and carrying off their plants. There were some good plants sold at fair prices, but much of the stock was evidently left over, and it was interesting to see the value of stock. One grower sent a wagon-load containing about 300 plants, the sweepings, so to speak, of his place; overripe, poorly flowered odds and ends. A street man bought the load as it stood. The grower received 12 3/4 cents a plant, or a little under $40 for the load. This will give some idea of the basis on which the street stock of the lower grade is handled. It is stock that no store would touch.

There were curbstome merchants in all parts of the city who took advantage of the fine Easter weather. Most of them did a good business.

A pleasing novelty in the cut flower market was the corsage pansy bunch, made up of a single variety of pansy, usually lavender, with violet leaves to add finish and length of stem. These violet-corsage-size bunches of pansies made a well deserved hit. They were offered by Alfred M. Campbell.

The quantity and selection of stock in the churches are always interesting.

The spirit of change characteristic of our people is marked; different color schemes, different arrangements than formerly, are often, though not always, displayed. It is here that the white flower finds its greatest Easter field of usefulness.

A group of leading men in the profession were listening to one of their number. "Flowers," he said, "are a necessity today to a class of people; they have ceased to be a luxury. That is the reason why florists have suffered less from business depression than, for instance, tailors. Clothes are often discarded, not worn out. People get another season's wear out of their clothes when they feel poor, but they want flowers on certain occasions and they get them."

A wholesale florist in the pre-Easter season found himself short of some stock required to fill shipping orders. He called up three growers in succession without finding any of them within reach of their telephones! Probably those growers were not worrying about their cuts; perhaps their cuts were all off, requiring no further worry.

A firebug is thought to have started a blaze during the Easter rush at William Berger's Sons'. A new greenhouse just commenced in the rear of their handsome store was on fire. A neighbor saw it and telephoned them a warning in time to prevent serious damage.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer left April 22, expecting to sail on the steamer Amerika on the following morning, bound from New York to Hamburg. This is Mr. Bayersdorfer's annual trip in search of novelties and staples for the American market.

William H. Smith, of the Johnson Seed Co., is happily recovering from his illness.

Frank L. Polites will have to abandon his main store at 1418 Chestnut street, owing to the building being torn down. Mr. Polites has three other stores, to which he will devote his attention until a suitable place can be found to reopen.

This is clean-up week in Philadelphia; everything is to be made spick-and-span. The M. Rice Co. is celebrating with a thorough renovating, including the substitution of self-closing metal ribbon cases for glass showcases; they are believed to be much cleaner.

M. C. Dunn reports a satisfactory Easter. Mr. Dunn has a circle of business friends who associate his name with any flower needs, joyful or sad, they may chance to have.

Fred Cowperthwaite called on Paul Applegreen at Andalusia this week.

Jacob Becker reports an excellent Easter in his handsome West Philadelphia shop. This is not literally true: a lovely lady said so while Mr. Becker was in deep confab with a business friend.

There have been changes at the store of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. William J. Moore has returned from New York to the central store.

William M. Thompson, who cares for the interests of Pennock Bros., is in the Presbyterian hospital, from whence his friends hope soon to see him return restored to health.

William Kleinheinz, of Lynnwood Hall, deserves hearty commendation for his fine showing in New York last month. He captured seven firsts with seven entries.

Max A. Fierstein reports much activity at the store of the Moore Seed Co., where the display of seasonable bulbs and plants is especially interesting.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The first week after Lent was reported as a good one. The market was in excellent condition, with considerably increased receipts. The clear, bright, warm days brought out the stock which should have been in for Easter. Prices went down on everything. From general outlook April 20, the market is going to remain in the same easy condition as last week. There is no actual glut at present and retailers, growers and wholesalers seem satisfied with prevailing conditions. Roses have not been moving so well as expected, as the market is well supplied with all varieties, with Killarney in the majority. Plenty of extra fancy long Beauties can now be had at any time. Carnations have been somewhat scarce, but are now coming in heavily, and before another week, if bright

Florists' Publishing Co.,

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders .....	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. ..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Market.

Pittsburgh has certainly had its share of rain. It is claimed by some that it has rained every Saturday this year, besides raining some during the week, and it is still keeping it up. There is not much chance for spring plowing and no one knows when the growers will get an opportunity to plant out carnations, but there is no scarcity of stock of any kind. Lilies are a glut; everyone has them. The retailers have had a quiet time since Easter. The wholesale houses are overstocked with almost everything. Lilies and roses are the worst glut, but there is more of everything than the market needs and it would be a sin to think what a few warm, bright days would do. The market would be swamped entirely.

Various Notes.

The Schenley park conservatories have the finest show this year, both in quality of flowers and artistic arrangement, they have ever had, and they certainly have attracted crowds of people. It is estimated that on Easter Sunday over 40,000 people passed through the houses and there were many who did not get in. The big storm on Sunday, April 19, when the wind blew sixty-one miles an hour, with a tremendous downpour of rain, did the conservatories considerable damage, tearing off several ventilators and smashing glass in all the houses. After the storm, although it was still raining and everything was wet inside, the crowd started again and kept coming until dark. The arrangement of the stock in the houses reflects great credit on Superintendent George Burke and his efficient foreman, John Jones.

Mrs. E. A. Williams reports a splendid Easter, with an increased sale of plants, all of which were made up as combinations in some style of baskets.
In fact, her sales were only limited by the number she could handle in her store. The cut flower end also was probably a little better than in previous years.

The A. W. Smith Co. reports the best Easter since the company has been in business. There seemed to be an increase in the sales of both cut flowers and plants, though the cut flower end probably showed the greatest increase.

Ray Daschbach, of the Jenkins Arcade, had his small shop crowded and reports a highly satisfactory Easter.

Randolph & McClements, with their large conservatory, which is on a conspicuous corner, made a feature of plants in combinations of all kinds and baskets of all sizes, and they report a phenomenal increase in the sales. Beginning early in the week and arranging for immediate delivery made it the largest holiday plant business they ever had and it did not injure the sale of cut flowers to any great extent.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. cleaned all palms and other stock out of the conservatory in the rear of their store and banked it with blooming plants, all of which were sold out by Saturday. They report an increase in the sales of both plants and cut flowers.

The Zieger Co. had its usual good exhibit. The large show windows and conservatory gave great opportunities, which the firm took good advantage of.
A fine trade is reported.

shine, and during the rest of the week weather conditions were ideal. Plants were far and away the most popular with the shoppers, and florists, as a rule, were entirely cleaned out of these by Sunday morning, despite the unusually large quantity they had on hand. Lilies sold with a vim, but were hardly more popular than some of the other plants. Florists here have been trying for several years to get the notion out of the people's heads that the lily is the only suitable Easter plant and have been quite successful in accomplishing their purpose. Azaleas sold remarkably well, and good prices were obtained. Hyacinths were exceedingly popular with the class of trade that wanted to spend a moderate sum; tulips were easily disposed of, especially in the brighter shades; in fact, everything in the bulbous line seemed to sell easily. Cut flowers were secondary, and florists were handicapped by the meager supply of carnations, roses, violets and sweet peas. Easter Sunday was bright and clear, with the result that a great many of the women who paraded the streets in their new spring regalia wanted corsages to set off their attire. By 2 o'clock most of the florists were sold out and had to close their doors. The tone of the market has improved since then, and cut flowers are more plentiful. Roses are of good quality, and the favorite sweet peas are beginning to come in large quantities. These are in great demand these nice spring days for corsages. Daffodils are still quite plentiful.

Various Notes.

Metz & Bateman have purchased a beautiful new delivery car, a Commerce, handsomely painted, which makes a creditable showing for this young concern. This firm, while but newly established, reports an Easter business which was far beyond expectations. Even with the extra help, difficulty was experienced in keeping up with the orders. The Madison street store was entirely too small to accommodate the patrons and an extra show room was engaged in the next block on the same street.

There were some lively times at the attractive shop of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, on Superior street, during Easter week. Mrs. Freeman is one of the leading florists of this city, an expert in her line and popular with her patrons. And she certainly can hustle around. The display window of her shop was elaborately decorated during the week and could not help but attract attention. Easter business broke all records, she says.

One of the most attractive Easter window displays shown in this city was that of the Art Floral & Decorating Co., which is located next to Keith's theater. This concern believes in having attractive windows and is making good. This location is favorable for selling a great many corsages to women who are going to the matinee at this popular vaudeville house. Here, too, Easter trade was all that could be desired.

At the last meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club, the members voted to give up their present hall until they can decide on a definite plan that will be effective in obtaining a larger attendance at the meetings. Retailers here do not take as much interest in their club as they should and do not seem to find time to attend the meetings. It would profit every live business man to join with others in this way and cooperate in every possible manner. Much that would be for the good of the trade could be accomplished; experiences could be exchanged,

The Market.

Trade was heavy here during Easter week, and stock was all cleaned up in good shape. Lilies were not plentiful, but there seemed to be enough to meet the demand. Pot plants were plentiful and sold as long as they had a bloom on them. The potted plants this Easter were better than usual and there was little complaint of them. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock all were of good quality and went fast. Snapdragons were plentiful and sold at fair prices. As a whole, the market for both cut flowers and plants was good, with fair prices and quick sales. Trade was all that could be expected.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club met Friday evening, April 17, at the W. L. Rock Flower Co.'s store. The meeting was well attended and the evening was spent in discussion which benefited the trade. So far, the club is progressing rapidly. The May meeting will be held at the store of T. J. Noll & Co., 1109 Grand avenue. Every person in the trade is welcome. A large vase, valued at $25, will be given to the person who draws the winning number; the vase is given by the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago.

1,000 of them being the best that could be obtained in the country. The Beauties were handled by T. J. Noll & Co., of this city.

E. H. Frandsen & Co., of Independence, Mo., report a fine business for Easter. Everything on hand in bloom was sold.

A. F. Barbe reports business as the best he has ever had. He sold 5,000 carnations Easter morning. He also had some of the finest hyacinths that ever were seen in this city.

Across the state line business was good; practically all sold out on everything they had.

Miss Jennie Murray says that she has never handled stock at Easter that was as good as that of this year. She says this helped greatly in the sales, not one complaint being made.

T. J. Noll & Co. sold out their entire stock of cut flowers before 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and they had a large supply.

Henry Kusik & Co. say they were rushed the hardest they ever have been at Easter and that their supplies were sold out by Saturday evening.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a big increase of business. They were as busy as they could be the Friday and Saturday before Easter.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports a clean-up on all blooming plants and cut flowers. Their business at the store was good, a little larger than was expected.

R. S. Brown & Son report a heavier shipping business than ever before in spring bedding plants. Easter trade this year was the heaviest they have had since they have been in business.

Arthur Newell says that business was splendid and that he was busy till Sunday noon. Plant sales increased over last year.

pot plants and basket work, which seemed to sell themselves. More Easter baskets were sold this year than at any previous Easter.

Biederman & Son were busy people at Easter. With plenty of decorations coming in on their Easter trade, it made them hustle to get their orders out on time.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a

The Market.

Easter is past and the florists have again entered upon the humdrum routine of business which makes up the greater part of the business year. The Easter season has been quite satisfactory to everyone and it is indeed gratifying to know that stock cleaned up exceptionally well. Little was left after the trade closed its doors Easter day.
Business in every quarter of the city seemed to exceed the expectations of the retail florists, and a large number of them are planning to take in a larger stock next year. The enormous sale of plants for Easter was by far the greatest factor of the business and established a record which will be hard to exceed next year.

Since Easter, business in general has been fine and has kept up remarkably well. There has been little falling off in the sales, in comparison with the few weeks before Easter. There is plenty of stock on the market at this time, enabling the trade to take care of all orders.

Roses are in large supply and the stock is exceptionally fine. The color is good and they are moving well. Carnations are also plentiful, but as the
